U.S. Presses For Guards' Punishment

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The United States pressed North Korea Wednesday to punish the soldiers who killed two Americans at Panmunjom a week ago and at the same time agreed to study a North Korean proposal for physical separation of allied and Communist guards at this truce village.

Some Western diplomats said the North Korean proposal, made in earlier years by the United States, could help defuse the tense situation on the Korean peninsula. Allied and Communist troops have been on alert since the two U.S. Army officers were slain a week ago in a dispute over pruning a tree. The United States has beefed up its naval and air forces in the area.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Han Ju-kyong proposed the guard separation plan during a 48-minute formal session of the joint allied-Communist military armistice commission — No. 380 since the truce was signed in 1953.

The general, accompanied to the meeting by goose-stepping guards, made one of the mildest North Korean speeches ever heard here — even leaving out the label of "U.S. imperialist aggressors," always used in the past for the allied side.

Han also read out a message conveyed privately last week in which North Korean ruler Kim Il-sung termed the Aug. 18 Panmunjom clash regrettable and urged both sides to avoid such incidents in the future.

U.S. Rear Adm. Mark P. Frudden, chief delegate of the U.S.-led United Nations Command, said Kim's statement was "a positive step" and the separation plan "may be a positive step" and would be studied. But still, he said, "Your response is unsatisfactory" because it mentioned no concrete action to make amends for the slayings.

Frudden said the allies demand punishment of those reponsible for the killing and orders to North Korean troops against physical contact with or obstructing the movement of allied guards at Panmunjom. The admiral also insisted on assurances of allied freedom of movement in the area, as guaranteed by the armistice agreement.

"It is now time for you to make specific efforts. To be specific, in light of the brutal murder of the U.N. Command officers, we have called for punishment of those responsible for this action."

The North Koreans did not reply. More meetings are possible in the near future.

Ever since the truce was signed, guards from both sides have been free to move anywhere in the Panmunjom joint security area, about 850 yards in diameter. There have been exchanges of insults and punches but the first fatal clash came only last Wednesday when 30 North Korean guards attacked 10 U.S. and South Korean soldiers, beating Maj. Arthur Bonifas of Newburgh, N.Y., and 1st Lt. Mark Barrett of Columbia, S.C., to death with axes and clubs.

Han's proposal was that in the future North Korean guards stay north and Americans and South Koreans south of the military demarcation line that bisects Panmunjom, the conference room and the table where the two sides faced each other.

The tree involved in the slaying was south of the line, so if the proposal had been in effect, Communist guards could not legally have gone to the spot last Wednesday in their move to prevent trimming of the tree.

In an operation approved personally by President Ford, a U.S.-South Korean work party cut down the 40-foot poplar last Saturday. Pentagon officials acknowledged Wednesday that the same crew uprooted two North Korean road barriers the allies had been objecting to as a restriction on freedom of movement.

A Western diplomat said the new North Korean proposal was a significant development because U.S. officials had made similar ones in 1953 and 1970.

Diplomatic sources said North Korea may have decided to make a relatively conciliatory gesture at Wednesday's meeting in the face of lukewarm support from its allies, the Soviet Union and China.

They noted that the affair has received scant attention in the Moscow press, possibly reflecting Soviet disfavor with North Korea's handling of it.

The Chinese delegate did not attend Wednesday's meeting, although his three Chinese aides were present and took notes. China has been assuming a low profile at the armistice commission, to stress its position that Chinese "volunteers" who fought in the 1950-53 Korean war left North Korea long ago and the Americans should leave South Korea.

U.S. officials reportedly have contacted members of the Chinese mission in Washington to discuss the slaying.

Besides Frudden, the U.N. Command delegation included one major general and one brigadier general from South Korea, a British brigadier and a Philippines colonel. Britain and The Philippines were among the 16 allies that fought under the U.N. flag in the Korean War.

Han was flanked by two other North Korean officers of flag rank.

Communist guards at the session did not display their usual hostility to the American guards.

North Korean reporters covering the meeting kept away from the South Korean press, departing from their practice of actively lobbying them against the United States and the South Korean government.

In Seoul, South Korea officially backed the allied position at Panmunjom but informed sources said the government would have preferred a tougher stand.

"The South Koreans see the proposal as a sly, manipulative maneuver by North Korea to get out of the situation cheaply," a source said.

Mars Has Life Or Fancy Chemistry

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 1 scientists said Wednesay a test in one of the Martian robot's biology instrument leaves them with either a "biological interpretation" of data — life — or fancier chemistry than scientists have seen before.

"If we had observed these results in the laboratory we would have concluded we had a weak but positive biological signal. But since it comes from Mars, a world we don't understand yet, we have to be very careful in how we interpret these numbers," Dr. Norman Horowitz, a biologist, said.

Dr. Hal Klein, head of the biology team, said there must be more testing to confirm that results of the pyrolytic release test are from living organisms.

"It will not be possible to establish a biological interpretation if we fail to find organic material. On the other hand we won't disprove it either," Horowitz said.

The pyrolytic release test looks for radioactive carbon assimilation. If there is organic matter — complex carbon molecules — they would be found in another experiment, the gas chromatograph mass spectrometer, which in two tests has failed to find the building blocks of life.

The data announced Wednesday followed testing of a sterile Martian soil sample in which any organisms would have been eliminated by heat. The data confirmed that earlier results, before sterilization of the soil, indicated unusual activity — either chemical or biological.

"The new information is extremely exciting," Klein said, "... it leaves us with a biological interpretation or even fancier chemistry than we had talked about earlier."

Horowitz said there "must be a whole range of possibilities between living organisms and no chemistry at all that we haven't explored.

"We have to find organic matter on Mars," he said, "before we are led to announce we have found life on Mars and we are still far from that."

Viking 2 went through an orbit trim early Wednesday to cut more than three hours from its orbit time. It will now move eastward toward its designated landing site in the Utopia Plains which it is expected to reach Friday. Another maneuver will stop its eastward movement so its passes over the site every day at the same time.

It will put down on the northerly Martian plain Sept. 3 to continue the search for life on Mars.

August May Be Driest Ever

If Lincoln has no rain by the end of the month — and the National Weather Service forecasts no precipitation for the weekend — August will be the driest month in recorded history.

Records in the University of Nebraska Department of Conservation and Survey, which date to 1878, show the three driest Augusts were in 1881 with .25 of an inch; 1913 with .31 and 1894 with .45.

A department spokesman said rainfall this month to date was .08 with the last measurable rainfall on Aug. 15. The department takes its readings on the UNL campus,

At the Lincoln Airport, where the National Weather Service takes its precipitation readings, rainfall thus far this month is only .07 of an inch, or 2.47 inches below normal for August.

Lincoln's 1976 moisture total stands at 14.42 inches, 5.46 inches short of the normal amount.

A NWS spokesman said the last "good" rain in Lincoln was July 23 when the city received .23 of an inch.

Bait Bootlegger Busted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eleven-year-old Jeff Gyde, arrested on a charge of selling $4.50 of fish bait without a license, gained the support Wednesday of a legislator who wants an investigation and apology from the state.

Jeff, who opened a fish bait stand in the yard of his family's Ottawa County farm, was charged after wildlife undercover agents made purchases of crayfish and worms.

Judge Merrill B. Rudes of the Ottawa County Probate and Juvenile Court dismissed the charges against the boy last week.

Jeff had been charged with delinquency for failing to have a permit to sell crayfish. The penalty for conviction ranges from $100 to $500, even for a juvenile. Jeff did not need a permit to sell the worms, just the crayfish, according to Ohio law.

Despite the dismissal, State Sen. Paul Gillmor, who wants an investigation of the case, said, "There are a number of questions that remain ... why this family was unnecessarily subjected to this harassment. We also should know why the division wasted so much manpower, time and money on this ridiculous case," he added.

Gillmor asked for an investigation and an apology from the Department of Natural Resources' wildlife division for Jeff and his parents.

"Throughout this entire time, no one in the division performed the simple act of making a courteous phone call to the parents of this boy to tell them that the division of wildlife regulations require a permit to sell bait, even by a little kid in his own front yard," Gillmor said.

Dale Haney, wildlife division chief, was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

A spokesman for the agency said the wildlife division's chief law enforcement agent would be sent to Ottawa County to investigate the incident.

Senate Won't Ban Money For Abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate refused again Wednesday to accept a House appropriation bill amendment banning use of federal funds for abortions.

The vote was 53-35 after an emotional debate in which supporters of the amendment said that Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter is on their side.

Three times the House has voted for the amendment as part of an appropriation bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

But the Senate, by its vote, refused to yield and asked for another conference with the House in an attempt to resolve the issue.

Senate-House conferees previously have compromised all other differences over the bill, which would appropriate $56.6 billion for the agencies for the current fiscal year.

The total is $4 billion in excess of President Ford's budget request and because of this is widely expected to be vetoed regardless of how the abortion question is settled.

Lincoln Women Get Threatening Calls

A number of Lincoln women received threatening telephone calls Tuesday from a man who said he would harm their children if the mothers didn't meet his sexual demands.

Lincoln police said the phone caller apparently was going down the S's in the telephone directory, since the seven women who reported the calls to police had last names beginning with S.

Police believe the same man also has made similar threatening calls to other women in the past weeks. In those instances, the women who reported the threats all had last names beginning with the same letter of the alphabet.

Reportedly, the caller makes the same statements to each woman, contending he will hurt their children if they don't cooperate with him.

Police are continuing to investigate the incident.

Disaster Declaration Probable

By United Press International

Gov. J. James Exon said Wednesday he will probably declare a drought disaster in at least 25 northeastern Nebraska counties following a final meeting with advisers Friday.

"Based on the information I have now, it would appear I will be declaring a disaster in some 25 counties," Exon said in an interview.

He said his statement was based on a preliminary report he received Wednesday morning from Paul Sindt, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service state director.

He will be given the full report by state emergency board, which includes Sindt, during the Friday morning meeting in his office. Action is expected at the conclusion of the meeting.

The names of the counties, Exon added, will be available during the meeting.

The governor also said he could extend his declaration beyond those 25 at any time if conditions worsen in other counties and county disaster committees so request.

"This situation is very serious in certain areas of the state and more could reach the danger zone at any time," he said.

Two weeks ago, Exon received a preliminary report from the emergency board, which consists of officials from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Farmers Home Administration, the Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service and others.

Following receipt of that report on Aug 13, the governor directed the board to monitor closely 22 counties.

His assessment then:

"Severe losses are being sustained by some individual family farm operations and the overall estimates at present are at $181 million below anticipated yields."

"Things obviously haven't gotten any better," Exon said Wednesday.

Tiwald Selected Health Care Chief

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Steve Tiwald has been named executive director of the Community Health Care Association (CHCA), it was announced Wednesday.

CHCA is a local organization of consumers and professionals recently awarded a federal grant to plan a health maintenance organization (HMO) for Lincoln and Lancaster County.

In his capacity as CHCA director, Tiwald will administer the planning activities that will precede the establishment of the HMO.

An HMO provides consumers with an alternative to conventional health care insurance.

Enrollees in the HMO subscribe on a voluntary basis; and to provide services to the enrollees, the HMO makes arrangements with physicians, hospitals and other health care professionals in the area.

CHCA has been awarded a $125,000 federal grant to plan an HMO.

"During the next several months, we will work with our cooperating doctors to design the medical care delivery system" which will be utilized by the HMO, Tiwald said.

CHCA will also "do financial planning to determine detailed costs for all the services the HMO will offer," he continued.

"Following this planning period, we will move into the developmental period when the medical staff will be hired and the health center facility will be prepared."

Tiwald said CHCA anticipates that the HMO will be operational within 18 to 24 months.

Tiwald, who will assume the CHCA position Sept. 1, has worked with the Nebraska Department of Health's bureau of Comprehensive Health Planning for the past two years.

He received a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1972. He currently is working on a master's degree at UNL in community and regional planning.

CHCA president Don Nielsen described Tiwald as "a person who knows the health field and who knows the community of Lincoln."

Police Open Fire On Mobs

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police opened fire Wednesday on rioting mobs in the giant black township of Soweto as black workers battled black militants trying to enforce a dwindling job boycott.

At least seven blacks were reported killed in the township Wednesday, according to the Rand Daily Mail newspaper. Commissioner of Police Gert Prinsloo confirmed only six of the deaths.

Unofficial estimates by local newspapers have put the death toll in Soweto since Monday at 23, including the seven reported deaths Wednesday.

Police have confirmed only 11 deaths since the three-day boycott started Monday and an apparent backlash broke out Monday night.

At least two blacks were reported killed when police fired on mauraudng mobs attacking homes and dragging away women. At least 15 women were reported raped in one incident and hundreds were reported injured in the violence that spread through much of the sprawling township's 26 square miles.

Another black was reported killed when police fired on a crowd attacking a Zulu man, apparently in reprisal for Zulu attacks Monday and Tuesday night against militant strikers.

As of Wednesday, the number of officially confirmed deaths stood at 262 in violence in black townships across the nation since the first riots erupted in Soweto on June 16. All but three of the dead were black.

Reports by Johannesburg companies on absenteeism varied on the third and last day of the boycott. Some firms said more workers were back on the job but others said more had stayed away.

Wednesday's violence appeared to be a combination of a continued Zulu backlash and counterattacks by others opposed to the Zulus, raising the prospect of tribal warfare among more than a million Soweto residents.

The Zulus, South Africa's largest tribe, are famed for their historic battlefield bravery. They reportedly attacked homes and other blacks and formed vigilante groups in what was widely interpreted as a backlash against agitators supporting the boycott.

Pamphlets calling for the boycott last weekend warned that the homes of blacks refusing to join the strike would be burned. Police say intimidators have molested some blacks on the way to and from work.

About 1,500 Zulu tribesmen armed with carved wooden clubs called knobkerries, short spears, and other weapons went on a rampage Tuesday night. South African media reported at least eight dead and more than 100 injured.

Witnesses said police stood by and watched the Zulu attacks. Asked to comment, Police Minister James T. Kruger said, "The police will always allow people to protect themselves."

Police Col. J.P. Visser, head of the Soweto criminal investigation division, called the reports "infamous lies."

Visser said the trouble began when a hostel housing some 400 Zulus was burned Monday night and the Zulus heard that two fellow tribesmen were thrown to their deaths from a train.

"The Zulus organized themselves and rampaged out into the streets of Orlando West (in Soweto) in search of young troublemakers," he said.

Visser estimated that at one point Tuesday some 10,000 blacks were involved in running battles all over the sprawling township. "We couldn't be everywhere at the same time," he said.

Police fired shotguns several times Wednesday at youths trying to barricade roads leading out of Soweto. The Johannesburg Star quoted one youth telling a worker, "Pass our regards to your (white) masters. We'll catch up with you tonight."

It was impossible to tell how many Soweto blacks took part in the boycott, but it was doubtful more than 100,000 to 150,000 of the 250,000 who commute to Johannesburg joined it.

The South African Press Association said after an informal survey the consensus of Johannesburg firms was that the boycott had not crippled or seriously hampered most operations.

Elsewhere, rioting was reported in Bonteheuwel township for coloreds (those of mixed race) outside Cape Town. A student demonstration grew until large chanting crowds stoned cars and buses and jeered police trying to disperse them with tear gas. One student was shot in the head by police. His condition was not known.

Students stoned schools at the black townships of Duncan Village and Mdantsane outside East London. Police detained several students.

October War Hero Favors De-Escalation Of Mid-East Arms Race

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The United States should reduce military aid to Israel, de-escalate the Middle East arms race and work for a new Arab-Israeli agreement to end the formal state of war, former Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Wednesday.

"There must be a way of coming down the hill, of de-escalating," the patch-eyed Israeli hero of the 1967 six-day war said in an interview with The Associated Press.

"The only solution is ... not to give us more arms for our security, but to give us more security so we can have less arms.

"If I could go to America and make a suggestion. I would say: Cut the billions (of dollars) and provide us with an end-of-war commitment from Egypt," he said.

But he added that Israel "must have a nuclear option" to offset the numerical superiority of the Arab states and their financial capability to buy weaponry.

Although out of government for two years, Dayan, now 60, attracts a wide political following and retains his seat in the Knesset, Israel's parliament. It is not known, however, how much influence, if any, he holds in government quarters.

He is regarded as the architect of Israel's lightning victory in the 1967 war and remains for many Israelis a military hero. But Israel was caught unprepared and suffered early setbacks in the war of October, 1973, when Dayan was defense minister. His reputation was tarnished and his career in the highest ranks of government ended.

Dayan now is loner in Israeli politics. A year ago he defied his Labor Party and voted against ratification of the truce accord with Egypt, mediated through Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Some Laborites wanted to expel him from the party.

Dayan, who said he has no desire to re-enter the government, still is critical of the agreement. He said Israel should have rejected any accord that did not commit the Arabs to end the state of belligerency.

"We missed an essential opportunity to get a real step toward peace....We evacuated the Sinai passes and the oilfields for nothing in return," Dayan maintained.

He was referring to the Abu Rudeis oilfields on the coast of the Gulf of Suez, which were earning 1 million a day when Israel relinquished them to Egyptian control. The fields and the whole Sinai Peninsula were captured in the 1967 war.

Dayan argued that Kissinger pressured Israel into giving up strategic territory, but applied no pressure on Egypt for comparable concessions.

"What we should have done as a de-escalation (was to seek) an Egyptian commitment to end the state of war, demobilization of some of their forces and a reduction in some of their tanks," Dayan said. Israel also would have lowered its military profile, he added.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt would have agreed, Dayan claimed, since he needed U.S. help in rebuilding the Egyptian economy.

Dayan praised Kissinger as the most active U.S. secretary of state in Mideast affairs since Israel won statehood 28 years ago, but he said: "I am sure that the way he conducted the negotiations was wrong. There are limitations to what one man can do in two or three weeks."

Dayan made these other points.

— The United States should cooperate with the Soviet Union in promoting a new step toward a Middle East settlement, preferably by reconvening the short-lived Geneva Peace Conference.

— Both the United States and the Soviet Union should send troops to guarantee any new agreement. "You can't tell the Marines and the Russian Red Army to go home," he said, noting that United Nations forces now stationed in Mideast buffer zones may be expelled by either side. No troops of the big powers are among the U.N. contingents.

Hotel Manager Hit By Mystery Disease

Philadelphia (UPI) — The manager of four Philadelphia hotels was in critical condition Wednesday with a case of the mysterious "legionnaire's disease" that killed 26 persons following a state American Legion convention last month.

A state Health Department official said the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta had confirmed that J. Bruce Rogers, 60, of Moorestown, N.J., was suffering from the illness.

Rogers managers four Holiday Inns in Philadelphia and visited the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel during the time the convention was headquartered there July 21-24. He also ate at the hotel twice after that.

Rogers was one of two new reported cases of the illness. About 150 persons were made ill by the ailment.

The other new case was a 72-year-old Philadelphia woman, who was in satisfactory condition and expected to be discharged from a hospital. Robert Costello, a spokesman for the state Health Department, said she was stricken Aug. 14 and had visited the Bellevue-Stratford July 15. The woman was not identified.

Costello also denied a charge by Philadelphia city representative Albert V. Gaudiosi that state health officials tried to quarantine the Bellevue-Stratford at a meeting in Atlanta last week.

Howe's 30-Day Sentence In Sex Case Suspended

Salt Lake City (UPI) — Congressman Allan Howe, facing a dim political future and possible disbarment, Wednesday was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence for trying to buy sex from two police decoys posing as prostitutes.

District Judge Bryant Croft gave the freshman Utah Democrat 60 days to pay the cost of his two-day appeals trial as a condition of suspension of the jail term.

City Prosecutor Philip Palmer estimated the bill could go as high as $500.

Howe was convicted in City Court last month and sentenced to 30 days in jail, to be suspended on payment of a $150 fine. Howe appealed the lower court conviction, and was granted a new trial in District Court.

Croft said, however, he could find no provision in the city's anti-prostitution ordinance for imposing a fine.

The congressman's sentencing followed the arrest Tuesday night of his campaign manager, Tim Allen, 24, on a drug charge.

Allen was arrested at his home and charged with distribution of a controlled substance for value.

Warrants were issued for Allen several days ago, but police said they had been advised not to make the arrest until after the Howe trial to avoid any possible interference with the congressman's case.

A jury deliberated only 22 minutes Tuesday before finding Howe guilty of offering the decoys $20 for sex. Howe, testifying in his own defense, called the decoys' story a "complete fabrication."

Howe, under constant pressure from the state's Democratic leaders to abandon his bid for re-election since his arrest on June 12, also faced possible disbarment as a result of the conviction.

Supreme Court Chief Justice Henri F. Henriod said Wednesday the court had never been faced with a disbarment question based on a minor misdemeanor and the issue probably would turn on an interpretation of "moral turpitude."

Nutrition Expert Says To Buy Mature Melon

College Station, Tex. (UPI) — A nutritions expert says consumers shopping for watermelons should buy them mature.

Sally Coble of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service says color is the best key to judging ripeness. "A yellowish underside, regardless of a rich green color of the rest of the melon, is a good sign of ripeness," she says.

Mrs Coble says to select melons that are symmetrical, firm and have a velvety bloom. The watermelon should appear dull rather than shiny, she says.

Newsman Schorr To Be Subpoenaed

Washington (UPI) — The House Ethics Committee decided Wednesday to subpoena CBS reporter Daniel Schorr, despite a lawyer's warning that the newsman still will refuse to reveal who gave him a secret intelligence report.

Committee Chairman John J. Flynt, D-Ga., told reporters after a closed session that members had voted 8 to 4 to subpoena Schorr

The move was a surprise, since Schorr has said he would never identify the source from which he obtained a copy of the secret report.

Asked if the committee intended to compel Schorr to do so, the chairman replied.

"The committee has authorized the issuance of a subpoena The recommendation was not entered hastily. It was decided after considerable discussion."

The four members who voted against the subpoena were Reps Melvin Price, D-Ill.; F. Edward Hebert, D-La.; Albert H. Quie, R-Minn.; and Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash.

Flynt said the panel also had subpoenaed Clay Felker, editor-in-chief of The Village Voice, a New York weekly which printed the report; Aaron Latham, who wrote the introduction to the article, and Shelly Zalarnick, the printer of the article.

The four were scheduled to appear before the committee Sept. 16.

Flynt said staff members of the now defunct House Intelligence Committee who had not previously testified had been subpoenaed to appear before the committee Sept. 8.

The secret report was published in The Village Voice in early February despite a vote by the full House that it could not be released because it contained information which the White House considered still classified and which could be detrimental to national security.

The committee acted Wednesday despite a statement made to it earlier by Joseph Califano, Schorr's lawyer, that his client would not testify voluntarily.

The lawyer's statement said Schorr under subpoena "would give only a brief statement and would provide no information whatever that would identify or tend to identify his sources."

Schorr, who has been suspended by CBS with pay pending the outcome of the House investigation, was last reported vacationing in Vail, Colo.

The Ethics Committee worked in closed session in an effort to find where the leak came from. The report Schorr is accused of leaking resulted from a months long investigation into the U.S. intelligence community.

The House voted not tro release the report until President Ford had a chance to delete sensitive sections. It has never been officially released

The Ethics Committee has spent most of its $150,000 budget in five months of conducting more than 420 interviews with 385 people. It has not found out who leaked the report to Schorr.

Williams, 36, sat quietly as the verict was read U S. District Judge William C O Kelley set sentencing for Sept 17 in Atlanta

Williams was found guilty in August 1974, but was given a new trial in Key West because of pretrial publicity and a questionable closing argument by the prosecution He was sentenced to 40 years in prison in the first trial

Newsman Schorr To Be Subpoenaed

Washington (UPI) — The House Ethics Committee decided Wednesday to subpoena CBS reporter Daniel Schorr, despite a lawyer's warning that the newsman still will refuse to reveal who gave him a secret intelligence report.

Committee Chairman John J. Flynt, D-Ga., told reporters after a closed session that members had voted 8 to 4 to subpoena Schorr.

The move was a surprise, since Schorr has said he would never identify the source from which he obtained a copy of the secret report.

Asked if the committee intended to compel Schorr to do so, the chairman replied:

"The committee has authorized the issuance of a subpoena. The recommendation was not entered hastily. It was decided after considerable discussion."

The four members who voted against the subpoena were Reps. Melvin Price, D-Ill.; F. Edward Hebert, D-La.; Albert H. Quie, R-Minn.; and Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash.

Flynt said the panel also had subpoenaed Clay Felker, editor-in-chief of The Village Voice, a New York weekly which printed the report; Aaron Latham, who wrote the introduction to the article, and Shelly Zalaznick, the printer of the article.

The four were scheduled to appear before the committee Sept. 16.

Flynt said staff members of the now defunct House Intelligence Committee who had not previously testified had been subpoenaed to appear before the committee Sept. 8.

The secret report was published in The Village Voice in early February despite a vote by the full House that it could not be released because it contained information which the White House considered still classified and which could be detrimental to national security.

The committee acted Wednesday despite a statement made to it earlier by Joseph Califano, Schorr's lawyer, that his client would not testify voluntarily.

The lawyer's statement said Schorr under subpoena "would give only a brief statement and would provide no information whatever that would identify or tend to identify his sources."

Schorr, who has been suspended by CBS with pay pending the outcome of the House investigation, was last reported vacationing in Vail, Colo.

The Ethics Committee worked in closed session in an effort to find where the leak came from. The report Schorr is accused of leaking resulted from a months long investigation into the U.S. intelligence community.

The House voted not tro release the report until President Ford had a chance to delete sensitive sections. It has never been officially released.

The Ethics Committee has spent most of its $150,000 budget in five months of conducting more than 420 interviews with 385 people. It has not found out who leaked the report to Schorr.

Williams Said Guilty Of Extortion

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — William A.H. Williams was found guilty Wednesday of charges he extorted $700,000 from the Atlanta Constitution following the abduction of editor Reg Murphy.

Williams, a former Lilburn, Ga., contractor, had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to the charges, which stemmed from Murphy's abduction in February 1974.

Murphy, now editor-publisher of the San Francisco Examiner, was editor of the Constitution at the time of the abduction.

Williams, 36, sat quietly as the verict was read. U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley set sentencing for Sept. 17 in Atlanta.

Williams was found guilty in August 1974, but was given a new trial in Key West because of pretrial publicity and a questionable closing argument by the prosecution. He was sentenced to 40 years in prison in the first trial.

Public defender Bruce Kirwan closed his defense here as he opened it — saying Williams was "crazy as a bedbug."

The prosecution maintained that Williams had personality problems, but was seeking money to maintain his role as a "big spender, a big shot."

New York Times News Summary

Premier Chirac Resigns

Paris — Premier Jacques Chirac resigned Wednesday, charging that President Valery Giscard d'Estaing would not allow him sufficient authority to deal with France's problems. Chirac, the Gaullist leader who led the government for two years and whose relations with the president have become increasingly strained, was replaced by Foreign Trade Minister Raymond Barre, a professor of economics who does not belong to a party.

Sadat Nominated Again

Cairo — President Anwar el-Sadat accepted Wednesday his unanimous nomination for a second six-year term of office by the Egyptian People's Assembly, declaring that "destiny wants me to carry on."

Coastline Law Enacted

Los Angeles — A sweeping law for permanent control of development along California's 1,000-mile coastline has been enacted by the California Legislature after eight months of arduous political haggling. The law, perhaps the most comprehensive land-use management measure in the nation, puts virtually all development in a zone extending from three miles off shore up to five miles inland under a jurisdiction of a new 15-member commission composed of citizens and public officials.

Tax Bill Process Begun

Washington — Senate and House conferees began the lengthy process of plowing through the many-sided tax bill, passing over the most controversial provisions until later. The conferees did agree to tighten the deductions allowable for business conventions overseas and to extend the 10% business investment tax credit for only four years instead of permanently, as the Senate had provided.

Portillo Has Big Job

Mexico City (London Times) — Six years of brilliant promise and enormous difficulties await Senor Jose Lopez Portillo, Mexico's president-elect, who will guide this nation of 60 million through a new stage of expansion until 1982. He was elected on July 4, but will not take office until Dec. 1.

Miki Weathers Assault

Tokyo — Premier Takeo Miki appeared Wednesday night to have weathered at least for the moment yet another concerted assault on his leadership of Japan's governing Liberal Democratic Party. Miki held further talks late Wednesday with his chief intraparty opponents.

Once Again In Trouble

Like Uganda, North Korea has been ruled by a crackpot dictator with an immense ego. The communist regime in North Korea is vicious, militant, unprincipled and unpredictable.

Unlike Uganda, North Korea has the capacity to cause the United States some real grief if it wants — and it has shown signs recently of wanting to goal the U.S. into actions we might have reason to regret later.

The recent murder of two American officers by North Korean border guards in the so-called demilitarized zone provoked passionate outcries here. Some Americans were hoping for a Mayaguez-type response, at the least, or some other kind of indiscriminate military response in retaliation.

But it would appear that the Ford administration is handling this latest Korean crisis as coolly as possible.

By our standards of justice the murderers should be held accountable for their crimes. But we are not dealing with people who abide by our standards. It is of major significance that the North Koreans have even admitted that the incident was "regrettable."

The U.S. is again in a damned if we do, damned if we don't situation.

There are long-range foreign policy considerations to be taken into account when planning a proper response to such an atrocity. There is the position of South Korea to consider and that of other allies in the Pacific. There must be recognition of how the rest of the world will react to what might be perceived as an American overreaction.

But it does seem wrong that the unprovoked murder of two American servicemen should go unpunished.

Seeking the right response, the civilized response, in dealing with an uncivilized gang of thugs is an exacting order and it takes statesmen to fill such an order.

One thing is certain, however: Americans in the "demilitarized" zone must be protected from assault and must respond to assault in kind on the spot.

An Obvious Conflict

State Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff some days ago announced he would probably resign his seat in the Legislature to accept the executive directorship of the Nebraska Association of County Officials.

Apparently he had second thoughts.

Nichol said he asked the Legislature's Conflict of Interest Committee if there would be a conflict if he accepted the job with the county officials association while continuing to serve the remaining two years of his term in the Unicameral. The committee, Nichol reported, said there would be a conflict of interest if he served in both capacities.

He needed to ask?

Will Legion Pardon Carter?

This whole business about pardon or amnesty would have been "put behind us" if Gerald Ford would have treated the draft resisters and other Vietnam war protesters with the same amount of compassion and mercy he found in letting Richard Nixon off the hook.

Pardoning the anti-war Americans at the same time Nixon was pardoned would have been consistent and might have been a public relations master stroke in addition to being a just thing to do. But he didn't.

The issue is still with us. Ford wanted to heal the wounds of Watergate, but not the wounds of a war which split the country for a decade.

For many Americans, Jimmy Carter's advocacy of a blanket pardon for draft-resisters is not strong enough; for many it will do and for many it is the next thing to treason.

But he has taken a stand.

Candidates for high office do not normally like to be booed by the American Legion.

Carter, however, had something to say, and he said it, letting the Legion chips fall where they may.

Vying For The Farm Vote

President Ford emphatically asserted in his rousing acceptance speech last week that there would be no more embargoes on the foreign sales of American grain.

However sincere the President may be in his campaign promise, we are nevertheless reminded of former attorney General John Mitchell's suggestion that critics look at what the Nixon administration did rather than what it said.

Although much of what was both said and done back then was pretty bad, the advice may not be.

And looking at the record rather than at campaign rhetoric, there has been a history of embargoes and price manipulations by the Nixon and Ford administrations. That part of the record continues to make farmers uneasy.

But Jimmy Carter is not necessarily going to harvest a bumper crop of votes by relying on disssatisfaction with the Ford record on embargoes. Aside from the grain sales and meat price manipulations, many farmers are supportive of ag policies articulated by Sec. Butz over the past five years.

Carter does have a chance to make hay in the country, but he should stay away from a frontal attack on Butz and suggesting a food vs. oil stand-off if he wants to succeed.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Now that such well-worn words as "integrity," "honesty" and "honorable" have been put away until November and the last of the two tooters to toot has been ushered from the convention hall, the people can settle back into the routine of daily living.

To those individuals who plot the inside strategy to elect their candidate, such things as drought, grocery prices that are too high and increased taxes must seem very ho-hum. So for us who must seek our living from the land, feed a family or attempt to balance the budget for the family or keep a small town afloat, it is back to the routine problems of living, although those problems did not begin nor end with the conventions.

It was somewhat amusing when those delegates making the nominating speeches could not make their views known within the twenty-five-second time limit.

Abe Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address" is recognized everywhere as one of the masterpieces of all time . . . fewer than two hundred and fifty words. Depending upon the speed of the speaker, it could almost be given in this time frame. I know it has been given by tense school children in front of the class within that time, myself included. All the while I was memorizing it I wondered why he said, "to be dedicated here," in one place and "to be here dedicated," in another. It made for confusion at the time. Now I recognize its worth.

But of course one does not expect any great words of wisdom to come from conventions but let's hope that before November we do begin to hear some thoughtful messages. The people are ready for them.

I like good plain English.

Take last week when my little hand egg-beater came apart in a bowl of eggs. The beaters dropped into the bowl, the frame holding them slipped down and the cogs became visible. I was aghast since I purchased the beater only six months ago. The Farmer, who was waiting for breakfast, was reading the paper.

"Look what happened!" I gasped, dipping the dripping beater from the eggs. "This thing-a-ma-jig that fits into the what-cha-ma-call it has come apart. These whirly-gigs at the top are kaput not to mention these do-dads at the side."

Later The Farmer attempted to put the beater back together again.

"Ralph Nader should hear about this," I admonished. The Farmer smiled. Could it be he thought my good plain English would be confusing to Mr. Nader?

The seasons come and live for a short time, then die forever. Now again the summer is drawing to a close. The last long windrows of summer-scented hay are curing in the fields. The fields of corn are dark green clouds that hug the earth. The ears have been made and soon they will begin to bend and drop on the stalk. Each day of warm summer heat hastens their maturity.

The pasture bluffs are crisp and brown indicating the dry conditions of the soil. The stream willows finger the wind tenderly. In the sluggish water depleted by irrigation and lack of rainfall, life moves slowly. The insect sounds of summer drum from the trees when evening creeps across the land. Bird song also is revived when the sun is low in the west.

But at high noon the countryside becomes silent. It's just too hot to sing about the joys of living when the thermometer reaches 100 degrees.

This is a season of waiting, a slow, patient turning of the season toward the September solitude that is immediately before us.

The GOP: Dead? Dying? Revivable?

NEW YORK — Responsible Republicans are discussing death — their party's. It is not a new topic; the party has been losing seats in the House and Senate, and governorships too. The grim talk among leaders is that if the G.O.P. is defeated in November, the party will be dead.

For political balance, America requires a two-party system. Voters have always been divided in two classes — those who vote for a candidate; those who vote against a candidate. The citizens demand an option.

Third parties have seldom been taken seriously. Once in this century, something called the Bull Moose Party nominated Theodore Roosevelt for president. The Bull Moose split the Republican vote and put the Democratic professor, Woodrow Wilson, in the White house.

When Franklin Roosevelt was elected in 1932, it became clear that there was a misalignment of parties — liberal Republicans voted with the Democrats; conservative Democrats voted for Republican measures.

In 1944, the G.O.P. turned away from Wendell Willkie and nominated Thomas Dewey. Willkie became angry. Secretly, he sent Gifford Pinchot, a former Republican governor of Pennsylvania, to see FDR in the White House.

The proposition was that, at some time "in the future," the liberals of both parties (Willkie and FDR) should form a political party. The conservatives would be forced to organize.

"It was Willkie's idea," said Roosevelt, speaking to Sam Rosenman, confidant and speech-writer. "Willkie has just been beaten by the conservatives in his own party who lined up in back of Dewey. Now, there is no doubt, Sam, that the reactionaries in our own party are out for my scalp, too — as you can see by what's going on in the South.

"I agree with him 100%, and the time is now — right after the election. We ought to have two real parties — one liberal, the other conservative . . . Of course I'm talking long-range politics — something that we can't accomplish this year. From the liberals of both parties, Willkie and I together can form a new party in America."

Rosenman, who was devoting his energies to getting his boss nominated for a fourth term, wondered why the President was confiding in him. FDR asked him to arrange a secret meeting in New York. The President was declining in strength and acumen. He was given to ecstatic seizures.

The meeting was held at the St. Regis Hotel. Rosenman arrived first. There was a soft knock and Willkie was admitted. Both looked through the small suite of rooms, under furniture and behind drapes.

When a waiter arrived with lunch, Sam met him alone, although the servings were for two. Willkie emerged from a bedroom when the waiter departed. They ate and talked pleasantries. Rosenman said that the President was pleased that Willkie had sent Pinchot to the White House with a new, realistic approach to American politics.

Sam said the notion would have to be "tabled" until after the autumn elections. "After the war," Willkie said. The Republican began to eat well and speak well. When the war was over, he said, there would have to be a realignment, a showdown, in which "liberals and internationalists" would face "conservatives and isolationists."

"You tell the President," Willkie said, "that I am ready to devote almost full time to this. The only thing I insist on is that I do not meet the President until after the election." Together they ran down a list of prominent politicians, industrialists and labor leaders who might join the new party.

The notion failed in 1944 because Roosevelt was indiscreet. The war and the election were still pending when he wrote a "Dear Wendell" letter in which he violated the secret agreement.

"I want to talk to you about the future, even the somewhat distant future . . . We can arrange a meeting here in Washington, or, if you prefer, at Hyde Park — wholly off the record or otherwise, just as you think best."

FDR was tired. After he dictated the letter, he requested that certain advisers come to his bedroom. They were Senator Kenneth McKellar, 79; Secretary Cordell Hull, 73; Secretary Henry Stimson, 77, and Gifford Pinchot, 79.

The President grinned through his pince-nez. "Good morning, kindergarten children," he said. That was not the proper time to redesign the two-party system. The time may be now . . .

High School Is A State Of Mind

WASHINGTON — Americans of different ages feel nostalgic about different things, but there is one memory they have in common: high school. Recollections of high school, Jack Fincher wrote in Human Behavior magazine, are "second only — if that — to our memories of war as the stuff of our books, movies, plays, pop songs."

Some people look back on their high-school days with unalloyed fondness. In an article appearing on the op-ed page of The New York Times, Estelle Lurie of Milwaukee glowingly described what it was like to be a teen-ager in the 1950s:

"How beautiful it was not to be ashamed to have school spirit, to be active in extracurricular school activities, to thoroughly enjoy the junior prom, and to compete with other girls for the attention of the popular boys. It was pure joy — and the once-in-a-lifetime magnificent innocence of being young, alive, and a vibrant teen-age girl."

For many others, though, high school was a painful experience. For every cheerleader there was a wallflower, for every jock there was a bookworm. Author Ralph Keyes argues that high school is essentially a never-ending battle for status, in which the "innies" always triumph over the "outies." The innies run things; outies can only envy them from a discreet distance.

"Innies are not scornful of the peasantry so much as ignorant of them," Keyes wrote. "At best they take occasional pity and toss an outie a smile like a crust of bread. The attitude is more indifferent than oppressive, not Stalin herding opponents into labor camps so much as Marie Antoinette crushing peasants beneath her carriage wheels because she just doesn't see them."

It sometimes happens, though, that the outcasts of high school have the last laugh. Excluded from the inner social circle, they often develop the imagination and independence that can lead to success in their chosen careers. Conversely, members of the high-school elite soon discover that the outside world values performance over style, and many of them are unable to make the adjustment. It is common enough at class reunions to find the pecking order to be almost a mirror image of its former self.

But a quick look through the high-school yearbook — does anyone ever throw it out? — quickly reaffirms the way things were and, in a sense, always will be. No matter which school they come from, yearbooks all tend to resemble the National Lampoon's hilarious and poignant parody of the genre. Rock musician Frank Zappa probably put it best. "High school isn't a time and a place," he said. "It's a state of mind."

Somoza Flourishing With U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON — A year ago, we named Anastasio Somoza, the barrel-bellied dictator of Nicaragua, the world's greediest ruler.

The sad truth is that the United States government has provided the ladder for his ascent to this dubious pinnacle.

Somoza runs Nicaragua as if it were his private estate. Through his family and flunkies, he owns or controls virtually every profitable industry, institution and service in the country. He also owns most of the land they sit on.

His enormous wealth has been squeezed out of his impoverished subjects, whose average pay is 30 cents an hour. They lie in shacks and teeming slums and eke out a living as best they can while the Big Banana stashes his millions in foreign banks.

The dictator maintains his power by fostering the myth that he has the full support of the big boys in Washington. He leads his people to believe that any attempt to dislodge him would bring back the U.S. Marines, who have already occupied the country twice in this century.

Not only do American officials let him get away with this but they have subsidized the Somozas' regime for 40 years with a steady flow of foreign aid. In the past 30 years the American taxpayers have donated over a quarter of a billion dollars to the tiny Central American republic.

The money was pumped into Nicaragua even though the U.S. authorities knew all along they were dealing with devils. From the moment the Somozas assumed power in Nicaragua, intelligence agencies and the State Department have kept detailed records of the family's rampant corruption.

Here are some highlights:

— In a "Strictly Confidential" cable dated April 11, 1939, the U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua, Meredith Nicholson, reported complaints of a "continuing campaign of violence by the (National Guard) in the suppression of persons critical of the President." His informants, wrote Nicholson, "placed the figure of political deaths at the unbelievable total of a thousand a month." If his sources were to be believed, said Nicholson, "the country as a whole is one great political prison."

— According to his informants, said Nicholson, "the President makes free use of the Guardia and of government property in carrying on his extensive cattle and dairy enterprises." He had one report, the ambassador wrote, that Somoza was "smuggling cattle across the Costa Rican border."

— The people of Nicaragua, Nicholson warned, were displaying "a spirit of resignation . . . Persons suspected of entertaining ideas hostile to the Somoza regime are watched and the espionage is so strict that it is difficult for the dissenting groups to hold meetings, even in their homes."

— In a memorandum dated December 19, 1939, Nicholson suggested that "President Somoza may be going a bit too far. It is apparently his ambition to receive a personal profit from every commercial activity in the country."

— Another "Strictly Confidential" cable, dated the same month, carried a report compiled by the U.S. Charge d'Affaires LaVerne Baldwin that listed "the numerous sins of this government." Among other things, Baldwin charged Somoza was ripping off road-building funds, running an illegal sweepstakes operation, maintaining a protection racket among miners, and taking kickbacks on cattle exports. The Nicaraguan government, Baldwin wrote, is "ridden from top to bottom with graft."

— The President was short of farm laborers, stated Baldwin. Thus, "Every man who is unable to produce a statement of employment is being accused of vagabondage and, in this year of our Lord 1939, impressed into jail service . . . or permitted to leave to harvest coffee" on Somoza's plantations.

— In May, 1939, Somoza had made a state visit to Washington, where he was royally received by President Franklin Roosevelt. While on that trip, wrote Baldwin, Somoza received "a total of $145,000 from the coffers of the state." This, it must be remembered, was during a time of world depression. After his return from the United States, cabled Baldwin, Somoza "shamelessly exploited the prestige accruing from his reception there as representing assurances of direct support from the American government."

— Ambassador Nicholson found Somoza personally repugnant, his cables reveal. Although Somoza was a man of "pleasing personality," wrote the ambassador, he is "without stability of opinion as to anything foreign to his selfish aims . . .

Once Again In Trouble

Like Uganda, North Korea has been ruled by a crackpot dictator with an immense ego. The communist regime in North Korea is vicious, militant, unprincipled and unpredictable.

Unlike Uganda, North Korea has the capacity to cause the United States some real grief if it wants — and it has shown signs recently of wanting to goal the U.S. into actions we might have reason to regret later.

The recent murder of two American officers by North Korean border guards in the so-called demilitarized zone provoked passionate outcries here. Some Americans were hoping for a Mayaguez-type response, at the least, or some other kind of indiscriminate military response in retaliation.

But it would appear that the Ford administration is handling this latest Korean crisis as coolly as possible.

By our standards of justice the murderers should be held accountable for their crimes. But we are not dealing with people who abide by our standards. It is of major significance that the North Koreans have even admitted that the incident was "regrettable."

The U.S. is again in a damned if we do, damned if we don't situation.

There are long-range foreign policy considerations to be taken into account when planning a proper response to such an atrocity. There is the position of South Korea to consider and that of other allies in the Pacific. There must be recognition of how the rest of the world will react to what might be perceived as an American overreaction.

But it does seem wrong that the unprovoked murder of two American servicemen should go unpunished.

Seeking the right response, the civilized response, in dealing with an uncivilized gang of thugs is an exacting order and it takes statesmen to fill such an order.

One thing is certain, however: Americans in the "demilitarized" zone must be protected from assault and must respond to assault in kind on the spot.

An Obvious Conflict

State Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff some days ago announced he would probably resign his seat in the Legislature to accept the executive directorship of the Nebraska Association of County Officials.

Apparently he had second thoughts. Nichol said he asked the Legislature's Conflict of Interest Committee if there would be a conflict if he accepted the job with the county officials association while continuing to serve the remaining two years of his term in the Unicameral. The committee, Nichol reported, said there would be a conflict of interest if he served in both capacities.

He needed to ask?

Will Legion Pardon Carter?

This whole business about pardon or amnesty would have been "put behind us" if Gerald Ford would have treated the draft resisters and other Vietnam war protesters with the same amount of compassion and mercy he found in letting Richard Nixon off the hook.

Pardoning the anti-war Americans at the same time Nixon was pardoned would have been consistent and might have been a public relations master stroke in addition to being a just thing to do. But he didn't.

The issue is still with us. Ford wanted to heal the wounds of Watergate, but not the wounds of a war which split the country for a decade.

For many Americans, Jimmy Carter's advocacy of a blanket pardon for draft-resisters is not strong enough; for many it will do and for many it is the next thing to treason.

But he has taken a stand.

Candidates for high office do not normally like to be booed by the American Legion.

Carter, however, had something to say, and he said it, letting the Legion chips fall where they may.

Vying For The Farm Vote

President Ford emphatically asserted in his rousing acceptance speech last week that there would be no more embargoes on the foreign sales of American grain.

However sincere the President may be in his campaign promise, we are nevertheless reminded of former attorney General John Mitchell's suggestion that critics look at what the Nixon administration did rather than what it said.

Although much of what was both said and done back then was pretty bad, the advice may not be.

And looking at the record rather than at campaign rhetoric, there has been a history of embargoes and price manipulations by the Nixon and Ford administrations. That part of the record continues to make farmers uneasy.

But Jimmy Carter is not necessarily going to harvest a bumper crop of votes by relying on disssatisfaction with the Ford record on embargoes. Aside from the grain sales and meat price manipulations, many farmers are supportive of ag policies articulated by Sec. Butz over the past five years.

Carter does have a chance to make hay in the country, but he should stay away from a frontal attack on Butz and suggesting a food vs. oil stand-off if he wants to succeed.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Now that such well-worn words as "integrity," "honesty" and "honorable" have been put away until November and the last of the two tooters to toot has been ushered from the convention hall, the people can settle back into the routine of daily living.

To those individuals who plot the inside strategy to elect their candidate, such things as drought, grocery prices that are too high and increased taxes must seem very ho-hum. So for us who must seek our living from the land, feed a family or attempt to balance the budget for the family or keep a small town afloat, it is back to the routine problems of living, although those problems did not begin nor end with the conventions.

It was somewhat amusing when those delegates making the nominating speeches could not make their views known within the twenty-five-second time limit.

Abe Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address" is recognized everywhere as one of the masterpieces of all time . . . fewer than two hundred and fifty words. Depending upon the speed of the speaker, it could almost be given in this time frame. I know it has been given by tense school children in front of the class within that time, myself included. All the while I was memorizing it I wondered why he said, "to be dedicated here," in one place and "to be here dedicated," in another. It made for confusion at the time. Now I recognize its worth.

But of course one does not expect any great words of wisdom to come from conventions but let's hope that before November we do begin to hear some thoughtful messages. The people are ready for them.

I like good plain English.

Take last week when my little hand egg-beater came apart in a bowl of eggs. The beaters dropped into the bowl, the frame holding them slipped down and the cogs became visible. I was aghast since I purchased the beater only six months ago. The Farmer, who was waiting for breakfast, was reading the paper.

"Look what happened!" I gasped, dipping the dripping beater from the eggs. "This thing-a-majig that fits into the what-cha-ma-call it has come apart. These whirly-gigs at the top are kaput not to mention these do-dads at the side."

Later The Farmer attempted to put the beater back together again.

"Ralph Nader should hear about this," I admonished. The Farmer smiled. Could it be he thought my good plain English would be confusing to Mr. Nader?

The seasons come and live for a short time, then die forever. Now again the summer is drawing to a close. The last long windrows of summer-scented hay are curing in the fields. The fields of corn are dark green clouds that hug the earth. The ears have been made and soon they will begin to bend and drop on the stalk. Each day of warm summer heat hastens their maturity.

The pasture bluffs are crisp and brown indicating the dry conditions of the soil. The stream willows finger the wind tenderly. In the sluggish water depleted by irrigation and lack of rainfall, life moves slowly. The insect sounds of summer drum from the trees when evening creeps across the land. Bird song also is revived when the sun is low in the west.

But at high noon the countryside becomes silent. It's just too hot to sing about the joys of living when the thermometer reaches 100 degrees.

This is a season of waiting, a slow, patient turning of the season toward the September solitude that is immediately before us.

The GOP: Dead? Dying? Revivable?

NEW YORK — Responsible Republicans are discussing death — their party's. It is not a new topic; the party has been losing seats in the House and Senate, and governorships too. The grim talk among leaders is that if the G.O.P. is defeated in November, the party will be dead.

For political balance, America requires a two-party system. Voters have always been divided in two classes — those who vote for a candidate; those who vote against a candidate. The citizens demand an option.

Third parties have seldom been taken seriously. Once in this century, something called the Bull Moose Party nominated Theodore Roosevelt for president. The Bull Moose split the Republican vote and put the Democratic professor, Woodrow Wilson, in the White house.

When Franklin Roosevelt was elected in 1932, it became clear that there was a misalignment of parties — liberal Republicans voted with the Democrats; conservative Democrats voted for Republican measures.

☆ ☆ ☆

In 1944, the G.O.P. turned away from Wendell Willkie and nominated Thomas Dewey. Willkie became angry. Secretly, he sent Gifford Pinchot, a former Republican governor of Pennsylvania, to see FDR in the White House.

The proposition was that, at some time "in the future," the liberals of both parties (Willkie and FDR) should form a political party. The conservatives would be forced to organize.

"It was Willkie's idea," said Roosevelt, speaking to Sam Rosenman, confidant and speech-writer. "Willkie has just been beaten by the conservatives in his own party who lined up in back of Dewey. Now, there is no doubt, Sam, that the reactionaries in our own party are out for my scalp, too — as you can see by what's going on in the South.

"I agree with him 100%, and the time is now — right after the election. We ought to have two real parties — one liberal, the other conservative . . . Of course I'm talking long-range politics — something that we can't accomplish this year. From the liberals of both parties, Willkie and I together can form a new party in America."

Rosenman, who was devoting his energies to getting his boss nominated for a fourth term, wondered why the President was confiding in him. FDR asked him to arrange a secret meeting in New York. The President was declining in strength and acumen. He was given to ecstatic seizures.

The meeting was held at the St. Regis Hotel. Rosenman arrived first. There was a soft knock and Willkie was admitted. Both looked through the small suite of rooms, under furniture and behind drapes.

When a waiter arrived with lunch, Sam met him alone, although the servings were for two. Willkie emerged from a bedroom when the waiter departed. They ate and talked pleasantries. Rosenman said that the President was pleased that Willkie had sent Pinchot to the White House with a new, realistic approach to American politics.

Sam said the notion would have to be "tabled" until after the autumn elections. "After the war," Willkie said. The Republican began to eat well and speak well. When the war was over, he said, there would have to be a realignment, a showdown, in which "liberals and internationalists" would face "conservatives and isolationists."

"You tell the President," Willkie said, "that I am ready to devote almost full time to this. The only thing I insist on is that I do not meet the President until after the election." Together they ran down a list of prominent politicians, industrialists and labor leaders who might join the new party.

The notion failed in 1944 because Roosevelt was indiscreet. The war and the election were still pending when he wrote a "Dear Wendell" letter in which he violated the secret agreement.

"I want to talk to you about the future, even the somewhat distant future . . . We can arrange a meeting here in Washington, or, if you prefer, at Hyde Park — wholly off the record or otherwise, just as you think best."

FDR was tired. After he dictated the letter, he requested that certain advisers come to his bedroom. They were Senator Kenneth McKellar, 79; Secretary Cordell Hull, 73; Secretary Henry Stimson, 77, and Gifford Pinchot, 79.

The President grinned through his pince-nez. "Good morning, kindergarten children," he said. That was not the proper time to redesign the two-party system. The time may be now . . .

High School Is A State Of Mind

WASHINGTON — Americans of different ages feel nostalgic about different things, but there is one memory they have in common: high school. Recollections of high school, Jack Fincher wrote in Human Behavior magazine, are "second only — if that — to our memories of war as the stuff of our books, movies, plays, pop songs."

Some people look back on their high-school days with unalloyed fondness. In an article appearing on the op-ed page of The New York Times, Estelle Lurie of Milwaukee glowingly described what it was like to be a teen-ager in the 1950s:

"How beautiful it was not to be ashamed to have school spirit, to be active in extracurricular school activities, to thoroughly enjoy the junior prom, and to compete with other girls for the attention of the popular boys. It was pure joy — and the once-in-a-lifetime magnificent innocence of being young, alive, and a vibrant teen-age girl."

For many others, though, high school was a painful experience. For every cheerleader there was a wallflower, for every jock there was a bookworm. Author Ralph Keyes argues that high school is essentially a never-ending battle for status, in which the "innies" always triumph over the "outies." The innies run things; outies can only envy them from a discreet distance.

"Innies are not scornful of the peasantry so much as ignorant of them," Keyes wrote. "At best they take occasional pity and toss an outie a smile like a crust of bread. The attitude is more indifferent than oppressive, not Stalin herding opponents into labor camps so much as Marie Antoinette crushing peasants beneath her carriage wheels because she just doesn't see them."

It sometimes happens, though, that the outcasts of high school have the last laugh. Excluded from the inner social circle, they often develop the imagination and independence that can lead to success in their chosen careers. Conversely, members of the high-school elite soon discover that the outside world values performance over style, and many of them are unable to make the adjustment. It is common enough at class reunions to find the pecking order to be almost a mirror image of its former self.

But a quick look through the high-school yearbook — does anyone ever throw it out? — quickly reaffirms the way things were and, in a sense, always will be. No matter which school they come from, yearbooks all tend to resemble the National Lampoon's hilarious and poignant parody of the genre. Rock musician Frank Zappa probably put it best. "High school isn't a time and a place," he said. "It's a state of mind."

Somoza Flourishing With U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON — A year ago, we named Anastasio Somoza, the barrel-bellied dictator of Nicaragua, the world's greediest ruler.

The sad truth is that the United States government has provided the ladder for his ascent to this dubious pinnacle.

Somoza runs Nicaragua as if it were his private estate. Through his family and flunkies, he owns or controls virtually every profitable industry, institution and service in the country. He also owns most of the land they sit on.

His enormous wealth has been squeezed out of his impoverished subjects, whose average pay is 30 cents an hour. They lie in shacks and teeming slums and eke out a living as best they can while the Big Banana stashes his millions in foreign banks.

The dictator maintains his power by fostering the myth that he has the full support of the big boys in Washington. He leads his people to believe that any attempt to dislodge him would bring back the U.S. Marines, who have already occupied the country twice in this century.

Not only do American officials let him get away with this but they have subsidized the Somozas' regime for 40 years with a steady flow of foreign aid. In the past 30 years the American taxpayers have donated over a quarter of a billion dollars to the tiny Central American republic.

Ford Puts Baker In Morton's Place

By United Press International

James A Baker, the Texas lawyer who rounded up the delegates President Ford needed to win the GOP presidential nomination, was given the job Wednesday of rounding up the votes Ford needs to beat Jimmy Carter in November.

In a major shakeup of the Ford campaign staff, Baker was named to replace Rogers C. B. Morton as chairman. Morton has been in disfavor since his frank admission during the primary battles that Ford was doing poorly, adding "we aren't rearranging the deck chairs on the Titanic yet."

Ford rearranged his staff and called a GOP summit meeting at his Vail vacation retreat Thursday of his running mate, Sen. Robert Dole, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and former Texas Gov. John B Connally.

At the same time, his November opponent was stumping through Middle America — thought to be Ford's political base — blasting the administration farm policy.

In Des Moines, Carter told Iowa farmers that the Republican's embargo on foreign grain shipments plus grain inspection scandals had heavily damaged American export trade.

At the Iowa State Fair, Carter said he would not ban shipments of grain to Russia as the administration did in 1974.

"Eve y time Nixon, Ford and (Agriculture Secretary Earl) Butz have imposed a new export embargo, it has caused permanent damage to export markets, and every time they delay tough and honest grain inspection, the damage is multiplied many times over," Carter said.

Dole, following Carter as Ford's one-man truth squad, will give the GOP side of the story in Des Moines Thursday. Wednesday he followed Carter's appearance by a day at an American Legion convention in Seattle.

The Kansan said in Seattle that Ford was totally opposed to amnesty or pardon for Vietnam draft resisters The same crowd booed Carter Tuesday when he said he would grant a blanket pardon — but not amnesty for the thousands who refused to fight in Vietnam

Carter's running mate, Sen Walter Mondale, talked about another volitile issue, abortion, during a campaign appearance in Chicago Mondale said he does not think abortions should be encouraged, but said he and Carter do not favor a constitutional amendment banning them.

Mondale said he did not think the Democratic ticket had a "Catholic problem" despite church leaders' staunch opposition to abortion and a similar position on the issue taken by Dole

Ford also told reporters that former GOP National Chairman Dean Burch and William Ruckelshaus, the former deputy attorney general fired by Richard Nixon in the "Saturday night massacre," would go to Washington later in the week to negotiate with Carter aides on a series of debates between the two candidates.

Baker, 46, came out of the obscurity of a Houston oil law firm two months ago to play the firemen's role in lining up the delegates Ford needed for the nomination Delegate by delegate, Baker wooed the uncommitteds at White House state dinners and in private meetings until Ford had the 1,130 needed to win in Kansas City

Official Of NAACP Predicting Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People says wholesale violence would follow if there is realization of a Republican Party platform proposal for a Constitutional amendment banning "assignment of children to school on the basis of race "

"Any attempt to pass an amendment with the effect to diminishing or destroy the rights we now have to obtain full citizenship would arouse opposition," Clarence Mitchell, director of the NAACP's Washington office, said Wednesday in an interview

"If such an amendment actually got adopted and became part of the Constitution, we would undoubtedly fight for our rights Such a fight would be a real calamity that would dwarf the terrible aspects of the confrontations in Beirut and Belfast.' he said

Mitchell made similar statements Tuesday when he appeared at a news conference called by the U S Civil Rights Commission to report on a 10-month study of court-ordered busing

He said then blacks' reaction to such a constitutional amendment would make the bloody strife in Lebanon and Ireland seem "like a picnic "

The GOP platform opposes "forced busing to achieve racial balances," but Mitchell said such a stand refuses to accept the fact that no other way to provide quality education for blacks has been found

He said he doesn't believe any such amendment could be passed in resolution form by Congress or ratified by the states

Mitchell also scored the Democratic Party's platform plank on civil rights Wording that busing should be a "judicial tool of last resort" was included, he said, "to satisfy the racists and those who want to maintain segregation "

"It (the Democratic position) wasn't merely political expediency, it's an act of outright duplicity," he said

Public Relations Plan Unveiled By Chamber

The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce Wednesday unveiled plans for a public relations push to promote itself and local business.

Saying that for decades the chamber has been "taken for granted," its public relations committee, headed by Dr. Vince Colon, came up with a campaign theme: "Chamber of Commerce . . . Heart of Lincoln."

The two-phase plan is designed to publicize the accomplishments of the chamber and business throughout local history.

The first phase begins Sept. 13 and will include radio and television advertising segments. The second phase, beginning in January, will introduce new material for the ads.

Other publicity methods will include slide shows and a speakers bureau available for public use. Also, pamphlets, bumper stickers and bulletin board flyers will be available for public display.

During the meeting, Chamber President Leo Beck "reiterated" the organization's stand on the Southeast Community College controversy.

Beck said 30% of its students come from eastern Nebraska counties, making the 88th and O St. location desirable.

"We must look at the (college) as we look at the university," Beck said, because of its training persons to work for local industry.

He said because the college is so spread over the city, many possible students are discouraged from attending.

"I think it's time Doug Brogden takes his head out of the sand and looks realistically at" development in the Stevens Creek area, Beck said.

The community college controversy stems from the college's wanting to locate on the city's far eastern outskirts and having the city annex that portion of the county.

The campus would be larger, incorporating several technical programs currently located in six places in the city.

That area, near the Stevens Creek watershed, has brought opposition from city planners, Brogden in particular.

Baby Girl Is Returned To Her Parents In Iowa

A baby girl believed to have been kidnaped by an Iowa man was returned to her parents unharmed. The man accused of the kidnaping was being held by Lancaster County authorities Wednesday.

Sheriff Deputy Sgt. Mike Sweet said authorities are holding Adan Riviera, 22, until he can be returned to Sidney, Iowa.

Sheriff's Deputies Cal Kazebeer and Danile Sligar stopped the car Riviera was driving near 54th and Hwy. 2 Tuesday night after receiving a bulletin from Iowa authorities about the possible kidnaping.

An 18-month old infant, daughter of Tony and Pam Roberts of Shenandoah, was found in Riviera's car. The alleged kidnaping occured Tuesday in Sidney, which is about 25 miles west of Shenandoah.

Officials still didn't have information on why Riviera supposedly took the baby girl.

Riviera also is being held on suspicion of interstate flight to avoid arrest and for carrying a concealed weapon. A knife was found on him, authorities said.

McGovern Man To Head Carter's Campaign

By The Associated Press

James Humlicek, a former aide to Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis, has been named state coordinator for Democrat Jimmy Carter's presidential bid in Nebraska.

Humlicek, 30, was chosen for his professional organizing ability rather than early devotion to Carter, according to his own statement and that of early Carter organizer Mrs. Joan Masuck of Omaha.

Humlicek has been closely associated with Sen. George McGovern. He left a teaching job in Wahoo in the fall of 1971 to begin organizing outstate Nebraska for McGovern's 1972 primary bid. In the general election he was a McGovern field worker in Illinois.

From 1973 through the 1974 election, Humlicek worked for McGovern's senate re-election in South Dakota.

Mrs. Masuck said she was pleased with Humlicek's appointment and not disappointed that the Carter people chose someone from outside the early group of Carter backers.

Humlicek sat out the May 11 Nebraska primary. Mrs. Masuck did not meet him until the Democratic National Convention in New York.

Humlicek said he would work closely with the group headed by Mrs. Masuck, but said one of his first jobs will be to broaden the Carter support.

Nebraska, although considered one of the nation's most Republican states, can be won by the Democratic ticket, Humlicek said.

"I don't think the selection of (Kansas Sen. Robert) Dole will make things any more difficult here," Humlicek said. "Dole's strength was always in the cites and not on the farm.

"Carter and (Minnesota Sen. Walter) Mondale have a stronger identification with farmers— especially Mondale, who has strong identity with the Plains States."

Humlicek said his optimism is partly based on changing attitudes of Nebraskans, which he said are shown by increased Democratic voter registration. He said the Carter-Mondale ticket is "closer in tune with what Nebraskans are thinking" than the GOP ticket of President Ford and Dole.

Humlicek said Democratic Gov. J. James Exon would be taken up on his offer to go on the campaign trail for Carter. The Carter campaign also will be closely tied to the congressional campaigns and the state Democratic Party's voter registration drive.

NWU's Rogers Eyes Race For Governor

By United Press International

Nebraska Wesleyan University President Vance Rogers Wednesday said he is taking a hard look at entering the 1978 Nebraska gubernatorial race.

Two weeks ago, Rogers, 59, began discussing with many Nebraskans the possibility of a political future. He has said he will step down from his president's seat no later than May 31, 1977.

The Republican, who has been Wesleyan president since 1957 and was a Methodist minister 11 years before that, says he would have an "unbelievable administrative background" to offer voters.

Rogers said he will pose two questions to about 100 persons from both the Democratic and Republican camps. He says he'll ask them if they think he could get elected and whether Nebraskans would respond to his kind of leadership.

If the answers to both questions are affirmative, Rogers said, he will run. He also said he should know by January if he will enter the race.

Rogers, who considers himself "a pretty aggressive guy," said he already has contacted Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., and State Treasurer Frank Marsh about the 1978 governor's race.

Among others Rogers has listed as contacts are North Platte Mayor Robert Phares; State Sen. Loran Schmit, Bellwood; Douglas County Commissioner Michael Albert, Omaha; Attorney General Paul Douglas, Lincoln; and Secretary of State Allen Beermann, Lincoln.

With a pending presidential resignation in mind, Rogers said, "I'm a free man for the first time in years. I'm ready for a third career, and this is a real exciting opportunity, as far as I can see."

Rogers said he's a conservative when dealing with economic matters, but is "quite progressive" on human service issues.

In addition, Rogers said he doesn't plan on a career in the U.S. Senate or House of Representatives.

"My wife and I simply do not want to leave Nebraska, for Washington or anywhere else," he said.

List Cut Below 100 Names By NU Search Committee

The search committee for a new University of Nebraska president to replace retiring D. B. Varner has pared the nominations down to fewer than 100 names.

A considerable number of people — in excess of 100 — have been nominated, said Paul Schorr III, committee chairman. The list is now between 50 and 100 names, and Schorr is less than optimistic that the committee will have five to seven names to hand the NU regents at their Sept. 10 meeting.

"That is an ambitious date. The first part of October is really more realistic," he said.

Varner, who has been NU president for seven years, will retire Jan. 1 to become the chairman and chief executive officer of the University of Nebraska Foundation.

Publishing Of Salaries In For Fight

Kearney (AP) — The city of Kearney will seek a declaratory judgment in district court on the constitutionality of LB193, which requires certain cities and counties to publish the salaries of their employes.

City Atty. Mike Kelley said Kearney complied with the law by publishing the hourly wage rates in the Kearney Daily Hub. However, he said he believes the law is unfair and unconstitutional because it applies only to cities with populations of less than 40,000.

City Manager Ray Lundy noted the measure also applies to counties, but not to other government agencies, such as public power districts, schools and colleges.

Kelley also said he will go to court, if possible, to challenge the Public Service Commission's decision that it has jurisdiction over the proposed operation of Pioneer Airways, which seeks to provide service between Denver and a number of Nebraska communities.

Kelley said the service would be interstate service and, as such, should be governed by the Federal Aviation Administration and the Civil Aeronautics Board. He said he must exhaust all administrative remedies before he can take the matter to court.

The city council instructed Kelley to talk with the county attorney about possible action to halt the showing of R-rated movies at a Kearney drive-in theater. Persons living near the theater have complained to the city council about the movies.

Kelley said the matter is governed by a state obscenity statute, which preempts city ordinances and action on the matter.

"I don't think the type of movies shown here would qualify as obscene," Kelley said. He said most obscenity cases have dealt with X-rated movies, not R-rated films.

The city council instructed Kelley to talk with the county attorney about possible action to halt the showing of R-rated movies at a Kearney drive-in theater. Persons living near the theater have complained to the city council about the movies.

Kelley said the matter is governed by a state obscenity statute, which preempts city ordinances and action on the matter.

"I don't think the type of movies shown here would qualify as obscene," Kelley said. He said most obscenity cases have dealt with X-rated movies, not R-rated films.

Leaders Not Roused By Carter Farm Talk

Nebraska farm leaders are lukewarm at best to the first major farm speech by Democratic presidential candidate, Jimmy Carter.

Said Paul Johnston of Schuyler, executive vice president of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Assn.: "I have heard a lot of political promises. He did talk about imposing some kind of meat import restrictions. We have been wanting that, but he isn't in Washington.

"It seems that once politicians get to Washington, they start talking about free trade and then the needs of cattlemen are forgotten. They sort of hope the problem will end before all the feeders go broke, but a lot of us won't make it."

Frank Johannsen of Bayard, president of the Nebraska Wheat Growers Assn., said: "We are opposed to an embargo on anything, but Ford has also said he wouldn't impose an embargo. I don't think anyone would put one on now because we have learned they create more problems than solve them."

Johannsen expressed doubts about a Carter policy of halting food shipments to oil nations in case of an oil embargo to the United States. "They can get food other places, but we can't get oil," he said.

Cal Coulter of Bridgeport, past president of the Nebraska Stock Growers Assn., expressed concern about overproduction stimulated by farm programs.

"It is so easy for us to produce ourselves into poverty," he said. "Perhaps Carter has some innovative way to avoid surpluses, but whenever government props up prices,, we end up producing for the government instead of a real market.

"We have had a difficult time getting the government to adhere to the 1964 meat import law. I am not sure a new law would make much difference."

Carter has suggested that additional authority be put in the president's hands to impose import restrictions and thereby help cattlemen hurt by depressed meat prices.

Johnston described Carter's meat import statement as "kind of wishy-washy. He really wasn't too definite on beef imports. He really hasn't said anything yet."

Zorinsky Subpoenaed In FBI Files Case

Omaha (UPI) — The U.S. Justice Department has subpoenaed Mayor Edward Zorinsky in its attempt to prevent the city attorney's office from obtaining FBI records in a shooting death of a young Omahan by police last year.

U.S. marshals went to Zorinsky's office Wednesay to deliver the subpoena, but Zorinsky, the Democratic U.S. Senate candidate, was in Lincoln. The marshals were referred to City Attorney Herb Fitle, who accepted the subpoena.

However, Fitle said "it's not my job to track the mayor down and tell him about this." adding he would attempt to contact the mayor Thursday.

Zorinsky has scheduled a news conference for 10 a.m. Thursday, and the hearing on the government's motion to quash the request to the FBI is scheduled for 10:30 before U.S. District Judge Albert G. Schatz.

U.S. Attorney Danlie Wherry acknowledged a subpoena was issued for Zorinsky, but declined further comment.

It was learned, however, some of the names contained in the FBI report on the shooting death of Roy Lee Landrum were confidential sources supplied to the FBI, either directly or indirectly, by Zorinsky.

Fitle acknowledged the names supplied by Zorinsky were "part of the issue, but we are trying to determine if there are any other names in the report."

Landrum was shot and killed during an alleged robbery of a north Omaha service station owned by a relative on Aug. 15, 1975.

His estate filed a $4 million civil suit in U.S. District Court against the City of Omaha and Police Officers John Moats and Robert Rockwell. Schatz later granted the city's motion to remove its name as a defendant. The city attorney's office must still defend Moats and Rockwell.

One of the bullets fired from the pistols of the two officers struck and killed Landrum.

At the time of the controversial incident, Zorinsky asked for citizen-witnesses to come forward and relate what happened with the guarantee their names wouldn't be disclosed.

Based on the information he received from the sources, Zorinsky said at the time no action against the officers would be taken.

The FBI subsequently conducted an investigation for the Justice Department's civil rights division, which determined the actions by Moats and Rockwell failed to constitute a violation of criminal civil rights laws and instructed the case be closed.

'Wise Men' To Report On Prince

The Hague, The Netherlands — A report on the findings of a special commission which investigated charges that Prince Bernhard accepted a $1.1 payoff from Lockheed Aircraft Corp., will be released Thursday, the Dutch government has announced.

A government announcement said Premier Joop Den Uyl will address Parliament and copies of the report will be given to news media half an hour later. The premier's speech will be carried live on television.

Queen Juliana and her 65-year old husband, who is the inspector general of the Dutch armed forces, will cut short their Italian vacation and return home Thursday, an announcement said

Mausoleum Doors, Urns Taken From Cemetery

New York (UPI) — Thieves stole nine bronze mausoleum doors and grill work from a Brooklyn cemetery reportedly worth more than $150,000 and also stole urns containing the cremated remains of two persons, police reported Wednesday

Police said the theft occurred sometime between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 7 a.m. Wednesday at the Salem Field Cemetery, owned by the Temple Emanu-el.

Maxwell M. Rabb, president of the temple, said the thieves broke open a gate of the 123-year-old cemetery and vandalized about 50 mausoleums "to a greater or lesser extent."

Rabb said nine bronze mausoleum doors, which are estimated to weigh about 700 pounds each, were ripped off their moorings and stolen Also taken, he said, was some grill work and two expensive cremation urns.

He estimated the property loss at between $150,000 and $200,000. The theft was discovered by the cemetery's superintendent at 7 a.m.

"We are deeply shocked and greatly distressed not only because of the vandalism and theft involved here but because of the unspeakable and callous act of taking away the mortal remains of two people," Rabb said.

Mayor Abraham Beame and Police Commissioner Michael Codd, he said, both called to say that every effort would be made to find the stolen property.

Rabb said the bandits hit the mausoleums closest to the Jamaica Ave gate of the 33-acre cemetery.

Small Land Holders Have Most Rubber

In Malaysia, the government has set up strategically located factories to process the rubber supplies from these small holders.

'Wise Men' To Report On Prince

The Hague, The Netherlands — A report on the findings of a special commission which investigated charges that Prince Bernhard accepted a $1.1 payoff from Lockheed Aircraft Corp., will be released Thursday, the Dutch government has announced.

A government announcement said Premier Joop Den Uyl will address Parliament and copies of the report will be given to news media half an hour later. The premier's speech will be carried live on television.

Queen Juliana and her 65-year old husband, who is the inspector general of the Dutch armed forces, will cut short their Italian vacation and return home Thursday, an announcement said.

Mausoleum Doors, Urns Taken From Cemetery

New York (UPI) — Thieves stole nine bronze mausoleum doors and grill work from a Brooklyn cemetery reportedly worth more than $150,000 and also stole urns containing the cremated remains of two persons, police reported Wednesday.

Police said the theft occurred sometime between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 7 a.m. Wednesday at the Salem Field Cemetery, owned by the Temple Emanu-el.

Maxwell M. Rabb, president of the temple, said the thieves broke open a gate of the 123-year-old cemetery and vandalized about 50 mausoleums "to a greater or lesser extent."

Rabb said nine bronze mausoleum doors, which are estimated to weigh about 700 pounds each, were ripped off their moorings and stolen. Also taken, he said, was some grill work and two expensive cremation urns.

He estimated the property loss at between $150,000 and $200,000. The theft was discovered by the cemetery's superintendent at 7 a.m.

"We are deeply shocked and greatly distressed not only because of the vandalism and theft involved here but because of the unspeakable and callous act of taking away the mortal remains of two people," Rabb said.

Mayor Abraham Beame and Police Commissioner Michael Codd, he said, both called to say that every effort would be made to find the stolen property.

Rabb said the bandits hit the mausoleums closest to the Jamaica Ave. gate of the 33-acre cemetery.

Small Land Holders Have Most Rubber

Washington (UPI) — Small land holders produce most of the rubber in Malaysia and other Southeast Asian countries, the source of about 90% of the world's supply, according to the Malaysian Rubber Bureau. In Malaysia, the government has set up strategically located factories to process the rubber supplies from these small holders.

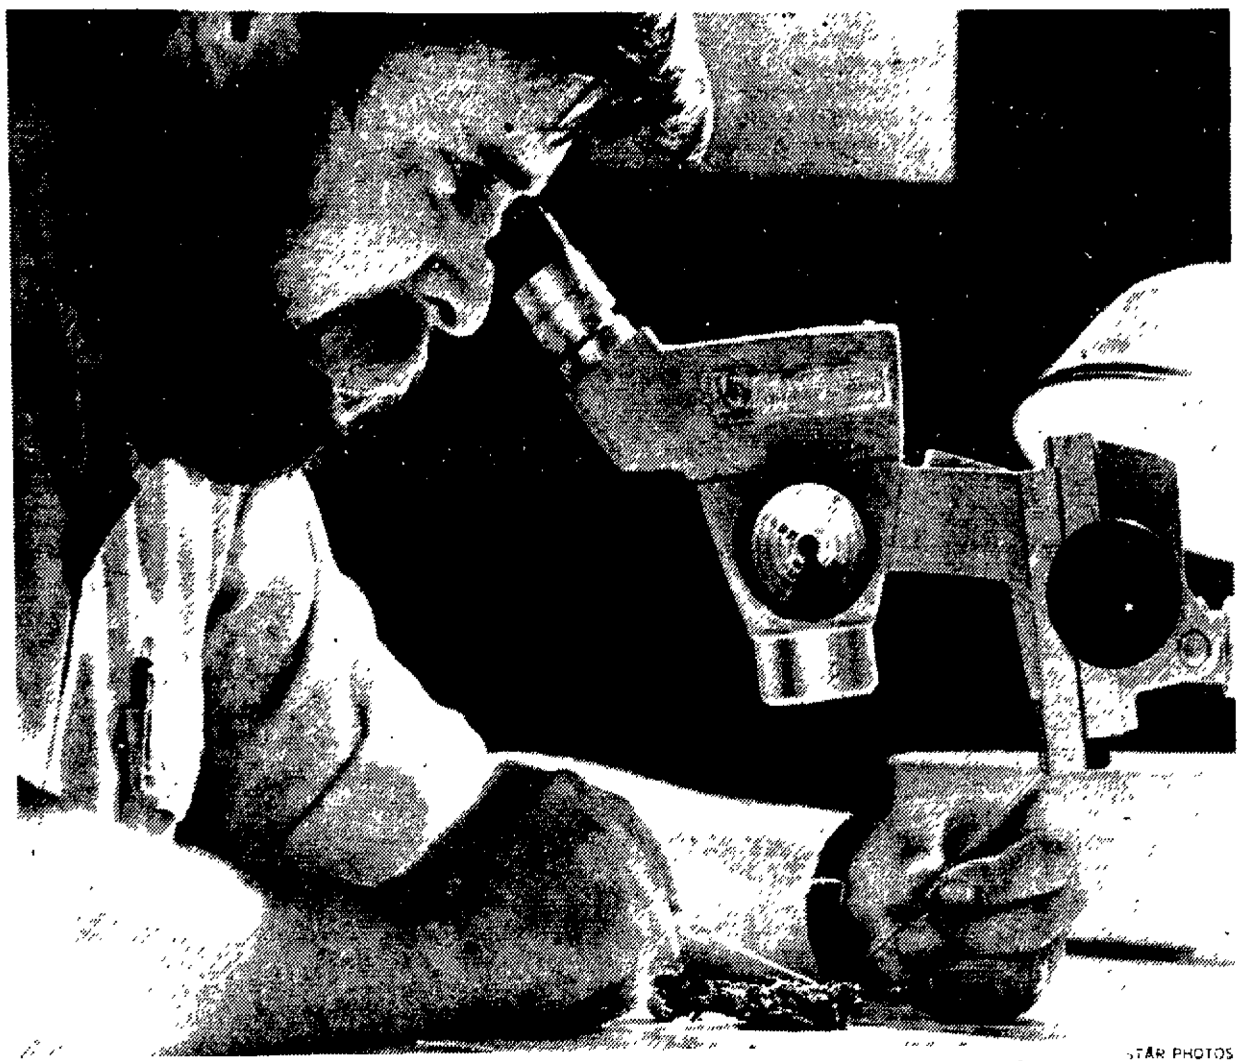
Herbarium Closed For Lack Of Funds



STAR PHOTOS

CHURCHILL EXAMINES PLANT . . . microscope aids in tough classifications.

By BOB REEVES
Star Staff Writer

A unique library on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus — a library without books — has been closed due to lack of funds.

The Nebraska State Museum's herbarium — a plant library housing some 260,000 dried specimens — lost its operating budget July 1.

"Closed" means that no new specimens can be added and none can be loaned out, according to curator Dr. Robert Kaul. There is no money to pay a student assistant, purchase supplies or pay postage.

During fiscal 1975-76 the library loaned 4,000 specimens to herbariums in other parts of the country and to some researchers outside the U.S.

The herbarium is one of several research collections maintained by the State Museum that are not for public display. It will still be available for people to use, by appointment with Kaul.

Kaul, a UNL botany professor, serves as curator on a volunteer basis.

Dried specimens are nearly as useful to a botanist as live ones, Kaul explains. Treated with a poison to prevent insect damage, plants preserved in the herbarium could last for centuries.

Student researchers like Steven Churchill and Rusty Albert like to hang out at the herbarium, where they study specimens under microscopes while surrounded by tall cabinets filled with carefully mounted and labeled plants.

Churchill, who is doing his master's thesis on Nebraska mosses, has personally gathered more than 6,000 specimens which he has added to the herbarium's shelves.

Albert, working toward his doctorate in plant taxonomy, was assistant curator of the herbarium for several years.

Plants have been contributed by botanists, plant hobbyists and student collectors since the herbarium was founded in 1875. Some of them date from as long ago as the 1850's.

Nebraska's herbarium, one of the oldest west of the Mississippi, has one of the best collections of Great Plains plants from the 19th century.

Dr. Charles Bessey, who came to the university in 1884, built up the herbarium while he was making the botany department into one of the most advanced in the nation.

He pioneered the laboratory method of teaching, which required a well-stocked library of specimens for students to examine under the microscope.

Bessey's private collection and plants collected by his students, many of whom became noted botanists themselves, are housed in the herbarium today.

One such noted botanist is P. A. Rydberg, whose "Flora of the Great Plains" — the first attempt to describe and identify all the plants of the palins region — was published in the 1930's.

Kaul and associates at other herbariums in the Dakotas and Kansas are now working together on a new guide to Great Plains plants, more comprehensive than Rydberg's.

"Our region is the only part of the country for which a complete flora has not been published," Kaul said.

The botanists have already constructed a county-by-county atlas of Great Plains plants, using the collections of the states' herbariums as raw data.

Researchers are sometimes surprised to find specimens in the herbarium which were collected by Roscoe Pound, the famous legal scholar who was dean of the Nebraska Law College from 1903-1907. Pound was one of Bessey's students.

Another name in the files which causes a double-take is Flora Sandoz, sister of author Mari Sandoz, who collected hundreds of plants from Sheridan County (the Sandoz family home), and it may still be collecting them on the fruit farm she manages 25 miles south of Gordon.

Kaul emphasizes that the herbarium owes its development to "the private efforts of single-minded people," like Bessey and Kiener, and more recently, Steven Churchill.

Churchill believes that new specimens should continually be added to keep the collection up to date.

Kaul is accepting no new specimens, because there already are hundreds of dried plants stacked in a storeroom, waiting to be processed.

"No herbaria have enough local people interested in them," Kaul said. A way out of financial difficulties may come through cooperation among states.

Kaul would like to see the plant libraries in a four- or five-state region combine their collections.

This would cut costs and have the added advantage of bringing all specimens from a region together in one place.

Since the Univeristy of Kansas at Lawrence has a larger plant collection and better facilities than Nebraska, Kaul would like to see a Great Plains regional herbarium established there.

If that happens, the plants will disappear from Nebraska Hall, and students like Albert and Churchill will have to go to Kansas to use them.

But it may be a way to keep the herbarium from dying.

State's Early Vegetation Mapped

Dr. Robert Kaul has used the Nebraska State Museum's herbarium in conjunction with field studies to produce a map of Nebraska's vegetation patterns before 1850.

We see a much different collection of plants today from what the map describes.

Few plants have become extinct since 1850, but most native plants are much less abundant and more restricted in their range.

Scattered remnants of the original prairie exist today only in areas unsuitable for cultivation.

In eastern Nebraska, the endless forest of grasses has been almost totally replaced by fields of corn, wheat and milo, divided neatly and geometrically by fencerows of trees.

If Lincolnites want to see a small tract of virgin prairie, Kaul suggests they visit the area west of the sled run in Pioneers Park, where some of the rarest plants in the state can be found.

"It's hard to get people interested in prairies," Kaul says. But he wishes every remaining piece of prairie could be preserved.

The Sandhills and western plains haven't changed in appearance as much as eastern Nebraska, but the vegetation has changed.

Cattle take a toll on native plants. Inedible plants like yucca and sagebrush have become more common since 1850, while many edible grasses and flowers are restricted to roadsides where they can't be grazed.

It is a common mistake to think of weeds as more "natural" than crops, but Kaul says that many of our most destructive weeks are not natives. Musk thistle, a major menace to farmers, apparently was introduced right along with the crops. Few native species have become troublesome, he says.

If a cultivated area is allowed to "go back to nature," Kaul believes that the introduced species, both crops and weeds, will eventually give way to native plants, and the prairie will be restored.

Trees survived only along streams and rivers before the white men came, because frequent prairie fires, started by lightning or Indians, burned saplings before they could mature.

Settlers brought an end to the fires. Native trees, such as cottonwoods and willows, are now much more abundant than before.

Nebraska has some unique vegetation areas, which Kaul feels ought to be preserved.

One is along the Niobrara River near Valentine, the only place in the Great Plains where eastern oak woodlands and western pine forests intermingle. Birches are also found here, trees which normally grow much further north.

The salt marshes just north and west of Lincoln represent "the most limited and most endangered vegetation zone in the state," Kaul says.

Some plants grow there which normally occur only along seashores. Plants with names like seablite and glasswort grow only in the saltiest places. These marshes are being drained and may succumb to Lincoln's push to the north and west.

Kaul points out that Nebraska is a young land, compared to other civilized places, like England or India. Nebraskans have not yet had time to completely disrupt the natural vegetation patterns.

But we're working on it.

KAUL . . . wants prairies preserved.

Evangelists Use Magic To Increase Congregation

Jacksonville, Fla. — Two evangelists are sprucing up the old sermons about "hell fire and brimestone" by giving their congregations a whiff of the smoke.

It's just one of the many tricks of magic that Jim Gipson, an ordained Baptist minister, and his brother-in-law, Ed Hargiss, a Baptist layman, employ to keep their audiences' attention.

They've become so popular that they now give two or three performances a week at churches, Sunday schools and civil meetings in north Florida and south Georgia. Some come in chartered buses.

"Why, I've had 185 people saved in just three months," Gipson said.

Gipson's grand finale is the igniting of a scarf, which blazes violently for a few seconds and then turns into a long, black cane. Depending on the situation, the burning scarf represents Moses' burning bush or the fires of hell.

One of the props used by Gipson and Hargiss is a guillotine. It appears to chop off the hand of a volunteer ("and if thy right hand offend thee . . .") and the execution device shows death as the wages of sin.

Another act shows a rope being cut in two, knotted, then miraculously whole again.

"This shows that sin breaks a life, destroys a life and Jesus destroys it," said Hargiss. "The tendency of the individual is to try to restore his own life, but that results in a knot. The individual cannot restore his own life but must resort to Christ."

There also is a floating carpet act in which Gipson uses his 5-year-old son, Jeff, and a goldfish trick, which he developed himself.

Gipson acknowledges that "two or three people have told me flat-out they don't like it (mixing magic and religion) and some preachers are against it."

"But there are two kinds of magic, black magic and white magic. The only true magic is when Christ changes a sinner into a saint," said Gipson.

Kaul is accepting no new specimens, because there already are hundreds of dried plants stacked in a storeroom, waiting to be processed.

"No herbaria have enough local people interested in them," Kaul said. A way out of financial difficulties may come through cooperation among states.

Kaul would like to see the plant libraries in a four- or five-state region combine their collections.

This would cut costs and have the added advantage of bringing all specimens from a region together in one place.

Since the Univeristy of Kansas at Lawrence has a larger plant collection and better facilities than Nebraska, Kaul would like to see a Great Plains regional herbarium established there.

If that happens, the plants will disappear from Nebraska Hall, and students like Albert and Churchill will have to go to Kansas to use them.

But it may be a way to keep the herbarium from dying.

State's Early Vegetation Mapped

Dr. Robert Kaul has used the Nebraska State Museum's herbarium in conjunction with field studies to produce a map of Nebraska's vegetation patterns before 1850.

We see a much different collection of plants today from what the map describes.

Few plants have become extinct since 1850, but most native plants are much less abundant and more restricted in their range.

Scattered remnants of the original prairie exist today only in areas unsuitable for cultivation.

In eastern Nebraska, the endless forest of grasses has been almost totally replaced by fields of corn, wheat and milo, divided neatly and geometrically by fencerows of trees.

If Lincolnites want to see a small tract of virgin prairie, Kaul suggests they visit the area west of the sled run in Pioneers Park, where some of the rarest plants in the state can be found.

"It's hard to get people interested in prairies," Kaul says. But he wishes every remaining piece of prairie could be preserved.

The Sandhills and western plains haven't changed in appearance as much as eastern Nebraska, but the vegetation has changed.

Cattle take a toll on native plants. Inedible plants like yucca and sagebrush have become more common since 1850, while many edible grasses and flowers are restricted to roadsides where they can't be grazed.

It is a common mistake to think of weeds as more "natural" than crops, but Kaul says that many of our most destructive weeks are not natives. Musk thistle, a major menace to farmers, apparently was introduced right along with the crops. Few native species have become troublesome, he says.

If a cultivated area is allowed to "go back to nature," Kaul believes that the introduced species, both crops and weeds, will eventually give way to native plants, and the prairie will be restored.

Trees survived only along streams and rivers before the white men came, because frequent prairie fires, started by lightning or Indians, burned saplings before they could mature.

Settlers brought an end to the fires. Native trees, such as cottonwoods and willows, are now much more abundant than before.

Nebraska has some unique vegetation areas, which Kaul feels ought to be preserved.

One is along the Niobrara River near Valentine, the only place in the Great Plains where eastern oak woodlands and western pine forests intermingle. Birches are also found here, trees which normally grow much further north.

The salt marshes just north and west of Lincoln represent "the most limited and most endangered vegetation zone in the state," Kaul says.

Some plants grow there which normally occur only along seashores. Plants with names like seablite and glasswort grow only in the saltiest places. These marshes are being drained and may succumb to Lincoln's push to the north and west.

Kaul points out that Nebraska is a young land, compared to other civilized places, like England or India. Nebraskans have not yet had time to completely disrupt the natural vegetation patterns.

But we're working on it.

KAUL . . . wants prairies preserved.

Evangelists Use Magic To Increase Congregation

Jacksonville, Fla. — Two evangelists are sprucing up the old sermons about "hell fire and brimestone" by giving their congregations a whiff of the smoke.

It's just one of the many tricks of magic that Jim Gipson, an ordained Baptist minister, and his brother-in-law, Ed Hargiss, a Baptist layman, employ to keep their audiences' attention.

They've become so popular that they now give two or three performances a week at churches, Sunday schools and civil meetings in north Florida and south Georgia. Some come in chartered buses.

"Why, I've had 185 people saved in just three months," Gipson said.

Gipson's grand finale is the igniting of a scarf, which blazes violently for a few seconds and then turns into a long, black cane. Depending on the situation, the burning scarf represents Moses' burning bush or the fires of hell.

One of the props used by Gipson and Hargiss is a guillotine. It appears to chop off the hand of a volunteer ("and if thy right hand offend thee . . .") and the execution device shows death as the wages of sin.

Another act shows a rope being cut in two, knotted, then miraculously whole again.

"This shows that sin breaks a life, destroys a life and Jesus destroys it," said Hargiss. "The tendency of the individual is to try to restore his own life, but that results in a knot. The individual cannot restore his own life but must resort to Christ."

There also is a floating carpet act in which Gipson uses his 5-year-old son, Jeff, and a goldfish trick, which he developed himself.

Gipson acknowledges that "two or three people have told me flat-out they don't like it (mixing magic and religion) and some preachers are against it."

"But there are two kinds of magic, black magic and white magic. The only true magic is when Christ changes a sinner into a saint," said Gipson.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♣	Pass	3♣	Pass
3♥	Pass	4♥

Opening lead — four of diamonds.

Let's assume you're East, defending against four hearts reached in the manner shown. West leads a diamond, which you win with the ace, and you return a diamond, which West wins with the king. Partner continues with the jack and declarer ruffs.

South plays a low heart to dummy's jack, and it is at this point that the outcome hangs in the balance. If you take the ace, declarer makes the contract; if you duck, he goes down.

Let's say you win the jack with the ace, as most players would do. If you return a diamond, declarer would ruff it in dummy and score the rest; if you return anything else, declarer would just as easily make the rest of the tricks.

Now let's assume you duck the jack of hearts, as you should. What can South do now to bring home the contract? Absolutely nothing. If he leads another trump, you win with the ace and play your last diamond. If he ruffs, he will have only one trump left to West's two and must go down one. If he discards on the fourth diamond, he goes down that much sooner.

How can you tell that ducking the jack of hearts is the right play? Well, you can't be certain that it will beat the contract, but all the evidence points in that direction.

The major clue lies in the bidding. South is unlikely to have six hearts, because he would be more inclined to rebid a six-card suit than name a minor suit.

Once you credit South with only five hearts — which means that West has four — you are sure to beat the contract by refusing to win dummy's jack.

What Happened To Class Of '65?

When Time magazine turned its spotlight on the collective body of American high school graduates in 1965, it described the teen-agers as "on the fringe of a golden era."

"Teen-agers today do not think of themselves as 'knights in shining chinos' riding forth on rockets to save the universe," the article said.

"But even the coolest of them know that their careers could be almost that fantastic."

Beneficiaries of a virtual explosion in knowledge, primarily technological, educated by teachers spouting the new doctrine of "inquiry method," these children were touted as smarter and more sophisticated than any generation before.

And then came the war. And drugs, and Eastern religion, the sexual revolution and everything else that came together to tarnish the much heralded "golden era."

What has become of the class of '65?

It is this highly intriguing question that Michael Medved and David Wallenchinsky attempt to comprehend in their new book, "What Really Happened To The Class of '65?" (Random House).

Medved and Wallenchinsky (the latter, the son of author Irving Wallace) were members of the class which graduated eleven yeas ago from Palisades High School in suburban Los Angeles — one of the schools mentioned in the Time article.

In compiling the book, they interviewed 28 of their high school classmates, attempting to discover what had happened to them during the decade following graduation.

It is some story they tell.

When the class of '65 left the upper-middle class environment of "Pali" — with its homecoming dances, football games and popularity contests — it entered a world gone somehow awry.

The old answers no longer sufficed — not for these children of the "golden era." And so they sought new ones.

The stories told by those interviewed are remarkably consistent from one person to the next.

Dropping in and out of colleges, the Paligrads seem to have been torn between a search for stability and a concurrent quest for personal "freedom."

Almost all of them experimented with drugs, sex, Eastern religion. And they became caught up in the "causes" of the day — civil rights and the war in Vietnam.

Looking back on the decade, one class member explains that "What we were preying on in these movements is the fact that American civilization, and the average American, has no philosophy and doesn't know where he's going. So when you come at him with a false certainty, saying, 'I have the answer, I can help you' — he's a sitting duck."

A number of the Pali grads have now come back to the point where they were supposed to be heading in the first place. They have settled down to careers in medicine, law, teaching.

Some are still, apparently, searching.

There is a danger in attempting to define what happened to an entire generation in terms of what happened to a few, as Medved and Wallechinsky have done.

They don't mention how many out of their class of 500 moved easily into life in the suburban mainstream.

But, keeping this in mind, there is real value in this intensely interesting book.

More than anything, it bears out one telling observation made in that Time article written a decade ago.

Many adolescents, the story said, have been left with few guidelines. And their difficulty is not in living up to expectations, but in discovering what they really are.

Woman Wants To Know How To End Family Feud

DEAR ABBY: My mother died 13 years ago, leaving two young daughters, ages 5 and 10. At the time, I was a young widow with two small children, but I took my little sisters into my home to love and raise with my own. Raising four children alone was a hard struggle, but somehow I managed it.

When my sisters were 18 and 23, I married a fantastic bachelor and we moved to another state. I left all my belongings in care of my sisters, instead of putting them in storage.

In the three years that I lived out of town, my Christmas gifts to my sisters were not acknowledged with as much as a "thank you" or a "Merry Christmas."

When I returned to get my belongings, my brother informed me that the girls had SOLD them, pocketed the money and spent it! I was so hurt and disillusioned I became physically ill.

Now that enough time has passed for me to "forgive and forget," the girls have begun sending me notes and cards. I'm still too hurt to answer.

My husband says if I respond, he'll divorce me. (He won't, of course; he just wants me to know how strongly he feels about this matter.) I hate family feuds, Abby, but I'm not ready to face them after what they did. Should I continue to ignore their letters? What should I expect of the girls if they try to make amends? I honestly don't know the answer to this one.

WHAT TO DO

DEAR WHAT: Apparently, you have not talked frankly with your sisters. If you are certain that the girls understood that your belongings were not to be sold, the only way they can make amends is to reimburse you for their full value. I think you will be happier in the long run if you don't close the door on them forever.

Judge Rules Household Water Takes Priority Over Irrigation

Madison (AP) — Concluding that "being without water in a home is next in seriousness to being without air," District Judge Merritt C. Warren Tuesday issued a permanent injunction against an irrigator who deprived his neighbors of water in their homes.

The terms of the injunction banned Donald Eisenmann of rural Madison from lowering the pump in his irrigation well any further and stopped him from interferring with household use of water by his neighbors.

However, the injunction will be lifted, the judge declared, if the neighbors hook up with Madison city water lines or lower the pumps in their domestic wells so they can draw water free from the effects of the irrigation pump.

The injunction will automatically be lifted after three months, the judge said, ordering the neighbors to post a $10,000 post and ordering Eisenmann to pay "reasonable and necessary" costs to the neighbors.

Before announcing his decision after two days of testimony, Judge Warren noted that his ruling "may set a precedent" as irrigators drill more wells.

Nebraska water law is practically devoid of guidance in cases such as this, he said.

"The day is past when one may appropriate water underneath his land . . . without any regard to what effect it may have on the usage by others of that water," Warren declared.

It is "up to the courts to decide what use is reasonable and if it is injurious to others." .

The dispute first entered the court July 13 when a temporary restraining order was filed at the request of Derald and Ruth Prather, Paul and Mary Furley and Robert and Delores Zessin, the parties to the lawsuit.

They claimed that after Eisenmann turned on his irrigation pump July 9, their pumps could no longer draw water for household use.

Roseland Short Of Water

Roseland (AP) — This summer's dry weather is causing some problems for the residents of this tiny Adams County community.

Area farmers have been forced to irrigate heavily this summer, dropping local water tables and drying up wells serving more than a dozen homes.

Residents whose wells are still in good shape are sharing their good fortune with others whose wells have gone dry.

Additionally, several irrigation wells in the area have gone dry, and drillers are very active seeking new water sources.

Local officials have met with representatives of the Farmers Home Administration to discuss plans for a community water system to replace the individual wells.

Lake Swimmer To Try Again

Elyria, Ohio (AP) — Robert Elfers, 41, who came within 10 miles of swimming across Lake Erie before being foiled by cold and hallucinations, says he'll try again next year.

"The cold water was the main thing," he said. "It just tore me up. I was scared to death in the night. I thought about it all day, and then I had to go through that long night. I'm going to be cold for a week."

"I'm not trying just one time and giving up," he said, explaining he hadn't trained at night or in cold water for this first attempt.

He said that next summer he will start to swim in the lake in May and also will swim at night and "build up my resistance to the cold water."

Omahans Challenging District Election Plan

By United Press International

Attorneys for three Omaha residents Wednesday asked the Nebraska Supreme Court to reverse a lower court decision in favor of an election commissioner plan for electing school board members by districts.

Residents Sheldon Barnett, Thelma Barnett and Darlene Clark contend the district elections law enacted during the 1975 session of the Unicameral is unconstitutional.

The attorneys said in written briefs filed with the Supreme Court the plan as devised by Mike Boyle, Douglas County election commissioner, disenfranchises half the voters in the Omaha district.

The Douglas County District Court approved the plan and dismissed the lawsuit.

Boyle was directed by the law Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers managed to get through the Legislature to divide the school district into 12 subdistricts for election and representation purposes.

The plan calls for half the members to be elected to four-year terms beginning in 1978 while six members of the current at-large board will stay on until they are replaced in the 1980 elections.

The attorneys said that means for two years half the people in Omaha will be without representation because half the school board will still be serving an at-large constituency.

"There is no justification for the legislation," the attorneys said. "It clearly violates equal protection and due process (requirements) and therefore should be declared void"

Chambers contended district elections would make the school board more responsive to neighborhood and minority needs.

ADC Recipient Claims Car Not Real Resource

A Lincoln woman receiving Aid to Dependent Children payments has filed suit in U.S. District Court seeking to bar the State Welfare Department from enforcing a rule dealing with eligibility to receive ADC payments.

Dianne Oldham, 2938 Clinton St., said the rule which considers the market value of a motor vehicle as an available resource to ADC recipients is unconstitutional.

Platte County Welfare Director Carol Obershaw told Ms. Oldham she would be ineligible to receive ADC payments and medical assistance payments because she owned a car, according to the lawsuit.

Ms. Oldham said she owns a 1978 car with a market value of $3,394, but in which she claims she only has $300 equity. She contends in the lawsuit that the state rule which considers an automobile an "available resource" creates the presumption that such resources are convertible to cash and readily available.

Named in the suit are Ms. Obershaw, State Welfare Director Eldin Ehrlich, who upheld the Platte County decision, and Assistant Welfare Director Alan Ihms.

Yellow Bird Assault Case Continued Until Sept. 15

Rushville (AP) — The assault case of Bob Yellow Bird, the Nebraska coordinator for the American Indian Movement, was continued Wednesday following a session in Sheridan County District Court.

No plea was entered during Wednesday's arraignment, and Judge Robert Moran continued the case to Sept. 15.

Yellow Bird, 30, of Gordon, is charged with two counts of assault with intent to kill, wound or maim in connection with a May 4 incident outside a Gordon motel in which two other Gordon men were wounded.

Yellow Bird remains free on bond, which was continued at $5,000 on each count.

While in jail earlier, Yellow Bird said he had asked the U.S. Civil Rights Commission and the Community Relations Service of the U.S. Justice Department to probe conditions at the county jail here.

Yellow Bird was transferred to the Scotts Bluff County Jail at Gering after a disturbance here. He said conditions in the jail led to the disturbance and that they constitute cruel and inhuman punishment.

Yellow Bird claimed the cells are unbearably hot, not well ventilated, are overcrowded, and that the sheriff routinely opens prisoners' mail, both personal and privileged

Citrus Growers Hot Over Juice Prices

Orlando, Fla. (AP) — Florida's citrus growers are angry at orange juice processors who have announced their third cut in the wholesale price of concentrated orange juice in three months.

While the processors hope the lower prices will be passed on to the consumer and boost retail sales, the growers say any price reduction is eventually paid for by those who produce the fruit.

Judge Rules Household Water Takes Priority Over Irrigation

Madison (AP) — Concluding that "being without water in a home is next in seriousness to being without air," District Judge Merritt C. Warren Tuesday issued a permanent injunction against an irrigator who deprived his neighbors of water in their homes.

The terms of the injunction banned Donald Eisenmann of rural Madison from lowering the pump in his irrigation well any further and stopped him from interferring with household use of water by his neighbors.

However, the injunction will be lifted, the judge declared, if the neighbors hook up with Madison city water lines or lower the pumps in their domestic wells so they can draw water free from the effects of the irrigation pump.

The injunction will automatically be lifted after three months, the judge said, ordering the neighbors to post a $10,000 post and ordering Eisenmann to pay "reasonable and necessary" costs to the neighbors.

Before announcing his decision after two days of testimony, Judge Warren noted that his ruling "may set a precedent" as irrigators drill more wells.

Nebraska water law is practically devoid of guidance in cases such as this, he said.

"The day is past when one may appropriate water underneath his land . . . without any regard to what effect it may have on the usage by others of that water," Warren declared.

It is "up to the courts to decide what use is reasonable and if it is injurious to others."

Murder Charges Filed In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — First degree murder charges were filed Wednesday against a former Pawnee, Okla., high school football star who stabbed to death one of three hostages he had held for nearly 17 hours.

Deputy Douglas County Atty. Frank Pane said the charges were filed in Omaha Municipal Court against Jimmy Green, 31, in connection with the seige at a tiny South Omaha bar Monday and Tuesday.

Green entered the bar Monday afternoon, and used a knife to hold a man and two women hostage.

Police tried to talk Green out of the bar, but decided to rush the tavern after one of the women hostages escaped unharmed and the body of the male hostage was seen lying in a pool of blood on the floor of the bar.

The man, Nathan H. "Pepsi Joe" Culbertson, 59, died of multiple stab wounds, while Mrs. Rosemarie Akiens, 38, wife of the tavern owner, suffered throat cuts. She was listed in fair condition at a local hospital.

Green was not injured as he was wrestled into submission by Deputy Police Chief Joe Friend and three members of the Omaha Police Division's Emergency Reaction Team. He remained in a local hospital Wednesday, where he was undergoing a psychiatric examination and evaluation.

In addition to the first-degree murder charges, Pane also filed charges of burglary and stabbing with intent to kill, wound or maim.

Pane said the burglary charges were filed in connection with a break in at a home near the bar, and that more charges will probably be filed later this week after he completes a review of reports filed by investigating offiers.

Pane mentioned the possibility of filing kidnaping and assault charges against Green.

Pane said no court proceedings in the case have been filed.

Green became a drifter after a two-year hitch in the Army and had been working in the Omaha area for an independent roofing contractor from Oklahoma.

The contractor said Green had recently quit his job.

Nebraska Paleontologist Quoted By Russians

Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz, paleontologist and executive secretary of the Nebraska Academy of Sciences, was quoted in the Aug. 7 issue of Moscow News.

The Soviet tabloid, which is published primarily for foreigners, ran an article from the June issue of Reader's Digest entitled "Where Did the Animals Go?" by James A. Michener.

Michener had consulted with Schultz, who is also research associate at the University of Nebraska Museum. The article dealt with the disappearance of an assortment of creatures that inhabited the North American continent years ago.

Word of the republication was brought back to Lincoln by Dr. Richard E. Lonsdale, chairman of the NU geography department, who was in the Soviet Union for six weeks attending the International Geographical Union congress.

Japanese, Auburn Firms To Make Farm Equipment

By United Press International

An Auburn industrial and farm equipment manufacturer and an Osaka, Japan, farm equipment manufacturing firm have signed a joint venture agreement, the Nebraska Department of Economic Development announced Tuesday.

John Skaggs, president of the Auburn Machine Works, said the new firm will be known as Auburn Consolidated Industries, Inc. Skaggs will retain controlling interest and continue as president with responsibility for the Auburn plant.

The Japanese company, Kubota, Ltd., is a multi-line manufacturer of agricultural and environmental equipment with current sales of $1.6 billion annually.

It entered the American tractor market in 1969 and has more than 600 dealerships in the United States.

The new company will be involved in research and development of tractor features it believes would better meet the American market.

Murder Charges Filed In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — First degree murder charges were filed Wednesday against a former Pawnee, Okla., high school football star who stabbed to death one of three hostages he had held for nearly 17 hours.

Deputy Douglas County Atty. Frank Pane said the charges were filed in Omaha Municipal Court against Jimmy Green, 31, in connection with the seige at a tiny South Omaha bar Monday and Tuesday.

Green entered the bar Monday afternoon, and used a knife to hold a man and two women hostage.

Police tried to talk Green out of the bar, but decided to rush the tavern after one of the women hostages escaped unharmed and the body of the male hostage was seen lying in a pool of blood on the floor of the bar.

The man, Nathan H. "Pepsi Joe" Culbertson, 59, died of multiple stab wounds, while Mrs. Rosemarie Akiens, 38, wife of the tavern owner, suffered throat cuts. She was listed in fair condition at a local hospital.

Green was not injured as he was wrestled into submission by Deputy Police Chief Joe Friend and three members of the Omaha Police Division's Emergency Reaction Team. He remained in a local hospital Wednesday, where he was undergoing a psychiatric examination and evaluation.

In addition to the first-degree murder charges, Pane also filed charges of burglary and stabbing with intent to kill, wound or maim.

Pane said the burglary charges were filed in connection with a break in at a home near the bar, and that more charges will probably be filed later this week after he completes a review of reports filed by investigating offiers.

Pane mentioned the possibility of filing kidnaping and assault charges against Green.

Pane said no court proceedings in the case have been filed.

Green became a drifter after a two-year hitch in the Army and had been working in the Omaha area for an independent roofing contractor from Oklahoma.

The contractor said Green had recently quit his job.

Nebraska Paleontologist Quoted By Russians

Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz, paleontologist and executive secretary of the Nebraska Academy of Sciences, was quoted in the Aug. 7 issue of Moscow News.

The Soviet tabloid, which is published primarily for foreigners, ran an article from the June issue of Reader's Digest entitled "Where Did the Animals Go?" by James A. Michener.

Michener had consulted with Schultz, who is also research associate at the University of Nebraska Museum. The article dealt with the disappearance of an assortment of creatures that inhabited the North American continent years ago.

Word of the republication was brought back to Lincoln by Dr. Richard E. Lonsdale, chairman of the NU geography department, who was in the Soviet Union for six weeks attending the International Geographical Union congress.

Japanese, Auburn Firms To Make Farm Equipment

By United Press International

An Auburn industrial and farm equipment manufacturer and an Osaka, Japan, farm equipment manufacturing firm have signed a joint venture agreement, the Nebraska Department of Economic Development announced Tuesday.

John Skaggs, president of the Auburn Machine Works, said the new firm will be known as Auburn Consolidated Industries, Inc. Skaggs will retain controlling interest and continue as president with responsibility for the Auburn plant.

The Japanese company, Kubota, Ltd., is a multi-line manufacturer of agricultural and environmental equipment with current sales of $1.6 billion annually.

It entered the American tractor market in 1969 and has more than 600 dealerships in the United States.

The new company will be involved in research and development of tractor features it believes would better meet the American market.

Auburn Machine Works, established in 1928, produces trenching equipment and industrial saws.

Library Fragmentation Discussed

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Government Committee discussed Wednesday whether state library services for the blind are administratively fragmented and failing to achieve full potential impact.

Sen. Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia, committee chairman, scheduled another public hearing Oct. 15 on related Nebraska Library Commission operations before drafting any final recommendations to the 1977 Unicameral.

Two interim study resolutions, LR126 from the committee and LR133 from Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston, focus on restructuring the Library Commission or redistributing its functions.

The committee has toured Iowa library facilities for the blind, and visited the Nebraska home-base library in Lincoln Wednesday morning.

Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler said "the feeling is (that) the services are too fragmented in Nebraska." The Education Department offers vocational rehabilitation programs. The Department of Public Institutions operates a rehabilitation services division for the visually impaired. And the Library Commission handles Braille and recorded materials, also via six regional libraries.

But commission services seem to be "primarily recreational, and not educational and training oriented," Fowler said. Iowa has merged in a $1 million Des Moines facility the functions that are split in Nebraska.

The hearing will examine an idea to move services from the commission to DPI, Fowler said. Gothenberg Sen. Herb Duis noted the committee isn't envisioning a "physical move," but an administrative switch.

Koch said the National Federation for the Blind believes it's the "wrong thing" to put any services under Library Commission control. Blair Sen. Walter George raised the issue that "certain health care aspects do not belong" in commission operations.

Fowler also noted a physical space problem, forcing the commission to throw out Braille magazines after a certain use period, because there's insufficient room for storage. And compared to Iowa, Koch said, the Nebraska library for the blind garners little volunteer help. Iowa has a separate Commission for the Blind.

Koch said Nebraska's library services for [illegible] aren't bad. Rather, "We don't think it's quite getting the emphasis it should" on services for appropriations. For example, Iowa broadcasts radio programs reading newspaper stories.

But Koch noted the Library Commission has never approached legislators for beefed-up funding. And he questioned whether it is getting information out adequately, for instance, to serve those who have recently become blind.

Nebraska's budget of approximately $700,000 in virtually all state funds is small compared to Iowa's, where 80% of the budget is federal money. "They go after it," he said.

Committee members said the Nebraska library serves fewer than 3,000 blind or visually impaired persons, compared to double that number in Iowa, even though the neighboring state population is 2.5 million compared to Nebraska's 1.5 million.

Sen. George expressed concern that materials offered through local libraries wouldn't be discontinued in any operational change.

A recent legislative attempt to revise library operations failed.

State Patrol Releases Three Victims' Names

Officials Wednesday released identification of the three persons killed Tuesday in Nebraska traffic accidents near Humphrey and Dunbar.

The State Patrol said that Randall J. Bender, 14, the driver, and Larry Meyer, 15, both of Cornlea, were killed Tuesday night in a one-car crash about a mile west of Humphrey.

The patrol said the car apparently went out of control and rolled, with both young men being thrown out.

A truck driver from Kansas, identified by Otoe County Sheriff Russ Seals as Gregory Jay Zimmerman, 20, of Great Bend, was killed Tuesday when his vehicle was struck by a Burlington Northern freight train at a crossing on Highway 2 in the Dunbar vicinity.

Injured in the crash, Seals said, was Kenneth Schepman, 19, of Holy Rood, Kan. Seals said he was taken to a Syracuse hospital for treatment, but was not seriously hurt.

The 18-car train was engineered by Charles Smith of Lincoln, and was bound from Nebraska City to Lincoln when the accident occurred.

The deaths raised the Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year to 250, compared with 226 a year ago.

Withdrawl Motion Filed For Change Of Venue

Nebraska City (AP) — Attys. Richard Hoch and John Steinheider filed a motion Wednesday withdrawing a request for a change of venue for the murder trial of Duane Wilken.

He is charged with second degree murder in the death of his wife, Sharron, on April 10.

Wilken is being held in Otoe County Jail on $100,000 bond, pending the trial.

The change of venue motion filed by Wilken's attorneys had stated that publicity about the crime had jeopardized his right to a fair trial in the county.

The date for his trial will be set at the District Court's next docket call on Sept. 10.

Fairbury Campus Boss Dumps Past, Looks Ahead

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — At old and prestigious College of William and Mary, Dan Gerber spent seven years teaching the abstracts of "higher education administration." For seven years he yearned for the practical.

With the start of classes this week at the Southeast Community College's Fairbury campus, he's in practicality up to his armpits. But the affable Ohio native, 37, is on top and intending to stay there

The third campus director here in three years, Dr Gerber says with all the conviction he can muster that "I was hired to administer a campus, not to preside over its closing " Top priority will go to the problems of waning enrollment and Fairbury-Beatrice unification

"I don't think there's a college around which hasn't had its share of hassles," said the newcomer "But this is a viable campus which will more than hold its own We mainly need to stop looking back and start looking ahead "

Handed the extra assignment of resurrecting Beatrice's vacated Pershing campus, Gerber also inherits a role in smoothing relations between Fairbury and Beatrice Pershing, just acquired by SeTech after two years of squabbling, is slated to be a satellite under Fairbury administration.

"The real problem to overcome — and I hope we're already on the way — is the highly disruptive 'either/or' concept of the two campuses," said the director. "If we can begin to think 'both/and,' we can really move ahead cooperatively."

Gerber foresees a continued "high-quality and traditional" liberal arts program at Fairbury, with Pershing geared mostly to "career-oriented programs." Hopefully, the combination will add up to "one truly comprehensive community college primarily serving the counties of Jefferson, Gage and Thayer and cities of Fairbury and Beatrice."

If this fall's Fairbury enrollment peaks at 280 as predicted, the figure will represent a slight decline from last year. But Gerber said this was predictable in view of lingering campus uncertainty in past months

With wife Virgia, a native of Milford, the administrator's move to Nebraska was partly the result of family lobbying But the state's spaciousness and "quality style of life" also fit his personal preferences.

The couple had met while both were students at Eastern Mennonite College in Harrisonburg, Va They have two sons, Tim, 15, and Jared, 11.

"We received a dozen to 15 letters from Fairbury people before we ever moved here," said Gerber. "When you hear from folks you've never even met, it creates a really favorable impression about a community "

NU Administration Said Thinking Of $12 Million Building Request

By The Associated Press

University of Nebraska system administrators are discussing a fiscal 1977-78 capital construction budget request in the $12 million range despite depleted state building revenues, according to a university-connected source

The source, speaking only with the assurance of anonymity, indicated the $12 million building and renovation figure would be proposed at the next meeting of the university Board of Regents

Although the projects involved weren't listed, it was learned that fire safety code revisions systemwide and the proposed health and physical education facility at the Omaha campus were among the priorities

There were also indications that the $12 million figure actually would commit over the next two or three fiscal years a total of $48 million in construction or renovation funds if the legislature approved

During that period, however, figures compiled by the legislative fiscal office and the budget division of the Department of Administrative Services show currently-anticipated construction revenues are committed

According to computer run data, the $12 4 million expected from federal revenue sharing for building is earmarked for previously authorized projects

Also committed, according to a computer printout in the legislative fiscal office, are these totals over the next three fiscal years $10 8 million, $9 3 million and $9 6 million, all in cigarette tax construction revenues

Over the following seven years, half the anticipated cigarette tax funded construction revenues are committed to previously authorized building projects

Because of the drain over the next three years, the Unicameral may face the necessity of raising the cigarette tax or using general fund money for building if it authorizes new construction next year

The cigarette tax in Nebraska currently amounts to 13 cents per pack, eight of which goes to the general fund and a nickel to the construction fund

Word of the university administrators' building hopes and needs comes on the heels of a fiscal analyst s report to the Appropriations Committee that authorized construction budgeting since 1970 totals more than $148 million

The report showed that more than 3 5 million square feet in new state-owned space was involved in those authorizations, increasing total state space to more than 15 million square feet, for a jump of 23 per cent

Omaha Council Overrides Mayor; Ups Tax 1.5 Mills

Omaha (AP) — The City Council voted Tuesday to set the property tax at 27 1 mills an increase of 1 5 mills, and did so by overriding the vetoes of Mayor Edward Zorinsky

The figures do no include the levies of Douglas County, the schools and other taxing bodies The city's share is roughly one-fourth of the property tax bill paid by Omahans

Zorinsky, who recently had sought a one-mill increase instead of the 1 5 mills he originally proposed, said he is disappointed with the council's action

He said he thought before the council overturned all but two of his nine vetoes that he had enough support to withstand council action

The raise puts the city at its general fund levy ceiling

The action will increase the city tax on a $15,000 house by $2 62 to $142 28, by $3 50 on a $20,000 house, to $189 70 and by $5 25 on a $30,000 house, to $284 55

Fairbury Campus Boss Dumps Past, Looks Ahead

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — At old and prestigious College of William and Mary, Dan Gerber spent seven years teaching the abstracts of "higher education administration." For seven years he yearned for the practical.

With the start of classes this week at the Southeast Community College's Fairbury campus, he's in practicality up to his armpits. But the affable Ohio native, 37, is on top and intending to stay there.

The third campus director here in three years, Dr. Gerber says with all the conviction he can muster that "I was hired to administer a campus, not to preside over its closing." Top priority will go to the problems of waning enrollment and Fairbury-Beatrice unification.

"I don't think there's a college around which hasn't had its share of hassles," said the newcomer. "But this is a viable campus which will more than hold its own. We mainly need to stop looking back and start looking ahead."

Handed the extra assignment of resurrecting Beatrice's vacated Pershing campus, Gerber also inherits a role in smoothing relations between Fairbury and Beatrice. Pershing, just acquired by SeTech after two years of squabbling, is slated to be a satellite under Fairbury administration.

"The real problem to overcome — and I hope we're already on the way — is the highly disruptive 'either/or' concept of the two campuses," said the director. "If we can begin to think 'both/and,' we can really move ahead cooperatively."

Gerber foresees a continued "high-quality and traditional" liberal arts program at Fairbury, with Pershing geared mostly to "career-oriented programs." Hopefully, the combination will add up to "one truly comprehensive community college primarily serving the counties of Jefferson, Gage and Thayer and cities of Fairbury and Beatrice."

If this fall's Fairbury enrollment peaks at 280 as predicted, the figure will represent a slight decline from last year. But Gerber said this was predictable in view of lingering campus uncertainty in past months.

With wife Virgia, a native of Milford, the administrator's move to Nebraska was partly the result of family lobbying. But the state's spaciousness and "quality style of life" also fit his personal preferences.

The couple had met while both were students at Eastern Mennonite College in Harrisonburg, Va. They have two sons, Tim, 15, and Jared, 11.

"We received a dozen to 15 letters from Fairbury people before we ever moved here," said Gerber. "When you hear from folks you've never even met, it creates a really favorable impression about a community."

NU Administration Said Thinking Of $12 Million Building Request

By The Associated Press

University of Nebraska system administrators are discussing a fiscal 1977-78 capital construction budget request in the $12 million range despite depleted state building revenues, according to a university-connected source.

The source, speaking only with the assurance of anonymity, indicated the $12 million building and renovation figure would be proposed at the next meeting of the university Board of Regents.

Although the projects involved weren't listed, it was learned that fire safety code revisions systemwide and the proposed health and physical education facility at the Omaha campus were among the priorities.

There were also indications that the $12 million figure actually would commit over the next two or three fiscal years a total of $48 million in construction or renovation funds if the legislature approved.

During that period, however, figures compiled by the legislative fiscal office and the budget division of the Department of Administrative Services show currently-anticipated construction revenues are committed.

According to computer run data, the $12.4 million expected from federal revenue sharing for building is earmarked for previously authorized projects.

Also committed, according to a computer printout in the legislative fiscal office, are these totals over the next three fiscal years: $10.8 million, $9.3 million and $9.6 million, all in cigarette tax construction revenues.

Over the following seven years, half the anticipated cigarette tax funded construction revenues are committed to previously authorized building projects.

Because of the drain over the next three years, the Unicameral may face the necessity of raising the cigarette tax or using general fund money for building if it authorizes new construction next year.

The cigarette tax in Nebraska currently amounts to 13 cents per pack, eight of which goes to the general fund and a nickel to the construction fund.

Word of the university administrators' building hopes and needs comes on the heels of a fiscal analyst's report to the Appropriations Committee that authorized construction budgeting since 1970 totals more than $148 million.

The report showed that more than 3.5 million square feet in new state-owned space was involved in those authorizations, increasing total state space to more than 15 million square feet, for a jump of 23 per cent.

Omaha Council Overrides Mayor; Ups Tax 1.5 Mills

Omaha (AP) — The City Council voted Tuesday to set the property tax at 27.1 mills, an increase of 1.5 mills, and did so by overriding the vetoes of Mayor Edward Zorinsky.

The figures do no include the levies of Douglas County, the schools and other taxing bodies. The city's share is roughly one-fourth of the property tax bill paid by Omahans.

Zorinsky, who recently had sought a one-mill increase instead of the 1.5 mills he originally proposed, said he is disappointed with the council's action.

He said he thought before the council overturned all but two of his nine vetoes that he had enough support to withstand council action.

The raise puts the city at its general fund levy ceiling.

The action will increase the city tax on a $15,000 house by $2.62 to $142.28; by $3.50 on a $20,000 house, to $189.70 and by $5.25 on a $30,000 house, to $284.55.

Running Water Coming Soon

"There's an old saying
That no one can deny,
You never miss the water
Til the well runs dry."

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Gladstone — Mrs. Henry Elgert can still spiel off dozens of rhymes from her girlhood, but that one seems to come easiest. She's been missing that water for such a long time.

Never in her 85 years has she known the luxury of a full-running faucet and unrationed water. Soon, thanks to fancy-titled Little Blue Public Water Supply Project No. 1, that's about to change.

No more worries about the cistern going dry. No more nuisance of hauling drinking water from Fairbury, seven miles east. And maybe — just maybe — a new automatic washer instead of weekly trips to the laundromat.

It may be mid-November before they actually have water, but the 125 potential users are already getting some thrill as the 80-mile plastic pipeline reaches each doorstep. Especially grateful are the 10 or so signers in tiny Gladstone, which lacks both water quantity and quality.

"We've tried drilling wells and got nothing, so all 30 years we've lived here we've had to carry water from neighbors or haul it from Fairbury," said Mrs. Elgert and her husband of 66 years. Not given to complaining, they recall having "pretty good water, but not the faucet kind" on a farm where they reared 11 children.

Poor wells in the Gladstone-Gilead area completely preclude livestock operations for farmers. Richard Dux, who was district chairman until hired as its building inspector, said even bath water is a problem with some rural families.

The Jefferson-Thayer water district, stretching from Fairbury to four miles west of Gilead, thus was created under sponsorship of the Little Blue Natural Resources District. The village of Gilead is also included, though its situation is less critical than Gladstone's.

"We've been in the process of organizing since January of 1974 and studied the problem long before that," said Dux, for whom a successor has yet to be named. "Though we're financed by a 40-year FHA loan the same as most other districts, we're the first in the area under an NRD."

Unlike most other rural water districts, Little Blue No. 1 is not sinking any wells. Fairbury, which boasts of having one of the state's best supplies, is contracting to provide the water. A 50,000-gallon storage tower is being erected a mile south of Gladstone.

According to Mrs. Jim Kinzie, secretary for the district and another Gladstone resident, a $10 monthly minimum (for 1,000 gallons) will be charged users. The Elgerts were among the most eager signers.

"We're a nice quiet little village of 13 or 14 families and three businesses," said Mrs. Elgert. "There was a time Gladstone had a bank and lumber yard and two groceries. Who knows . . . with water, we may get to be a town again."

Omaha Woman Seeks Access To Sealed Records Of Adoption

Omaha (UPI) — A woman told by her adoptive parents that she was part American Indian has filed suit to open sealed records of her adoption. If successful she may get a share of a multimillion dollar tribal settlement.

Bonnie Eva McKain, 25, filed suit in Douglas County District Court. She was adopted by a Sarpy County couple when she was less than a year old. Mrs. McKain's lawsuit notes she has been told by her adoptive parents she has one-quarter Blackfoot Indian blood. As a result of that, she may be entitled to part of a recent $5.6 million government settlement with the tribe.

Mrs. McKain's attorney, Steven Greenberg of Omaha, said the suit seeks to open the record only for the adopted adult, not for the biological or adoptive parents or the public. It asks the Nebraska law on sealing adoption records be declared unconstitutional on grounds that adopted person is denied due process because the person never is consulted.

Greenberg said Mrs. McKain's case was the first filed in the United States although a New York City group plans a similar suit. The state has refused to open the records for her.

Under the current statutes on adoption, the suit contends, a child placed up for adoption is treated "like a Negro slave on the auction block of a Southern city before 1865."

Newspaper clippings entered as evidence in the suit noted a recent case in the East about a 23-year-old man who unknowingly married his 41-year-old mother, and the relationship was unknown to both until the woman gave birth.

Greenberg said the right to the adoption records "begins with birth, not with the adoption, and that the later adult should not have to go into court to see the record."

When Mrs. McKain was adopted, a new birth certificate was made up leaving the correct birth date, but the names and pertinent data of the adopting parents were placed on the certificate.

Under law, the original records can only be opened after court action.

Husker Fan's Hat Returned— 4 Years Later

The red felt hat that was swiped from the head of Victor Wendelin four years ago at a Nebraska-Iowa State game in Ames, found its way back to Big Red Country this week.

It came packed in a box with a note from Doak Medchill, who said he was given the hat by a friend.

"Needless to say, we were young and foolish freshmen out on the loose for the first time," Medchill wrote.

Wendelin, a 61-year-old retired executive of the Wendelin Bakery Co., said he has since only worn a hat to home games. But he said he might take it with him once again Sept. 11 to Baton Rouge, La. for the Huskers' opening game of 1976.

Planning Unit Delays Action On 2 Centers

Action on two proposed South Lincoln shopping centers was delayed for 30 days Wednesday by the City-County Planning Commission.

Pushing for the delay was member Lou Shackelford, who argued that within the next few weeks important decisions will be on the city's plans for future growth.

"With as many important meetings as we've got coming up next week" on land use and transportation planning, I don't think we should make a decision today, Shackelford said.

The commission spent several minutes discussing whether they could take the move without opening the door for the developers to invoke a clause in the city's claim the commissions action must legally be interpeted as a recommendation of approval.

The commission's fears apparently were allayed, however, when attorney Dave Pierson, representing Hub Hall, said that "None of us is so political naive . . ." that we are going to jump up and take it to the council.

Attorney Dick Wood, representing John F. O'Neill agreed with Pierson, but said his client favored action at the Wednesday meeting.

Hall is seeking approval of a regional shopping center at 56th and Old Cheney. O'Neill is seeking approval of one at 27th and Pine Lake Rd., which would be accompanied by the construction of apartments.

In other action Wednesday the commission took the following actions:

Plats

—approved the preliminary and final plat of Colonial Hills 10th Add., located one-fourth mile north of Old Cheney Rd. and about one-fourth mile west of 70th.

—approved the preliminary plat of Lohse Add., located about one-half mile south of Pioneers Blvd. and east of 70th St.

—approved the preliminary plat of Park View Estates, located east of the intersection of S. 56th and Prescott Ave.

—deferred action until next month on preliminary plat of Reller Add., located northwest of Cornhusker Hwy. and west of 40th.

—approved final plat of Foxhollow Add., located south of Van Dorn at S. 74th.

—approved final plat of Northwest Territory, located west of intersection of N. 1st St. and Adams.

Miscellaneous

—deferred action one month on proposed annexation of land generally between 27th and 40th north of Cornhusker Hwy.

—asked City Council to review possibility of waiving requirement of 100-foot-right-of-way requirements on major streets in some cases.

—approved amendment to Goals and Policies allowing shopping centers in community unit plans if Comprehensive Plan shows one in the area.

Zone Changes

—deferred action one month on request by John Rineck from B two-family to I commercial at northeast corner of 1st and L.

—denied request by Winfield Scott from AA rural and public use to H-2 highway commercial at north side of Pine Lake Rd., east of S. 56th St.

—deferred action one month on request by planning director from A-2 single family to D multiple at 56th and Starr.

—approved request by Herbert H. Heumann from D multiple to E-1 multiple and from E multiple to E-1 multiple on north side of M and east of 18th.

—denied request by Glenn W. Chase from B two-family to C multiple and request by Bruce Forney from B two-family to D multiple at 32nd and Starr.

—denied request by Margaret Opp from D multiple to I commercial at northwest corner of Prescott and 47th.

—denied request by Irene Christensen from A-2 single family to C multiple family on west side Cotner Blvd. between Lexington and Francis.

—denied request to amend text of zoning ordiance dealing with I commercial district.

—approved special permit by Ivan R. Ingwerson to erect wood entrance marker with name Pinehurst to identify new condominium development at Pioneers Blvd. and Ridgeway Dr.

—approved special permit and preliminary plat of The Meadows, located between Old Cheney Rd. and Hwy. 77.

—denied vacation of M St. from S.W. 20th to Coddington.

Omaha Still Seeks School Bus Drivers

Omaha (AP) — With less than two weeks before the start of court-ordered desegregation in the Omaha School District, school officials are still looking for the bus drivers they'll need.

So far, only 77 bus drivers have been licensed.

Fred Downs, general manager of City Bus Services, said he wants about 200 licensed drivers to handle the OPS business and other accounts.

But Downs isn't panicking yet — 55 applicants are in the process of taking courses to qualify for licenses.

"We've got our fingers crossed we'll be able to make it," Downs said.

School officials said driver shortages have cropped up in nearly every other large city going into desegregation programs.

Advertisements for potential drivers have been running on local radio stations and in newspapers for the past several weeks.

'Star Trek' Is Movie Subject

Los Angeles (AP) — "Star Trek" is finally on-target as a feature movie.

Paramount Pictures announced it will "immediately activate production" of a large-scale film based on the now-classic television series. Gene Roddenberry, who created "Star Trek" and ushered it through three TV seasons, will serve as producer, with Jerry Isenberg as executive producer.

Alan Scott and Chris Bryant are writing the screenplay, which Paramount hopes will start production next spring.

Same Story At KSU: Strong Defense With Shaky Offense

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Manhattan, Kan. — Kansas State wasn't a very good offensive football team last season. The Wildcats scored only 21 points against Big Eight Conference opposition.

On paper, it doesn't appear that much changed, but Coach Ellis Rainsberger is changing the Wildcats into an option-type team, featuring the use of more slot-I formations with two wide receivers.

"We're doing this because of the speed of our quarterbacks," Rainsberger told Big Eight Skywriters Wednesday. And, although the quarterbacks have good speed, they also lack experience. Therein lies the problem.

Kansas State lost quarterback Joe Hatcher when he underwent surgery to remove a kidney after an injury suffered in the spring game. "It took us two months to get over that," Rainsberger said.

Hatcher would have given the Wildcats an experienced leader to operate behind an improved offensive line. How, though, K-State is planning to go with Billy Swanson, who has college experience gained at Utah State where he started all games as a sophomore.

Swanson transferred to Kansas State and sat out last year while the Wildcats suffered through a 3-8 season that was respectable only because of a good defensive team.

Most of that defense returns, giving hopes that a better offense could enable the Wildcats to challenge for a few Big Eight victories. Rainsberger said there are "four or five teams we should compete with strongly."

Defense, however, will be the strength of the Wildcats. "Defense probably is the true strength of our football team," Rainsberger said. "We do have experience and speed even though we're not overly large."

The defensive strength is at linebacker where Gary Spani and Carl Pennington return. Their skills were so outstanding that teams began double-team blocking them last season.

"As a result, we've gone to slants to compensate and free our down linemen when the linebackers are double teamed," Rainsberger said.

Kansas State will be bigger, stronger and faster on the offensive unit, but Rainsberger says the offensive tackles are not as big as he would like to enable them to match up with the big defensive tackles in the Big Eight.

The best tackle on the team, according to Rainsberger, is Phil Noel, who played high school and junior college football with Nebraska tight end candiate Mark Dufresne. "Phil is 6-5 and 255 pounds and that's what I would call a medium sized tackle in the Big Eight," Rainsberger said.

Noel said he and Dufresne, who is now Nebraska's No. 2 tight end, had the best double-team block on the Pacific Coast at Ventura. "I'd set up the tackle and Mark would clean him out," Noel said. Unfortunately, K-State doesn't use as many double-team blocks on defensive tackles as the Ventura team did.

"We're going to run more options and use finesse-type and read option blocks," Rainsberger said.

This is because quarterbacks Swanson and No. 2 QB Roy Jones have good speed. Jones runs a 4.5 in the 40 while Swanson is 4.7.

"We couldn't move the ball last year because of the inexperienced line," a confident Swanson said. Swanson, incidentally, suffered one of his most embarrassing moments when he led Utah State to a 72-3 loss against Oklahoma two years ago. In the game, Swanson was knocked out in the third quarter.

Swanson comes from a very successful high school program at Mishawaka, Ind., where his team ran the same offense K-State will be using this season. The four-year record there was 38-2.

"We're going to show people some things this year," Swanson said. "I like the option attack because we will have three different people handling the ball — the fullback, tailback and slot back, and I can stop and throw the ball as well."

Rainsberger calls Swanson a player with good, but not outstanding speed, a good thrower, an excellent leader and a tough youngster. If he continues in this vein, he'll do a good job."

Rainsberger also is high on freshman Doane Howard, who was voted the outstanding player in the Kansas Shrine All-Star game.

"He always has been considered a good quarterback prospect," Rainsberger said. "We look to Duane, not early, but later in the season to be a leader."

Howard is 6-3 and 195 from Derby, Kan., and is suited to the Wildcats' option attack.

Horchem, whose great uncle, Willard "Bill" Horchem, played center for Nebraska in 1934, is a safetyman and likes the position.

Horchem missed all of last season because of a farm accident early in July before enrolling at K-State. He broke a left elbow when a nylon rope chain snapped and the hook hit his arm. He was assisting in trying to free a stuck tractor on his parents' 1,500-acre wheat farm in western Kansas.

In addition to linebacking, Rainsberger thinks the Wildcats have in Perry Viers and Vic Chandler "as good a defensive end pair as there is in the Big Eight."

He calls Roy Shine, 6-2, 245 senior, the best down lineman on defense and he likes the work of soph middle guard Dave Kuklenski.

Kuklenski is running ahead of senior Theopilis Bryant, who came back with a chest cold and still is nursing himself back to good health.

The work is cut out for Kansas State, which opens here on Sept. 11 with Brigham Young, a team that likes to throw the football. The Wildcats' other non-league games are against Texas A&M, Wake Forest and Florida State.

NFL: Lottery Hurts Image

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A federal judge Wednesday took under advisement a request by the National Football League for an injuction to block Delaware's proposed professional football lottery.

U. S. Judge Walter Stapleton indicated at the end of the twohour hearing that he will probably rule on Friday. The lottery is scheduled to begin next Wednesday.

An attorney representing the N F L , G. Norman Veasey, claimed during the hearing that the lottery would tarnish the image of the NFL.

But James Mulligan, representing Delaware, said the lottery is similar to office football pools, still illegal.

Mulligan called it "a simple extension of the old normal football pool that millions of people have been playing for years. It would cause no irreparable harm to the NFL."

Veasey claimed the lottery would mean "the public perception of the game would change from the scoreboard to the tote board. A missed pass in the end zone would raise cynicism" about whether the player had bought a lottery ticket.

Mulligan, however, said that if the lottery is held "the NFL will be alive and well and prospering come Super Bowl time. The stadiums will be full, we'll still be listening to Howard Cosell on Monday night and the Super Bowl will be just as anticlimactic as ever."

Veasey said the lottery should be stopped because the NFL had not given its approval for its name to be used, and he said such a use would hurt the NFL through "forced association with gambling."

In reply, Mulligan said no such approval is needed because the game scores are "in the public domain" once they are published or aired by the media.

Betting has been going on for years in Las Vegas on NFL games with no apparent harm to the game, Mulligan claimed. But Veasey argued that Las Vegas caters to "professional gamblers" and the Delaware game would introduce a whole new element—"amateur gamblers"—into betting on the games.

Osborne Notes Encouragement From Films

By DAVE SITTLER

Tom Osborne admitted Wednesday, that the journey to success may not be as long as first anticipated, but the road still looks mighty bumpy.

Following Nebraska's first scrimmage of fall camp Tuesday, Osborne had observed that the Cornhuskers appeared to be a million miles away from becoming a good football team.

But after studying the films of the skirmish Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, the Husker head coach said he saw some encouraging signs.

"Overall, the effort and hitting was good," Osborne said. "The defense looked pretty good although a few plays broke that probably shouldn't have."

Osborne said the coaches still needed more sessions of film watching before any decisions will be made on promotions or demotions on the depth chart.

"We haven't finished grading the films and we don't want to make any rash decisions, said Osborne, who plans to release the new depth chart Thursday morning. "I don't think there will be a lot of changes on what we've seen, but there probably will be a few."

Agreeing with Osborne that the team has a long way to go, was defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin. But Kiffin said he was encouraged after looking at the films of the first scrimmage.

"I think it's one of the better first scrimmages we've ever had on defense," Kiffin said. "But let me emphasize, that we did not go against the No. 1 offense. That makes quite a difference."

Kiffin said that when he viewed the film he was pleased to see "eleven men converging on the ball. That's what we preach around here. We're very pleased with that phase."

Noting that the defense is trying to replace six starters, Kiffin said he believes there is the talent on hand to fill the gaps. But he quickly added, "if we get overconfident we can go downhill pretty fast."

Kiffin pointed to the play of defensive ends George Andrews and Tony Samuels, who are battling for the starting job which was vacated by the graduation of all-Big Eight performer Bob Martin.

"They are pushin each other pretty hard," Kiffin said. "They have some big shoes to fill, but they think they can do it, and so do we."

Osborne had some good news and some bad news following Wednesday's afternoon practice, as the Huskers continue to work out twice daily.

The good news involved the academic status of starters Monte Anthony and Dodie Donnell and backup guard Stan Waldemore. Osborne said the trio had cleared academic hurdles and appeared to be in good standing for the upcoming season.

A fourth player who was questionable because of classroom work, wingback Kenny Brown, was part of the bad news. Although he worked out with the squad for the first time Tuesday afternoon, Brown is still questionable, according to Osborne.

"We'll know about Brown in two or three days," Osborne said.

The rest of the bad news also involved Anthony. The No. 1 Husker I-back, really never was in academic trouble because he is a high B student who just had to finish a summer course. But Anthony is still slowed by a tender wrist.

Couple that with the fact that the Huskers' other top I-back, Dave Gillespie, did not work out Wednesday because of a hamstring injury suffered in Tuesday scrimmage, and the Nebraska's depth at I-back suddenly vanished.

"Our I-back situation does not look a bit good right now," Osborne said. "We don't know how Anthony's wrist is going to hold up, and Gillespie is a question mark. We will try him again Monday and hope his leg holds up."

Three freshmen will be given a shot at making the varsity as the No. 3 fullback Osborne said. Thor Jacobs from Cincinnati, Chris Juehring from Davenport, Iowa, and Steve Davies from Murray, Utah will all be given a chance to make the club behind Donnell and Gary Higgs.

Osborne said Davies is still nursing an injury suffered this summer in the Utah High School All-Star game.

Nebraska QH Racing Receives 33 Days

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

The Nebraska State Racing Commission approved a 33-day season in 1977 for quarterhorse racing in Nebraska. But two major questions were still unanswered:

—What days will the two tracks (Deshler and Broken Bow) run?

—Will those be the only quarterhorse tracks in 1977 in Nebraska?

At a six-hour meeting Wednesday at a Columbus motel, the Commission approved 17 days for Deshler and 16 for Broken Bow in 1977.

Deshler was granted its dates between July 1 and Aug. 6 while Broken Bow received its dates between Aug. 17 and Sept. 17.

"Neither track has submitted its formal date applications," said Commission executive secretary Mort Porter of Nebraska City. "They probably will wait until the issue of Sunday racing is decided. Both tracks received their outside dates.

"If Sunday racing is approved, Deshler will probably race Friday, Saturday and Sunday. If not, they'll probably race Thursday, Friday and Saturday. If Broken Bow gets Sunday racing, they'll probably run Friday-Saturday and Sunday. If not, they'll race Wednesday, Friday and Saturday," Porter noted.

According to a law passed by the Legislature, Nebraska counties with less than 20,000 population can vote on the question of Sunday horse racing. Both Thayer County, including Deshler; and Custer County, including Broken Bow, contain less than 20,000 persons.

The only thoroughbred track in Nebraska with Sunday racing is Atokad Park near South Sioux City. Sunday racing has been extremely successful in that Dakota County operation.

The Commission also received a request for 12 days (Thursday-Friday-Saturday) from Aug. 4-Aug. 27 in 1977 from McCook. Porter added that since no one from that track attended the meeting it seriously hurt its chances of receiving the requested dates.

"There's no chance they'll get those dates since they've already been awarded," Porter said. "They could take some other days if they wanted and the Commission was agreeable. I'm going to try to get in touch with Dale Thompson (secretary of the Red Willow Fairgrounds) to see what we can do."

Porter said Bill Heidbreder and Richard Stillahn of the Seward County Fair Board made a presentation, but had no formal request for 1977 racing dates.

He said Seward officials hope to construct a new fairgrounds with "an ultra-modern racing facility" halfway between Interstate-80 and Seward on Highway 15.

The Commission also heard a proposal from five persons with Kearney interests — Dale Luther, secretary of the Buffalo County Livestock Association, Lincolnite Bud Johnson, Bill Beavers, former State Sen. Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox and Kearneyite Bill Belzer.

"They wanted to build a $4-$5 million plant along the interstate near Kearney. They also wanted three separate race meets — one for quaterhorses, one for thoroughbreds and one for harness racing.

"They wanted to know when they could have thoroughbred dates when other tracks were running in Nebraska," Porter explained. "But the commission really didn't know what to tell them."

No representatives from Alma attended the meeting, although a letter had been received requesting time.

In other matters, the Commission approved open claiming of horses which will enable the general public (after certain qualifications are met) to claim horses.

Porter said he will now distribute the open claiming measure in its final form to five offices at the Nebraska Statehouse. He estimated it would take between 10 and 14 days to get final approval before the measure becomes effective.

The Commission voted not to allow betting entries in exacta races following a report from State steward Jack Fickler of Ceresco. Fickler reported that state stewards in states allowing betting entries in exacta races had not found it to be entirely successful.

Veteran Blanda: Raiders May Be Right This Time

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Roaring crowds and game-saving placekicks may just be memories for George Blanda after his release on waivers by the Oakland Raiders, although the team hinted Wednesday that they may still have plans for the 26-year veteran.

The Old Man of Football, the National Football League's all-time leading scorer, openly admitted he had little hope of his $90,000 contract being picked up by another team.

"This makes the third time a team has declared me too old to play this game — only this time they may be right," Blanda said at training camp. "Who wants a 48-year-old placekicker with a $90,000 contract?"

However, Raiders' General Managing Partner Al Davis suggested that future plans with the Raiders may be in store for Blanda. "It is a possibility that Blanda could play this year," Davis said Wednesday. "I'm going to talk to him Friday. We've still got some things to discuss."

The Raiders made no formal announcement of Blanda's being waived, as is their policy, but confirmed that he had been when asked. But Davis said it is significant that a press conference had not been called to announce Blanda's permanent departure from the team.

"We would have set up a press conference if the time were right," said Davis, "but it's not time yet for public utterances."

After learning from Davis that he had been placed on waivers, Blanda decided to sit out morning practice Tuesday. He went to his locker to suit up for afternoon practice, as Davis had told him to, but discovered his uniform was already gone

Blanda says he'll leave the camp for his home in suburban Chicago immediately after his release becomes official. "When it happens, I'll be out of here fast," he said. "I only have four or five guys on the team to say goodbye to. I expect to be playing golf at Medinah No. 3 in Chicago by Friday morning."

Blanda, a veteran of the Houston Oilers and — according to Davis — twice before waived by the Raiders, holds the NFL all-time scoring record with 2,002 points, 653 more than his closest competitor. He also holds the record for field goals at 324, and missed only four games in his 26 seasons.

Blanda, who has also worked effectively as a reserve quarterback, starting with the Chicago Bears in 1949, had his best season ever in 1961 when he passed for 3,330 yards and 26 touchdowns for Houston of the then-year-old American Football League.

He has missed only 16 kicks in 959 attempts. "The funny thing is, I'm kicking better this year than I have in a while," he said. "But I didn't even get a chance to show anything."

Blanda, who has played for the Raiders since 1967, was bitter over not getting a chance to fight for his job against rookie Fred Steinfort. Blanda said he was kept at camp while the coaches determined whether Steinfort could handle it.

"I would have been a lot happier if they would have told me before I came. Then I could have accepted it easier and made a decision before I left home.

"I would never retire or walk out on my own, because that's not my way. But I admit the way things are now, I just want to be waived through the league and go home a free man."

Double Duty Scheduled For Northeast's Rada

First of a Series
By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Phil Rada has served his apprenticeship. Now, it's his turn on center stage.

That's exactly where the Lincoln Northeast senior plans to be this fall — in the center of things, both offensively and defensively.

Last year, he was second team center behind Rocket all-stater Rick Morton and second team middle guard behind Doug Bell, another all-stater.

If a lack of playing time bothered Rada, he's showing no signs of it in pre-season practices, according to Northeast head coach Bob Els.

"Phil will start for us both ways in our opener against Southeast (Sept. 3)," Els says. "He's got a lot of determination and has been a real leader in the line."

Els can't think of a better place to have such leadership. Although his Rockets feature perhaps the state's speediest backfield, they return no offensive or defensive line starters.

The seven-year Northeast head coach hopes Rada's enthusiasm is contagious.

"He's been lifting weights since football was over last year," Els points out. "He's very strong — he can bench press over 300 pounds — yet he's very quick at 5-11 and 180."

Rada is a fairly typical example of a good athlete not surfacing in a large school until he's a senior.

"We're almost always a senior squad," Els says. "This is the case for most of our kids and they've pretty well accepted that fact. Actually, it's a tribute to the squads below."

In terms of overall program success the past two years, Northeast takes a back seat to no school in Nebraska. Rocket sophomore, reserve and varsity football teams have compiled a remarkable 42-4-2 combined record the past two seasons.

That fact is the source for a No. 2 preseason Class A rating behind Creighton Prep.

The backfield has proven speed. If Northeast uncovers more linemen like Rada and Glen Daarud, who is asserting himself at guard, Els' worries will be minimized.

The Rockets' probable starters include:

Offense — Doug Berka, quarterback; Joe Prai and Mike Sales, running backs; Steve Damkroger, fullback; Leonard Swenson, tight end; Ron Huber, split end; Andy Childress, Roscoe Fairbanks or Doug Wiemer, tackles; Daarud and Gary Tucker, guards; Rada, center.

Defense — Swenson and Gary Karthauser or Herman Neitzel, ends; Daarud and Jim Dietz, tackles; Rada, middle guard; Rob Farleigh and Damkroger, linebackers; Jay Marshall and Sales, cornerbacks; Tom Svehla and Prai or Huber, safeties.

New Fishing Contest

Although it's now several months along, entries in a new fishing contest in the state have been running a little slow, according to contest statisticians.

Nebraska Trophy Fish Unlimited, the Lincoln-based fishermen's club, is conducting a contest for the biggest fish turned in in six different categories. The only catch is you have to be a member.

Walt Somerhiser, secretary-treasurer of the organization and contest chairman Dwight Crewdson, indicate a few good entries have been made already. A 9-pound, 1-ounce walleye, a 7-pound, 4-ounce largemouth bass and a northern pike just over 10 pounds have been turned in to date.

That leaves catfish, crappie and bluegill uncontested thus far, according to the two contest coordinators. A trophy with engraved nameplate go to the winner of the largest fish in each of the six categories.

"Time is begining to run out," said Somerhiser of the Oct. 31 deadline. "Any club member who makes a good catch or had made a good catch, even if it's not a master angler, since May 15 can qualify as long as his catch follows his joining the club by at least two weeks."

"In that manner, we'll have to deny the guy who catches a big fish, then decides to join." Crewdson said. "It makes it a little more fair to the club members and good fishing is what we're trying to impress upon people who join our club "

Somerhiser notes all a member has to do to submit an entry is send in a copy of the fisherman's master angler certificate or a written statement of the catch, date and weight (preferably with a photo for verification). Only Nebraska-caught fish are eligible.

Odds-N-Ends

The Lincoln Izaak Walton League will again be gunning to help muscular dystrophy with its annual Shoot for Life on Sept. 5-6. The shoot will last as long as the national telethon in order to raise money for combating the disease

Ikes' president Larry Schenkel indicates a raft of prizes will be awarded throughout the shoot, which is open to anyone.

Pheasant hunting season is just two months away for Nebraskans but South Dakota, the state which topped the nation in pheasant harvest for many, many years,, is still suffering.

South Dakota, hit hard by two severe winter blizzards in the early 1960s, now has the headaches of severe drought. It was recently decided in that state to mow valuable cover in roadside ditches for haying livestock.

The South Dakotans were so concerned about their pheasant crop, last year they initiated the first Pheasant Congress, much like Nebraska's Habitat Conference, to try finding solutions to the continuing decline of birds Pheasants Unlimited, a private organization, has also been stocking birds in that state for the past several years

Everybody has heard of chip dip, sheep dip, even a dip of snuff, but how about minnow dip? That's right Bill Snodie of the Surety Manufacturing Co., Inc , in Wisconsin has come up with a sure-fire fish killer called "Super Bait " It's a thick syrup-like liquid with a very strong smelt odor for dipping metal or plastic lures to turn on the fish. It appears nothing is sacred.

Same Story At KSU: Strong Defense With Shaky Offense

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Manhattan, Kan. — Kansas State wasn't a very good offensive football team last season. The Wildcats scored only 21 points against Big Eight Conference opposition.

On paper, it doesn't appear that much changed, but Coach Ellis Rainsberger is changing the Wildcats into an option-type team, featuring the use of more slot-I formations with two wide receivers.

"We're doing this because of the speed of our quarterbacks," Rainsberger told Big Eight Skywriters Wednesday. And, although the quarterbacks have good speed, they also lack experience. Therein lies the problem.

Kansas State lost quarterback Joe Hatcher when he underwent surgery to remove a kidney after an injury suffered in the spring game. "It took us two months to get over that," Rainsberger said.

Hatcher would have given the Wildcats an experienced leader to operate behind an improved offensive line. How, though, K-State is planning to go with Billy Swanson, who has college experience gained at Utah State where he started all games as a sophomore.

Swanson transferred to Kansas State and sat out last year while the Wildcats suffered through a 3-8 season that was respectable only because of a good defensive team.

Most of that defense returns, giving hopes that a better offense could enable the Wildcats to challenge for a few Big Eight victories. Rainsberger said there are "four or five teams we should compete with strongly."

Defense, however, will be the strength of the Wildcats. "Defense probably is the true strength of our football team," Rainsberger said. "We do have experience and speed even though we're not overly large."

The defensive strength is at linebacker where Gary Spani and Carl Pennington return. Their skills were so outstanding that teams began double-team blocking them last season.

"As a result, we've gone to slants to compensate and free our down linemen when the linebackers are double teamed," Rainsberger said.

Kansas State will be bigger, stronger and faster on the offensive unit, but Rainsberger says the offensive tackles are not as big as he would like to enable them to match up with the big defensive tackles in the Big Eight.

The best tackle on the team, according to Rainsberger, is Phil Noel, who played high school and junior college football with Nebraska tight end candiate Mark Dufresne. "Phil is 6-5 and 255 pounds and that's what I would call a medium sized tackle in the Big Eight," Rainsberger said.

Noel said he and Dufresne, who is now Nebraska's No. 2 tight end, had the best double-team block on the Pacific Coast at Ventura. "I'd set up the tackle and Mark would clean him out," Noel said. Unfortunately, K-State doesn't use as many double-team blocks on defensive tackles as the Ventura team did.

"We're going to run more options and use finesse-type and read option blocks," Rainsberger said.

This is because quarterbacks Swanson and No. 2 QB Roy Jones have good speed. Jones runs a 4.5 in the 40 while Swanson is 4.7.

BIG EIGHT Skywriters REPORT

"We couldn't move the ball last year because of the inexperienced line," a confident Swanson said. Swanson, incidentally, suffered one of his most embarrassing moments when he led Utah State to a 72-3 loss against Oklahoma two years ago. In the game, Swanson was knocked out in the third quarter.

Swanson comes from a very successful high school program at Mishawaka, Ind., where his team ran the same offense K-State will be using this season. The four-year record there was 38-2.

"We're going to show people some things this year," Swanson said. "I like the option attack because we will have three different people handling the ball — the fullback, tailback and slot back, and I can stop and throw the ball as well."

Rainsberger calls Swanson a player with good, but not outstanding speed, a good thrower, an excellent leader and a tough youngster. If he continues in this vein, he'll do a good job."

Rainsberger also is high on freshman Doane Howard, who was voted the outstanding player in the Kansas Shrine All-Star game.

"He always has been considered a good quarterback prospect," Rainsberger said. "We look to Duane, not early, but later in the season to be a leader."

Howard is 6-3 and 195 from Derby, Kan., and is suited to the Wildcats' option attack.

Another candidate in the chase to replace Hatcher is Brad Horchem, a sophomore from Ness, Kan. Horchem admits, however, he's just filling in right now while some of the injured quarterback candidates recover.

Horchem, whose great uncle, Willard "Bill" Horchem, played center for Nebraska in 1934, is a safetyman and likes the position.

Horchem missed all of last season because of a farm accident early in July before enrolling at K-State. He broke a left elbow when a nylon rope chain snapped and the hook hit his arm. He was assisting in trying to free a stuck tractor on his parents' 1,500-acre wheat farm in western Kansas.

In addition to linebacking, Rainsberger thinks the Wildcats have in Perry Viers and Vic Chandler "as good a defensive end pair as there is in the Big Eight."

He calls Roy Shine, 6-2, 245 senior, the best down lineman on defense and he likes the work of soph middle guard Dave Kuklenski.

Kuklenski is running ahead of senior Theopilis Bryant, who came back with a chest cold and still is nursing himself back to good health.

The work is cut out for Kansas State, which opens here on Sept. 11 with Brigham Young, a team that likes to throw the football. The Wildcats' other non-league games are against Texas A&M, Wake Forest and Florida State.

NFL: Lottery Hurts Image

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A federal judge Wednesday took under advisement a request by the National Football League for an injuction to block Delaware's proposed professional football lottery.

U. S. Judge Walter Stapleton indicated at the end of the twohour hearing that he will probably rule on Friday. The lottery is scheduled to begin next Wednesday.

An attorney representing the N F L , G. Norman Veasey, claimed during the hearing that the lottery would tarnish the image of the NFL.

But James Mulligan, representing Delaware, said the lottery is similar to office football pools, still illegal.

Mulligan called it "a simple extension of the old normal football pool that millions of people have been playing for years. It would cause no irreparable harm to the NFL."

Veasey claimed the lottery would mean "the public perception of the game would change from the scoreboard to the tote board. A missed pass in the end zone would raise cynicism" about whether the player had bought a lottery ticket.

Mulligan, however, said that if the lottery is held "the NFL will be alive and well and prospering come Super Bowl time. The stadiums will be full, we'll still be listening to Howard Cosell on Monday night and the Super Bowl will be just as anticlimactic as ever."

Veasey said the lottery should be stopped because the NFL had not given its approval for its name to be used, and he said such a use would hurt the NFL through "forced association with gambling."

In reply, Mulligan said no such approval is needed because the game scores are "in the public domain" once they are published or aired by the media.

Betting has been going on for years in Las Vegas on NFL games with no apparent harm to the game, Mulligan claimed. But Veasey argued that Las Vegas caters to "professional gamblers" and the Delaware game would introduce a whole new element—"amateur gamblers"—into betting on the games.

Osborne Notes Encouragement From Films

By DAVE SITTLER

Tom Osborne admitted Wednesday, that the journey to success may not be as long as first anticipated, but the road still looks mighty bumpy.

Following Nebraska's first scrimmage of fall camp Tuesday, Osborne had observed that the Cornhuskers appeared to be a million miles away from becoming a good football team.

But after studying the films of the skirmish Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, the Husker head coach said he saw some encouraging signs.

"Overall, the effort and hitting was good," Osborne said. "The defense looked pretty good although a few plays broke that probably shouldn't have."

Osborne said the coaches still needed more sessions of film watching before any decisions will be made on promotions or demotions on the depth chart.

"We haven't finished grading the films and we don't want to make any rash decisions, said Osborne, who plans to release the new depth chart Thursday morning. "I don't think there will be a lot of changes on what we've seen, but there probably will be a few."

Agreeing with Osborne that the team has a long way to go, was defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin. But Kiffin said he was encouraged after looking at the films of the first scrimmage.

"I think it's one of the better first scrimmages we've ever had on defense," Kiffin said. "But let me emphasize, that we did not go against the No. 1 offense. That makes quite a difference."

Kiffin said that when he viewed the film he was pleased to see "eleven men converging on the ball. That's what we preach around here. We're very pleased with that phase."

Noting that the defense is trying to replace six starters, Kiffin said he believes there is the talent on hand to fill the gaps. But he quickly added, "if we get overconfident we can go downhill pretty fast."

Kiffin pointed to the play of defensive ends George Andrews and Tony Samuels, who are battling for the starting job which was vacated by the graduation of all-Big Eight performer Bob Martin.

"They are pushin each other pretty hard," Kiffin said. "They have some big shoes to fill, but they think they can do it, and so do we."

Osborne had some good news and some bad news following Wednesday's afternoon practice, as the Huskers continue to work out twice daily.

The good news involved the academic status of starters Monte Anthony and Dodie Donnell and backup guard Stan Waldemore. Osborne said the trio had cleared academic hurdles and appeared to be in good standing for the upcoming season.

A fourth player who was questionable because of classroom work, wingback Kenny Brown, was part of the bad news. Although he worked out with the squad for the first time Tuesday afternoon, Brown is still questionable, according to Osborne.

"We'll know about Brown in two or three days," Osborne said.

The rest of the bad news also involved Anthony. The No. 1 Husker I-back, really never was in academic trouble because he is a high B student who just had to finish a summer course. But Anthony is still slowed by a tender wrist.

Couple that with the fact that the Huskers' other top I-back, Dave Gillespie, did not work out Wednesday because of a hamstring injury suffered in Tuesday scrimmage, and the Nebraska's depth at I-back suddenly vanished.

"Our I-back situation does not look a bit good right now," Osborne said. "We don't know how Anthony's wrist is going to hold up, and Gillespie is a question mark. We will try him again Monday and hope his leg holds up."

Three freshmen will be given a shot at making the varsity as the No. 3 fullback Osborne said. Thor Jacobs from Cincinnati, Chris Juehring from Davenport, Iowa, and Steve Davies from Murray, Utah will all be given a chance to make the club behind Donnell and Gary Higgs.

Osborne said Davies is still nursing an injury suffered this summer in the Utah High School All-Star game.

Nebraska QH Racing Receives 33 Days

At a six-hour meeting Wednesday at a Columbus motel, the Commission approved 17 days for Deshler and 16 for Broken Bow in 1977.

Deshler was granted its dates between July 1 and Aug. 6 while Broken Bow received its dates between Aug. 17 and Sept. 17.

Porter said he will now distribute the open claiming measure in its final form to five offices at the Nebraska Statehouse. He estimated it would take between 10 and 14 days to get final approval before the measure becomes effective.

The Commission voted not to allow betting entries in exacta races following a report from State steward Jack Fickler of Ceresco. Fickler reported that state stewards in states allowing betting entries in exacta races had not found it to be entirely successful.

The Raiders made no formal announcement of Blanda's being waived, as is their policy, but confirmed that he had been when asked. But Davis said it is significant that a press conference had not been called to announce Blanda's permanent departure from the team.

"We would have set up a press conference if the time were right," said Davis, "but it's not time yet for public utterances."

After learning from Davis that he had been placed on waivers, Blanda decided to sit out morning practice Tuesday. He went to his locker to suit up for afternoon practice, as Davis had told him to, but discovered his uniform was already gone.

Blanda says he'll leave the camp for his home in suburban Chicago immediately after his release becomes official. "When it happens, I'll be out of here fast," he said. "I only have four or five guys on the team to say goodbye to. I expect to be playing golf at Medinah No. 3 in Chicago by Friday morning."

Blanda, a veteran of the Houston Oilers and — according to Davis — twice before waived by the Raiders, holds the NFL all-time scoring record with 2,002 points, 653 more than his closest competitor. He also holds the record for field goals at 324, and missed only four games in his 26 seasons.

Blanda, who has also worked effectively as a reserve quarterback, starting with the Chicago Bears in 1949, had his best season ever in 1961 when he passed for 3,330 yards and 26 touchdowns for Houston of the then-year-old American Football League.

He has missed only 16 kicks in 959 attempts. "The funny thing is, I'm kicking better this year than I have in a while," he said. "But I didn't even get a chance to show anything."

Blanda, who has played for the Raiders since 1967, was bitter over not getting a chance to fight for his job against rookie Fred Steinfort. Blanda said he was kept at camp while the coaches determined whether Steinfort could handle it.

"I would have been a lot happier if they would have told me before I came. Then I could have accepted it easier and made a decision before I left home.

"I would never retire or walk out on my own, because that's not my way. But I admit the way things are now, I just want to be waived through the league and go home a free man."

New Fishing Contest

Although it's now several months along, entries in a new fishing contest in the state have been running a little slow, according to contest statisticians.

Nebraska Trophy Fish Unlimited, the Lincoln-based fishermen's club, is conducting a contest for the biggest fish turned in in six different categories. The only catch is you have to be a member.

Walt Somerhiser, secretary-treasurer of the organization and contest chairman Dwight Crewdson, indicate a few good entries have been made already. A 9-pound, 1-ounce walleye, a 7-pound, 4-ounce largemouth bass and a northern pike just over 10 pounds have been turned in to date.

That leaves catfish, crappie and bluegill uncontested thus far, according to the two contest coordinators. A trophy with engraved nameplate go to the winner of the largest fish in each of the six categories.

"Time is begining to run out," said Somerhiser of the Oct. 31 deadline. "Any club member who makes a good catch or had made a good catch, even if it's not a master angler, since May 15 can qualify as long as his catch follows his joining the club by at least two weeks."

"In that manner, we'll have to deny the guy who catches a big fish, then decides to join," Crewdson said. "It makes it a little more fair to the club members and good fishing is what we're trying to impress upon people who join our club."

Somerhiser notes all a member has to do to submit an entry is send in a copy of the fisherman's master angler certificate or a written statement of the catch, date and weight (preferably with a photo for verification). Only Nebraska-caught fish are eligible.

Odds-N-Ends

The Lincoln Izaak Walton League will again be gunning to help muscular dystrophy with its annual Shoot for Life on Sept. 5-6. The shoot will last as long as the national telethon in order to raise money for combating the disease.

Ikes' president Larry Schenkel indicates a raft of prizes will be awarded throughout the shoot, which is open to anyone.

Pheasant hunting season is just two months away for Nebraskans but South Dakota, the state which topped the nation in pheasant harvest for many, many years,, is still suffering.

South Dakota, hit hard by two severe winter blizzards in the early 1960s, now has the headaches of severe drought. It was recently decided in that state to mow valuable cover in roadside ditches for haying livestock.

The South Dakotans were so concerned about their pheasant crop, last year they initiated the first Pheasant Congress, much like Nebraska's Habitat Conference, to try finding solutions to the continuing decline of birds. Pheasants Unlimited, a private organization, has also been stocking birds in that state for the past several years.

Everybody has heard of chip dip, sheep dip, even a dip of snuff, but how about minnow dip? That's right. Bill Snodie of the Surety Manufacturing Co., Inc., in Wisconsin has come up with a sure-fire fish killer called "Super Bait." It's a thick syrup-like liquid with a very strong smelt odor for dipping metal or plastic lures to turn on the fish. It appears nothing is sacred.

Double Duty Scheduled For Northeast's Rada

First of a Series
By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Phil Rada has served his apprenticeship. Now, it's his turn on center stage.

That's exactly where the Lincoln Northeast senior plans to be this fall — in the center of things, both offensively and defensively.

Last year, he was second team center behind Rocket all-stater Rick Morton and second team middle guard behind Doug Bell, another all-stater.

If a lack of playing time bothered Rada, he's showing no signs of it in pre-season practices, according to Northeast head coach Bob Els.

"Phil will start for us both ways in our opener against Southeast (Sept. 3)," Els says. "He's got a lot of determination and has been a real leader in the line."

Els can't think of a better place to have such leadership. Although his Rockets feature perhaps the state's speediest backfield, they return no offensive or defensive line starters.

The seven-year Northeast head coach hopes Rada's enthusiasm is contagious.

"He's been lifting weights since football was over last year," Els points out. "He's very strong — he can bench press over 300 pounds — yet he's very quick at 5-11 and 180."

Rada is a fairly typical example of a good athlete not surfacing in a large school until he's a senior.

"We're almost always a senior squad," Els says. "This is the case for most of our kids and they've pretty well accepted that fact. Actually, it's a tribute to the squads below."

In terms of overall program success the past two years, Northeast takes a back seat to no school in Nebraska. Rocket sophomore, reserve and varsity football teams have compiled a remarkable 42-4-2 combined record the past two seasons.

That fact is the source for a No. 2 preseason Class A rating behind Creighton Prep.

The backfield has proven speed. If Northeast uncovers more linemen like Rada and Glen Daarud, who is asserting himself at guard, Els' worries will be minimized.

The Rockets' probable starters include:

Offense — Doug Berka, quarterback; Joe Prai and Mike Sales, running backs; Steve Damkroger, fullback; Leonard Swenson, tight end; Ron Huber, split end; Andy Childress, Roscoe Fairbanks or Doug Wiemer, tackles; Daarud and Gary Tucker, guards; Rada, center.

Defense — Swenson and Gary Karthauser or Herman Neitzel, ends; Daarud and Jim Dietz, tackles; Rada, middle guard; Rob Farleigh and Damkroger, linebackers; Jay Marshall and Sales, cornerbacks; Tom Svehla and Prai or Huber, safeties.

'The Juice' Squeezed Off Roster

Morning Briefing

The Buffalo Bills cut down to the National Football League's 49-man player limit Tuesday by placing O.J. Simpson and Donnie Green on the "did not report" list.

Simpson, the Bills' premier running back, has refused to play in Buffalo again and has asked to be traded to a West Coast team so he can be near his family.

So far, the Bills have been unable to negotiate a trade for him.

Other Football

Former pro bowl middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti ended a one-month retirement Wednesday, reporting to the Miami Dolphins training camp for a physical examination and his first workout.

Penn State's 1976 football hopes were dealt a severe blow Wednesday when it was learned running back Duane Taylor will require surgery for a knee injury sustained during the summer.

The San Francisco 49ers announced Wednesday they have placed their one-time kicking specialist, Bruce Gossett, on waivers along with three others.

Bobby Howfield, the former New York Jets kicker who once had six field goals in a single game, Wednesday signed a contract with the New Orleans Saints.

George Blanda confirmed that he was placed on waivers Tuesday by the Oakland Raiders. He must wait until 1 p.m. Thursday to find out whether any other team will pick up his $90,000 a year contract.

Seven-year veteran Earl McCullouch, a wide receiver who spent most of his National Football League career with the Detroit Lions, was one of five players waived by the Los Angeles Rams, the club said Wednesday.

Green Bay Packers' middle linebacker Jim Carter, initially thought to be sidelined four to six weeks with a broken right forearm suffered against New England Aug. 15, underwent corrective surgery Wednesday and is lost indefinitely.

Basketball

The Chicago Bulls Wednesday named Ed Badger head coach of the National Basketball Association team.

The Buffalo Braves Wednesday traded veteran forward-guard Tom Van Arsdale to the Phoenix Suns, where he will join his brother, Dick.

Tennis

The president of the International Lawn Tennis Federation said Wednesday the refusal of the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia to play in the current federation cup tennis championship means they are automatically suspended for one year.

Hungary joined the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia in pulling out of the Federation Cup Tennis Championship Wednesday because of the presence of South Africa and Rhodesia in the tournament.

Horse Racing

Lazy F. Ranch's Forego, Horse of the Year in 1974 and 1975, has been assigned top weight of 131 pounds for the 24th running of the $100,000 United Nations Handicap Sept. 6 at the Atlantic City Race Course. Foolish Pleasure was assigned 126 pounds.

The 1975 U.S. champion, Monty Henson of Mesquite, Tex., placed first with 70 points, earning $362, and three-time Canadian champion Mel Coleman of Pierceland, Saskatchewan, was second with 68 points worth $271.

Other event winners included:

Town To Honor Decathlon King

NEWTOWN, Conn. (UPI) — The Newtown High School stadium will be renamed to honor Bruce Jenner, the 1976 Olympic decathlon gold medal winner, who graduated from the school eight years ago.

Dedication ceremonies were tentatively scheduled by the Board of Education for Sept. 25 after the start of the home football season. The board approved the name change at a meeting Tuesday night.

Yankees Prevail In 19 Innings

New York (UPI) — Mickey Rivers' two-out single in the 19th inning Thursday morning scored Oscar Gamble from second base with the winning run to give the New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Losing pitcher Tom Burgmeier, 6-1, walked leadoff batter Gamble, who moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Willie Randolph. One out later, Rivers hit the ball over the head of center fielder Steve Brye to score Gamble and end the game five hours and 36 minutes after it started.

Grant Jackson, who pitched the final two innings for New York, received the victory to up his record to 4-1.

The Yankees scored three runs in the fifth to tie the score at 4-4. Randolph walked, Fred Stanley singled and after a force out, Roy White slashed a run-scoring double and Thurman Munson added a runscoring single. White scored the tying run when Munson was thrown out trying to stretch his hit into a double. New York's first run came in the second on Graig Nettles' 22nd homer.

The Twins took a 4-0 lead off starter Ed Figueroa in the second inning, taking advantage of four hits, a walk, a sacrifice fly and a bases loaded error by Randolph.

'The Juice' Squeezed Off Roster

Morning Briefing

The Buffalo Bills cut down to the National Football League's 49-man player limit Tuesday by placing O.J. Simpson and Donnie Green on the "did not report" list.

Simpson, the Bills' premier running back, has refused to play in Buffalo again and has asked to be traded to a West Coast team so he can be near his family.

So far, the Bills have been unable to negotiate a trade for him.

Seven-year veteran Earl McCullouch, a wide receiver who spent most of his National Football League career with the Detroit Lions, was one of five players waived by the Los Angeles Rams, the club said Wednesday.

Green Bay Packers' middle linebacker Jim Carter, initially thought to be sidelined four to six weeks with a broken right forearm suffered against New England Aug. 15, underwent corrective surgery Wednesday and is lost indefinitely.

Yankees Prevail In 19 Innings

New York (UPI) — Mickey Rivers' two-out single in the 19th inning Thursday morning scored Oscar Gamble from second base with the winning run to give the New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Losing pitcher Tom Burgmeier, 6-1, walked leadoff batter Gamble, who moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Willie Randolph. One out later, Rivers hit the ball over the head of center fielder Steve Brye to score Gamble and end the game five hours and 36 minutes after it started.

Grant Jackson, who pitched the final two innings for New York, received the victory to up his record to 4-1.

The Yankees scored three runs in the fifth to tie the score at 4-4. Randolph walked, Fred Stanley singled and after a force out, Roy White slashed a run-scoring double and Thurman Munson added a runscoring single. White scored the tying run when Munson was thrown out trying to stretch his hit into a double. New York's first run came in the second on Graig Nettles' 22nd homer.

The Twins took a 4-0 lead off starter Ed Figueroa in the second inning, taking advantage of four hits, a walk, a sacrifice fly and a bases loaded error by Randolph.

Same Routine Here— NU Tickets Scarce

By ROXINNE ERVASTI
Associated Press Writer

With fall approaching, Nebraska's football fans are falling into an old routine — falling all over each other trying to snag tickets to the Cornhuskers' games.

The columns of classified ads in Nebraska newspapers are growing, and so are the ticket prices being offered in them.

The season opener isn't until Sept. 11 in Louisiana, but one couple has already paid $250 for two season tickets — triple what the Big Eight Conference school sells them for.

It's a good bet that ticket prices will go even higher as the Sept. 25 home game with Texas Christian approaches. Nebraska's team looks that good.

Nebraskans go to great lengths to get or retain football tickets.

Charles and Anne Edholm split their season tickets in a 1972 divorce decree.

A Council Bluffs, Iowa, meat market owner offered a quarter of beef for a pair of tickets.

Survivors of a deceased ticket holder have gone to court to settle fights over tickets.

Deer rifles, hunting privileges and good deals on used cars reportedly have been used as barter by ticket hunters.

An Omaha postman was once convicted of theft for taking tickets from the mail.

A University of Nebraska Regent was accused of running his re-election platform on Cornhusker tickets when he unsuccessfully tried to persuade fellow Regents to order the school to block out 500 tickets to the Colorado game for him.

Ticket holders who put their ducats on the auction block are called "scalpers."

"It may be unethical, but there's no anti-scalping law in Nebraska," said Don Bryant, NU's sports information director. "Nebraka holds the record for consecutive straight sellouts, 81 games. And this season will make it 87. "Fans have always been good in Nebraska. But they went bananas back in 1962 when Bob Devaney arrived and coached the to an unprecedented winning streak.

"We've already sold 16,000 tickets for the Nebraska-Hawaii," Bryant added. "We had 20,000 orders. Just think, 16,000 or more Nebraskans will be going to Honolulu on December 4 to support the team."

About 60,000 season tickets were sold this year, 38,000 of them to the general public.

The university's policy is to give preference to long-time season ticket holders.

"I don't think it's right," one fan said. "Some of these people have been able to get season tickets for years. Some of them don't use them but sell them later. I couldn't get a season ticket five years from now if I wanted to."

Jesse Owens Uses Korbut As Olympic Object Lesson

NEW YORK (AP) — "Don't change the system," Jesse Owens urged Wednesday, saying America only had to look into the jaded face of little Olga Korbut to realize that national subsidization isn't the answer for producing Olympic teams.

"You wanted to cry for that little girl," added the legendary star of the 1936 Olympics in Berlin "She looked like a dish rag with all the water wrung out. It was a tragic scene."

Olga was the gymnastics heroine of the 1972 Games in Munich but last month at Montreal, where everyone was cheering a 14-year-old Romanian marvel named Nadia Comaneci, the Soviet girl was a pale, haggard has-been at the age of 21.

Embittered, she looked like a woman twice her age.

Owens was in New York to make a final report on the Canadian Olympic coin program, which grossed close to $1 million, and to be a guest at the National Art Museum of Sport at Madison Square Garden, commemorating his and other immortal sports feats.

"Don't try to tell me about the programs of these Communist countries," said the 62-year-old one-time Alabama cotton-picker, winner of four gold medals in the Berlin Games.

"I looked at that East German girl, Kornelia Ender. Sure, she swept to a lot of medals. But I wondered what she had to look forward to in life after her swimming days are over.

"I recalled some of our former swimming champions in the United States — women now 50 and 60 years old, all charming, attractive women who have found a place in the social structure Have you ever stopped to wonder what happens to athletes who are caught in the government-operated systems of the East European countries? What can they look forward to?"

Owens, answering his own questions, said an example might be found in the tragic career of Emil Zatopek, the Czechoslovakian who was lionized after winning the 5,000 and 10,000 meters and the marathon at Helsinki in 1952.

"He disagreed with his government politically," Jesse said. "He was stripped of his captaincy in the army. He was subjected to public disgrace. Now he is digging post holes in Prague."

Owens, given the Medal of Freedom by President Ford recently at the White House, said he hoped the United States would never heed the demands of some alarmists who maintain America must adopt the "factory" methods of Communist countries to compete equally.

"How can we?" he wondered. "It is not our way of life. Perhaps we have won so much that we have become complacent. Our fault may lie in a decline of our dedication and determination, not the system.

"We have the finest system in the world, developing our athletes through schools and colleges. Our athletes have freedom and, when their playing days are over, they have careers to look to."

The black folk hero said he thought America's role in the recent Olympic Games were symbolized by the basketball and boxing teams.

"Those basketball kids," he added. "No individual stars, just a 12-man team working together. And the boxers — they lived together, trained together and prayed together. Every day they clasped hands and kneeled in prayer. That's our system."

Omaha Familiar To Cards Team

Omaha — Members of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team, who will play the American Association All-Stars at 7 p.m. Thursday at Rosenblatt Stadium, will find the surroundings familiar.

Omaha, now affiliated with the Kansas City Royals, served as the Cardinals' double-A and triple-A affiliate from 1947 until 1960.

Fifteen of the 25 current Cardinals and three coaches re familiar with the American Association, having played for the St. Louis affiliated Tulsa Oilers or other Association teams before going into the big time.

Bake McBride, currently the No. 2 hitter (.345) in the National League with teammate Willie Crawford, spent parts of the 1972-73 seasons in Tulsa. Infielder Mike Tyson also was an Oiler in 1972.

Pros Cautious About Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — "There will be some very strange numbers out there this week," opined veteran Richard Crawford. "There'll be scores well into the 80s."

"Yes," agreed former Masters champion George Archer, "but will that be high or low?"

He was kidding — probably. But the remark is indicative of the apprehension with which golf's touring pros approach the $200,000 American Golf Classic and its new site — the wet-and-watery North course at the Firestone Country Club, a 7,105-yard, par-72 layout that features 53 acres of lakes, ponds, streams and a reservoir.

It hasn't been played on the tour before. And it has prompted an enormous number of bad jokes involving water wings and Jacques Cousteau. It is no joke that host pro Bobby Nichols has stocked 500 dozen balls in the pro shop.

Bob Wynn was having coffee in the clubhouse and set two packages of three new balls on the table in front of him. "Aren't you playing today?" a passing player asked.

"Sure," said Wynn.

"With only six balls?" the player asked in mock surprise.

"I'm only playing nine holes," replied the straightfaced Wynn.

"After you've played here," said Archer, "you get to thinking that Butler National isn't so tough after all." Butler is the site of the Western Open and, in the three years it has been played, par has been beaten only once.

The North course, just across the road from the famed South course — site of a pair of PGAs, 14 World Series of Golf, 13 American Golf Classics and a number of CBS Classics — will be tested by an invitational field of 114 players beginning Thursday.

A week later, the tour shifts across the road to the more familiar South course for the new-look World Series, which this year is going to a 72-hole format with a field of 20 or more. The total purse in that one is $300,000 with $100,000 to the winner That half a million bucks are up for grabs in a rare, two-week stay in one city.

A number of the game's more glamorous names are skipping the American Golf Classic in favor of the World Series

Poile Gains CHL Position

Poile succeeds Ray Miron, who resigned this week to become general manager of the Colorado Rockies.

Lefty Hurler Signs With NU

Nebraska baseball coach Tony Sharpe Wednesday announced the signing of another high school player to a national letter-of-intent.

Art Serafinski, a 6-1, 195-pound lefthanded pitcher from St Clair Shore, Mich. has signed with the Cornhuskers.

Serafinski pitched his high school team to the district championship this spring and led his summer team, Clinton Macomb, to two conference titles.

The past two summers, Serafinski compiled an 18-2 record. He struckout 69 batters and had a 2 16 ERA last season while he finished with 132 strikeouts and a 2.28 ERA this summer.

Same Routine Here— NU Tickets Scarce

By ROXINNE ERVASTI
Associated Press Writer

With fall approaching, Nebraska's football fans are falling into an old routine — falling all over each other trying to snag tickets to the Cornhuskers' games.

The columns of classified ads in Nebraska newspapers are growing, and so are the ticket prices being offered in them.

The season opener isn't until Sept. 11 in Louisiana, but one couple has already paid $250 for two season tickets — triple what the Big Eight Conference school sells them for.

It's a good bet that ticket prices will go even higher as the Sept. 25 home game with Texas Christian approaches. Nebraska's team looks that good.

Nebraskans go to great lengths to get or retain football tickets.

Charles and Anne Edholm split their season tickets in a 1972 divorce decree.

A Council Bluffs, Iowa, meat market owner offered a quarter of beef for a pair of tickets.

Survivors of a deceased ticket holder have gone to court to settle fights over tickets.

Deer rifles, hunting privileges and good deals on used cars reportedly have been used as barter by ticket hunters.

An Omaha postman was once convicted of theft for taking tickets from the mail.

A University of Nebraska Regent was accused of running his re-election platform on Cornhusker tickets when he unsuccessfully tried to persuade fellow Regents to order the school to block out 500 tickets to the Colorado game for him.

Ticket holders who put their ducats on the auction block are called "scalpers."

"It may be unethical, but there's no anti-scalping law in Nebraska," said Don Bryant, NU's sports information director. "Nebraka holds the record for consecutive straight sell-outs, 81 games. And this season will make it 87. "Fans have always been good in Nebraska. But they went bananas back in 1962 when Bob Devaney arrived and coached the to an unprecedented winning streak.

"We've already sold 16,000 tickets for the Nebraska-Hawaii," Bryant added. "We had 20,000 orders. Just think, 16,000 or more Nebraskans will be going to Honolulu on December 4 to support the team."

Omaha Familiar To Cards Team

Omaha — Members of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team, who will play the American Association All-Stars at 7 p.m. Thursday at Rosenblatt Stadium, will find the surroundings familiar.

Omaha, now affiliated with the Kansas City Royals, served as the Cardinals' double-A and triple-A affiliate from 1947 until 1960.

Fifteen of the 25 current Cardinals and three coaches re familiar with the American Association, having played for the St. Louis affiliated Tulsa Oilers or other Association teams before going into the big time.

Bake McBride, currently the No. 2 hitter (.345) in the National League with teammate Willie Crawford, spent parts of the 1972-73 seasons in Tulsa. Infielder Mike Tyson also was an Oiler in 1972.

Pros Cautious About Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — "There will be some very strange numbers out there this week," opined veteran Richard Crawford. "There'll be scores well into the 80s."

"Yes," agreed former Masters champion George Archer, "but will that be high or low?"

He was kidding — probably. But the remark is indicative of the apprehension with which golf's touring pros approach the $200,000 American Golf Classic and its new site — the wet-and-watery North course at the Firestone Country Club, a 7,105-yard, par-72 layout that features 53 acres of lakes, ponds, streams and a reservoir.

It hasn't been played on the tour before. And it has prompted an enormous number of bad jokes involving water wings and Jacques Cousteau. It is no joke that host pro Bobby Nichols has stocked 500 dozen balls in the pro shop.

Bob Wynn was having coffee in the clubhouse and set two packages of three new balls on the table in front of him. "Aren't you playing today?" a passing player asked.

"Sure," said Wynn.

"With only six balls?" the player asked in mock surprise.

"I'm only playing nine holes," replied the straightfaced Wynn.

"After you've played here," said Archer, "you get to thinking that Butler National isn't so tough after all." Butler is the site of the Western Open and, in the three years it has been played, par has been beaten only once.

The North course, just across the road from the famed South course — site of a pair of PGAs, 14 World Series of Golf, 13 American Golf Classics and a number of CBS Classics — will be tested by an invitational field of 114 players beginning Thursday.

A week later, the tour shifts across the road to the more familiar South course for the new-look World Series, which this year is going to a 72-hole format with a field of 20 or more. The total purse in that one is $300,000 with $100,000 to the winner. That half a million bucks are up for grabs in a rare, two-week stay in one city.

A number of the game's more glamorous names are skipping the American Golf Classic in favor of the World Series.

Nastase, Dibley In Verbal Clash

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J. (AP) — Romania's fiery Ilie Nastase and Australia's Colin Dibley nearly came to blows during their second round match in the Tennis Week Open here Wednesday.

Although both players tried to downplay the incident, each managed to push the other at the net before they cooled down.

The incident occurred with Nastase, 30, defending champion here, leading 3-2 in games and 40-30.

When Nastase dropped a ballboy's toss, a woman in the audience of about 3,000 shouted, "Nice catch."

Nastase began conversing with the woman and her male companion. After about 30 seconds, Dibley, who had his back turned up to that point, turned around and thinking Nastase was merely passing the time, shouted, "Hey, we're playing a tennis match here."

Nastase replied, "Yeah, but you don't play tennis good enough for me."

Dibley then walked to the net and Nastase did the same. The pair exchanged words softly. Then Dibley pushed Nastase and Nastase pushed back. Apparently thinking better of it, the two then quickly returned to their respective base lines.

"He's a peasant," said Nastase, who eventually won the match, 6-4, 6-3.

"He doesn't know anything about anything. It's lucky he speaks English," Nastase said of Dibley.

"That guy's got no class at all," said the fast-serving Dibley about the Romanian. "I have no respect for that guy at all.

"No one questions that he's the best in the world, but at least I deserve some respect," the Australian said.

Dibley said Nastase had drawn his ire early in the first set when, according to Dibley, Nastase said, "You can't beat me. That's okay, take a rest." Nastase denied having said anything to Dibley until the pushing incident.

Backlund, 46, Dies

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP)—Funeral services for former Grand Island golf pro Merle C. Backlund, 45, will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

Backlund was found dead in the trunk of his car near the Grand Island Ordnance plant Monday. Hall County Sheriff Charles Headley said a hose connected to the car's exhaust pipe led into the trunk and the engine was running when the body was found. Headley said the death, from carbon monoxide poisoning, was ruled a suicide.

Backlund was a Lincoln High School graduate and served as a golf instructor at the University of Colorado in Boulder before joining the pro golfer's tour and later becoming the pro at the Riverside Golf Club in Grand Island.

He resigned that post recently to enter the real estate business.

The Osceola native will be buried in Westlawn Cemetery in Grand Island.

Survivors include his widow, Patricia; his mother, Mabel E. Kiffin of Grand Island; a brother, Burdette, of Peoria, Ill.; and a sister, Mrs. Howard Peterson of Grand Island.

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys rookie halfback John Smith broke a bone in his right foot during workouts and a spokesman said Wednesday he will be out of action for about a month. The Cowboys play Pittsburgh here Saturday.

Morgan Calls Series 'Testing Ground'

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati's Joe Morgan says this week's four-game meeting between the National League's division leaders — and probable playoff rivals — will be a personal testing ground "to find out what I can do."

The Eastern Division-leading Philadelphia Phillies have won six of eight games from the Reds, the front-runners in the West and defending world champios. But Morgan, the NL's Most Valuable Player of 1975, has started only one game due to injuries.

While Reds Manager Sparky Anderson downplays the series, Morgan plans to probe for areas to exploit.

"I'm going to play them like they were the playoff games," he says. "I've only played one against them this year and I want to find out what I can do and can't do. It will be something special."

That could be interpreted as a warning to Phils catchers Bob Boone and Tim McCarver.

Last October, Morgan helped the Reds "steal" the NL playoffs from Pittsburgh. The 5-foot-7 All-Star second baseman set a playoff record by stealing three bases in one game, spearheading a seven-steal day for the Reds, who swept the Pirates in three games.

Morgan, who has propelled himself into the league batting race with a .334 mark, maintains he has regained top health for the first time since April after being troubled by a sore back and pulled rib muscle.

Morgan's versatility has never been more evident. With 35 games remaining, he is threatening to better his career highs in batting (.327), runs scored (122), runs batted in (94), hits (167) and home runs (26).

He currently has 97 runs, 92 RBI.s and 25 homers. His 43 stolen bases, third in the league, mark the eighth consecutive season he has 40-or-more thefts.

Meanwhile, Anderson shies away from calling the series a crucial one.

"To me, all I care about is the magic number and winning the division. Wins now are only important in lowering the magic number."

Pete Rose agrees. "Once the playoffs start," he said, "it's a whole new ballgame."

And if the Reds and Phils square off for the National League flag, Morgan sniffs at reports that pledge.

"There's a big difference between experience and playoff experience," he figures. "We have been there before."

Spartan Gridders Turn To Courts

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Six Michigan State University football players suspended from the Spartan roster in the wake of a recruiting scandal asked a federal court Wednesday to overturn their suspensions.

An attorney for the players filed suit in U.S. District Court charging MSU, the school's athletic council, the NCAA and the Big Ten denied the players' constitutional rights to due process.

Attorney Frederic S. Abood indicated he will ask U.S. District Court Judge Noel P. Fox to combine the case with a similar suit filed by senior defensive back Joe Hunt, who was suspended from the squad for one year for alleged recruiting violations.

Abood is representing offensive and defensive back Ted Bell, defensive linemen Larry Bethea and Melvin Land, linebacker Jim Epolito, quarterback Eddie Smith and tight end Michael Cobb.

Cobb was suspended for the Spartan's first five games, which include Ohio State, the University of Michigan and Notre Dame. The other five players were each suspended for the season opener against the Buckeyes.

The suspensions followed a lengthy NCAA investigation of MSU's recruiting practices that ended with the university being placed on three years probation.

Charges against the players involve alleged use of credit cards, automobiles and other favors offered by MSU football boosters, who—according to the NCAA—were "representative of the university's athletic interests." The action, according to the NCAA, amounted to a recruiting violation.

The suit contends the players were not given an opportunity to defend themselves before NCAA or Big Ten officials meeting in Denver earlier this year.

It charges that the suspensions amount to an "arbitrary and capricious" penalty causing "irreparable harm and injury" to the player's chances of advancing to professional football careers.

"(The players) were not advised of their right to explain or otherwise defend themselves against the alleged violations being charged by the NCAA," the suit said.

"The penalties themselves are both arbitrary and capricious and without foundation and are the direct result of the player's being denied their rights to a hearing and to confront and examine witnesses.

Reds, ABC-TV Argue

CINCINNATI (AP) — A dispute between the Cincinnati Reds and the ABC-TV erupted during Monday night's regionally televised game.

It involved the network's decision to switch to the Reds' game against the St. Louis Cardinals after their other regional game — Philadelphia at Atlanta — concluded.

Cincinnati vice president Dick Wagner, seeing the Reds' games on television in Cincinnati, where it was supposed to be blacked out, threatened to cut off the network's power from the stadium "if the game isn't off the air in three minutes.

A shaken producer was advised by phone to get the game off the air in the blacked-out area and did so.

ABC maintains that through its agreement with baseball, it has the right to cut in to a game "for a brief report," according to Jim Spence, vice president in charge of program planning. He said the time of a report is fixed at two minutes "notwithstanding the blackout of a local market."

Spence said the Reds-Cardinals game was shown in Cincinnati and other blacked-out markets for "2¼ minutes. These reports are done in the best interest of baseball. We thought we would give our viewers a look at the Reds."

SeNHSA Still Feels Pain Over Federal Intervention

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

On the surface, the discussion which erupted twice during Wednesday night's meeting of the Southeast Nebraska Health Systems Agency (SeNHSA) had to do with local control vs. federal intervention.

However, some board members indicated that they perceived another issue — an issue the board had dealt with before — beneath the surface.

"Apparently, you're discussing the HMO, right?" board member William Boyce asked his counterpart, Dr. Lois Schwab, who, both times, initiated the discussion about the federal government's role in local health planning.

"No," Dr. Schwab responded.

Earlier this summer, the SeNHSA board voted by a narrow margin to disapprove a local organization's request for federal funds to assist in planning an HMO — health maintenance organization — in Lincoln-Lancaster County.

However, just last weekend, the federal government announced it had approved the grant request.

An HMO is a form of health insurance that differs substantially from conventional health insurance plans.

Dr. Schwab, who previously voted against the HMO project, denied that she had the HMO specifically in mind when making comments about the federal government's power to overtun SeNHSA board decisions.

"My concern is local option," she said. "My concern is that we have a system in our country whereby the . . . person at the county level . . . has a say in what the quality of life will be."

Questioning the value of a board whose decisions are not "binding," Dr. Schwab said, "I'm thinking particularly of my time. How meaningful is the time that I spend" on the board if its decisions can be overruled.

"You're the only one that can weigh that," board member Don Nielsen responded.

SeNHSA board chairman Earl Witthoff explained that the body's decisions will never be "binding" in the sense that they will be final.

However, he added that 18 months later, when the new agency receives full designation, it will be "more difficult" for the federal government to overrule it.

SeNHSA director Jane Ford responded to the discussion by saying, "To make the assumption that HEW (the Department of Health, Education and Welfare) is always going to overturn us . . . would be a bit unfair.

"The more responsibly we conduct ourselves in making decisions" the more likely it will be that state and federal officials will "go along with us."

Following the meeting, Witthoff said he believed the HMO was the real issue underlying Dr. Schwab's comments.

Dr. P. D. Duensing, executive secretary of the Lancaster County Medical Society — a group which has been highly vocal in its opposition to the HMO — attended the meeting as an observer.

During the course of the discussion, he received a handwritten note from Dr. Schwab.

Following the meeting, Duensing said he and Dr. Schwab had conversed about the gneral issue of federal intervention in local health planning decisions.

Duensing also said he had approached Witthoff about placing the HMO issue on the agenda. However, he added that he was concerned about it only as an example of the erosion of local control.

Witthoff said he had told Duensing that a board member could put the HMO issue on the agenda if he or she desired.

But Witthoff added, "As far as I'm concerned, we (the board) have fulfilled our obligation" with regard to the HMO project.

Body Of Lincoln Man Found At McConaughy

Ogallala (UPI) — Keith County authorities Wednesday identified the body of a man found earlier in the day at Lake McConaughy as that of Roger Lundberg, 21, Lincoln.

Authorities say Lundberg's body was found on the south side of the lake. Keith County Attorney Pat Hays said the body had probably been there less than 24 hours.

Authorities said there was no evidence of foul play, however the investigation was continuing and an autopsy was to be performed Thursday morning.

Police Nab Motorcyclist

Police arrested a motorcyclist Wednesday night after a high-speed chase which began in the downtown area and ended on U.S. 34 northwest of the city.

When an officer in a cruiser attempted to stop the 19-year-old motorcyslist for a speeding violation, he sped off through downtown streets, with the police cruiser in pursuit.

The chase went the wrong direction down some one-way streets, then eventually led to the highway. Lancaster County deputies assisted in finally stopping the motorcycle.

Malone Center Board Told Survey Results

By BOB REEVES
Star Staff Writer

"Malone is not a dead neighborhood."

With these words, Tom Ekvall of the city's Urban Development Dept. summed up the findings of an attitude survey of Malone area residents recently completed by his department.

He and Otto Hoiberg, who directed the survey, talked with Malone Center board members Wednesday night about the findings.

The average Malone area homeowner is concerned about the future of his neighborhood and wants to see improvements made, Hoiberg said.

Those who rent are somewhat less concerned. They outnumber homeowners "by a substantial margin," according to Hoiberg's report.

Most people in the area want more parks and recreation facilities. Most complain about congested parking and narrow streets.

Many would like to see more black-operated businesses, the survey shows. Many would also like more grocery and discount stores located in the neighborhood.

The survey revealed that lower-income residents are less knowledgable about what social services are available to them, and are less satisfied with police protection than those with higher income, Hoiberg noted.

The results of the survey are intended to give the city and groups like the Malone board facts upon which to base planning, Ekvall explained.

Further surveys "of a higher intensity" are in the works, Ekvall said. One is the Redevelopment Study, in which $60,000 of federal block-grant funds will be used to survey buildings in the area with a view to possible renovation or removal.

In other business, the board voted to renew its contract with the city's Commission on Aging to provide transportation for the elderly. The Malone Center furnishes a van and the commission pays a driver to transport persons to programs for the aged.

A social worker will be retained on a half-time basis at the center to perform individual casework with the aged and organize group programs for the elderly.

The social worker's salary will come from federal revenue sharing funds administered by the commission.

There are 444 elderly residents of the Malone area, according to De Layne Peck, director of the commission's information service for the elderly.

Peck said that 10% of the city's information services to the elderly are provided in the Malone area.

Staff Sergeant Innocent Of Mistreating Private

Ft. Carson, Colo. (AP) — A Ft. Carson platoon leader who admitted ordering a 17-year-old private shackled was found innocent Wednesday by a military jury of maltreatment and illegal confinement.

S. Sgt. Kenneth S. Percival of Wymore, Neb., was one of six soldiers originally charged in the alleged beating and shackling of Pfc. Bonnell Caudill, 17, of Pasadena, Tex., and the alleged beating of a GI accused of coming to Caudill's aid.

The action against Caudill allegedly occurred after he returned from a six-day absence without leave.

Charges against three others in the case were dropped previously when the military prosecutor said he could present no case because Caudill and Pvt. Richard L. Weathers, 18, of Lawton, Okla., were absent without leave. Weathers alleged he was beaten for coming to Caudill's assistance.

Two other soldiers, Caudill's company commander and first sergeant, face nonjudicial Article 15 punishments in the case.

Caudill testified during his trial that Percival, his platoon leader, either shackled him or ordered him shackled with leg irons to a bed, a chair, and other soldiers for parts of two days. He also said he was beaten after returning from his unauthorized absence.

Percival admitted shackling Caudil but said he did so to prevent the private from leaving the military base again. He said he received word from company commander Capt. George O. Charity III of Colonial Heights, Va., to keep Caudill confined.

"It was my assumption that as platoon leaders we were to apprehend and hold until we could notify the commander. My directive to leave him shackled came from my company commander. I was under the belief that what I was doing was right," he said.

Charity, taking the witness stand at the trial, denied he gave such an order. He said he never saw Caudill shackled to a chair, but said he understood a soldier could be shackled to prevent his escape "to a moveable object which could be moved easily in case of emergency."

Reagan Supporter Scores Convention 'Mercenaries'

Valley (UPI) — A Nebraska delegate pledged to former Republican presidential contender Ronald Reagan said Wednesday President Ford's camp at the GOP National Convention contained "trained mercenaires" who "forced an incumbent President upon us" at the taxpayer's expense.

Mrs. Donald Lamp of Valley said a "growing number of voters" in both political parties remain "disgusted with the immorality of Washington" and, with Reagan's defeat, have lost the opportunity to bring the GOP back in line with its platform.

"The platform as written and adopted by the Republican convention clearly states the desires of the large majority of Republicans," said Mrs. Donald Lamp of Valley. "It is impressive because of the great disparity between the Republican dream and the actual facts of the Washington-oriented world we live in."

Mrs. Lamp said "Watergate has not taught morality. The lesson has been lost. The Nixon men and woman are still there, surrounding our incumbent President."

Mrs. Lamp said Reagan was a man who "caught the imagination of the American public, a man who demonstrated that he could clearly win with the odds stacked against him."

The incumbents, she said, "will bend every effort to see that "radicals" like the Nebraska Reagan delegates never happen again."

"Nebraska was one of the states where the delegates chosen by the voters were committed to a particular candidate," Mrs. Lamp said. "This was not true of the eastern states where the state organizations did the voting after reviewing the spoils."

Plant Items Selling

Bartlett, Ill. (UPI) — Horticulture ware — planters, flower pots, watering devices and other items for growing house plants — is the fastest growing product line among all areas of retailing, according to Phillips Products Co., Inc., a leading manufacturer in the field. Furthermore, it predicts it will stay in the lead for at least two more years.

An HMO is a form of health insurance that differs substantially from conventional health insurance plans.

Dr. Schwab, who previously voted against the HMO project, denied that she had the HMO specifically in mind when making comments about the federal government's power to overtun SeNHSA board decisions.

"My concern is local option," she said. "My concern is that we have a system in our country whereby the . . . person at the county level . . . has a say in what the quality of life will be."

Questioning the value of a board whose decisions are not "binding," Dr. Schwab said, "I'm thinking particularly of my time. How meaningful is the time that I spend" on the board if its decisions can be overruled.

"You're the only one that can weigh that," board member Don Nielsen responded.

SeNHSA board chairman Earl Witthoff explained that the body's decisions will never be "binding" in the sense that they will be final.

However, he added that 18 months later, when the new agency receives full designation, it will be "more difficult" for the federal government to overrule it.

SeNHSA director Jane Ford responded to the discussion by saying, "To make the assumption that HEW (the Department of Health, Education and Welfare) is always going to overturn us . . . would be a bit unfair.

"The more responsibly we conduct ourselves in making decisions" the more likely it will be that state and federal officials will "go along with us."

Following the meeting, Witthoff said he believed the HMO was the real issue underlying Dr. Schwab's comments.

Dr. P. D. Duensing, executive secretary of the Lancaster County Medical Society — a group which has been highly vocal in its opposition to the HMO — attended the meeting as an observer.

During the course of the discussion, he received a handwritten note from Dr. Schwab.

Following the meeting, Duensing said he and Dr. Schwab had conversed about the gneral issue of federal intervention in local health planning decisions.

Duensing also said he had approached Witthoff about placing the HMO issue on the agenda. However, he added that he was concerned about it only as an example of the erosion of local control.

Witthoff said he had told Duensing that a board member could put the HMO issue on the agenda if he or she desired.

But Witthoff added, "As far as I'm concerned, we (the board) have fulfilled our obligation" with regard to the HMO project.

Body Of Lincoln Man Found At McConaughy

Ogallala (UPI) — Keith County authorities Wednesday identified the body of a man found earlier in the day at Lake McConaughy as that of Roger Lundberg, 21, Lincoln.

Authorities say Lundberg's body was found on the south side of the lake. Keith County Attorney Pat Hays said the body had probably been there less than 24 hours.

Authorities said there was no evidence of foul play, however the investigation was continuing and an autopsy was to be performed Thursday morning.

Police Nab Motorcyclist

Police arrested a motorcyclist Wednesday night after a high-speed chase which began in the downtown area and ended on U.S. 34 northwest of the city.

When an officer in a cruiser attempted to stop the 19-year-old motorcyslist for a speeding violation, he sped off through downtown streets, with the police cruiser in pursuit.

The chase went the wrong direction down some one-way streets, then eventually led to the highway. Lancaster County deputies assisted in finally stopping the motorcycle.

Malone Center Board Told Survey Results

By BOB REEVES
Star Staff Writer

"Malone is not a dead neighborhood."

With these words, Tom Ekvall of the city's Urban Development Dept. summed up the findings of an attitude survey of Malone area residents recently completed by his department.

He and Otto Hoiberg, who directed the survey, talked with Malone Center board members Wednesday night about the findings.

The average Malone area homeowner is concerned about the future of his neighborhood and wants to see improvements made, Hoiberg said.

Those who rent are somewhat less concerned. They outnumber homeowners "by a substantial margin," according to Hoiberg's report.

Most people in the area want more parks and recreation facilities. Most complain about congested parking and narrow streets.

Many would like to see more black-operated businesses, the survey shows. Many would also like more grocery and discount stores located in the neighborhood.

The survey revealed that lower-income residents are less knowledgable about what social services are available to them, and are less satisfied with police protection than those with higher income, Hoiberg noted.

The results of the survey are intended to give the city and groups like the Malone board facts upon which to base planning, Ekvall explained.

Further surveys "of a higher intensity" are in the works, Ekvall said. One is the Redevelopment Study, in which $60,000 of federal block-grant funds will be used to survey buildings in the area with a view to possible renovation or removal.

In other business, the board voted to renew its contract with the city's Commission on Aging to provide transportation for the elderly. The Malone Center furnishes a van and the commission pays a driver to transport persons to programs for the aged.

A social worker will be retained on a half-time basis at the center to perform individual casework with the aged and organize group programs for the elderly.

The social worker's salary will come from federal revenue sharing funds administered by the commission.

There are 444 elderly residents of the Malone area, according to De Layne Peck, director of the commission's information service for the elderly.

Peck said that 10% of the city's information services to the elderly are provided in the Malone area.

Staff Sergeant Innocent Of Mistreating Private

Ft. Carson, Colo. (AP) — A Ft. Carson platoon leader who admitted ordering a 17-year-old private shackled was found innocent Wednesday by a military jury of maltreatment and illegal confinement.

S. Sgt. Kenneth S. Percival of Wymore, Neb., was one of six soldiers originally charged in the alleged beating and shackling of Pfc. Bonnell Caudill, 17, of Pasadena, Tex., and the alleged beating of a GI accused of coming to Caudill's aid.

The action against Caudill allegedly occurred after he returned from a six-day absence without leave.

Charges against three others in the case were dropped previously when the military prosecutor said he could present no case because Caudill and Pvt. Richard L. Weathers, 18, of Lawton, Okla., were absent without leave. Weathers alleged he was beaten for coming to Caudill's assistance.

Two other soldiers, Caudill's company commander and first sergeant, face nonjudicial Article 15 punishments in the case.

Caudill testified during his trial that Percival, his platoon leader, either shackled him or ordered him shackled with leg irons to a bed, a chair, and other soldiers for parts of two days. He also said he was beaten after returning from his unauthorized absence.

Percival admitted shackling Caudil but said he did so to prevent the private from leaving the military base again. He said he received word from company commander Capt. George O. Charity III of Colonial Heights, Va., to keep Caudill confined.

"It was my assumption that as platoon leaders we were to apprehend and hold until we could notify the commander. My directive to leave him shackled came from my company commander. I was under the belief that what I was doing was right," he said.

Charity, taking the witness stand at the trial, denied he gave such an order. He said he never saw Caudill shackled to a chair, but said he understood a soldier could be shackled to prevent his escape "to a moveable object which could be moved easily in case of emergency."

Reagan Supporter Scores Convention 'Mercenaries'

Valley (UPI) — A Nebraska delegate pledged to former Republican presidential contender Ronald Reagan said Wednesday President Ford's camp at the GOP National Convention contained "trained mercenaires" who "forced an incumbent President upon us" at the taxpayer's expense.

Mrs. Donald Lamp of Valley said a "growing number of voters" in both political parties remain "disgusted with the immorality of Washington" and, with Reagan's defeat, have lost the opportunity to bring the GOP back in line with its platform.

"The platform as written and adopted by the Republican convention clearly states the desires of the large majority of Republicans," said Mrs. Donald Lamp of Valley. "It is impressive because of the great disparity between the Republican dream and the actual facts of the Washington-oriented world we live in."

Mrs. Lamp said "Watergate has not taught morality. The lesson has been lost. The Nixon men and woman are still there, surrounding our incumbent President."

Mrs. Lamp said Reagan was a man who "caught the imagination of the American public, a man who demonstrated that he could clearly win with the odds stacked against him."

The incumbents, she said, "will bend every effort to see that "radicals" like the Nebraska Reagan delegates never happen again."

"Nebraska was one of the states where the delegates chosen by the voters were committed to a particular candidate," Mrs. Lamp said. "This was not true of the eastern states where the state organizations did the voting after reviewing the spoils."

Plant Items Selling

Bartlett, Ill. (UPI) — Horticulture ware — planters, flower pots, watering devices and other items for growing house plants — is the fastest growing product line among all areas of retailing, according to Phillipps Products Co., Inc., a leading manufacturer in the field. Furthermore, it predicts it will stay in the lead for at least two more years.

Zorinsky Opens Office In Lincoln

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Salesman Ed Zorinsky came back Wednesday.

From 1947 to 1949, the University of Nebraska student devoted his time away from the books to sell Lincoln businesses leases for his family vending and amusement machines.

Now the self-described "former taxpayer of Lincoln" has returned, this time trying to sell much more — himself as the Democratic nominee to the U.S. Senate.

The Omaha mayor opened his Capital City campaign office at 300 S. 17th, the harbinger of promised intense drive keying on agriculture — not an unlikely topic because of its importance to cities, he emphasized.

While the 46-year-old businessman settled in for an interview, his new headquarters filled with party regulars and well-wishers, the prelude to a $50-a-couple dinner Wednesday night. Of 500 invitations sent out, his local staff said, about 280 signed on for the fund-raiser, including Gov. J. James Exon and Lt. Gov. Jerry Whelan.

Zorinsky has been waging a hard nighttime and weekend bid of statewide apperances in the race against Republican Congressman John Y. McCollister. Each hopes to win the seat being vacated in January by retiring Sen. Roman Hruska.

A confident but low-key Zorinsky said: "I feel that for the first time in 43 years, Nebraska is going to have a Democratic senator in Washington" and one "with no hinges on his door."

Zorinsky removed the door to his mayor's office during his 3½-year tenure.

He said his Lincoln campaign will include personal apperances, coffees, door-to-door meetings, fund-raising events, meeting people "where they live and work."

That kind of old-fashioned political hard work will take "quite a bit of time," which Zorinsky said is a must: "Obviously, I don't have as much name recognition" in the Lincoln-dominated First District as in the Omaha-geared Second.

"The First District is very important to us," in tandem with the outstate, rural Third where he's "not as well known." Recent campaign flight hops are an attempt to turn that around.

"People regardless of what area they live in have a unifying concern with agriculture," Zorinsky said. He explained that the $2 billion agribusiness connection staked to Omaha's economy last year means that's what's good for the farm plays heavily on the city.

Zorinsky said acquainting people with his business and public service record is at the heart of what he will do in agriculture for Nebraska. He criticized federal arrangements for foreign trade he said are hurting farmers. He grumbled that "it took a political year" to draw attention to the Puerto Rican beef import funnel shattering domestic cattle prices.

He maintained that "agriculture should be allowed to seek its own level of trade with the world." He predicted agriculture will take on crisis proportions that exceed energy problems today.

Asked what he as one senator could do, Zorinsky pointed to his "fiscally responsible" term in city office. Omaha under his stewardship is "one of 26 cities left in the U.S. with a triple-A credit rating." He said he trimmed 43 jobs from about 2,700 in the city bureaucracy when government generally was growing.

"I run government as a business," with 23 years personal experience. For example, he objected to percentage fees in government contracts floating upward with unexpected costs. He said fixed fees are one element to stopping inflation.

"One senator can do just as much as he's willing to sacrifice his own endeavors." He reminded that as a Nebraska Public Power District board member, he was in the 6-1 minority voting against a nuclear plant because of projected cost overruns.

His vote, Zorinsky said, caused a lawsuit that resulted in a court-ordered repayment of $15 million by the contractor. That too illustrated Zorinsky's answer to "What can one man do?"

The mayor-by-day said a recent poll gives him a 2% edge over McCollister statewide, with "a considerable lead" in the Omaha area, "very close" in the First District and "behind" in outstate Nebraska.

"I'm a company man," Zorinsky said, having to expand his 16½-hour official day to seek advice from small groups and blanket all districts, with no intended concentrations. He promised to carry that "company" loyalty to all Nebraskans to the Senate given a November victory. ,

"Roman Hruska Jr. is not going to succeed as the heir apparent," he repeated his now-familiar dig at the Hruska-endorsed McCollister.

Developer To Make Good On Promises

Washington (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission said Wednesday it has compelled a 93,000-acre Florida land development owned by ITT to provide a widerange of facilities to make good its claim that buying sites there was a good investment.

The commission said International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and its wholly owned subsidiary, ITT Community Development Corp., have signed a consent order agreeing to halt allegedly unfair and deceptive practices at the Palm Coast development. The 93,000 acres are in eastern Florida between Daytona Beach and St. Augustine.

Among other things, the FTC said, the developers have been telling potential buyers all over the country that the lots would be a good investment when in reality most had virtually no resale value because of limited commercial or industrial development in the area.

Under the order, the developers agreed to build a 30,000-square-foot office structure and move the subsidiary's headquarters there from Miami.

The FTC announcement said the developers also agreed to build an office and research facility, a multi-purpose office building, a major highway interchange and a shopping center — all designed to make the land as valuable as the developers originally claimed it would be.

The settlement carries protection for those who bought land at Palm Coast on or after Jan. 1, 1974, against losing all their investments in case of payment defaults.

Under the initial agreements, a defaulting buyer lost everything. The conset order provides that no more than 44.8% of the purchase price may be forfeited.

The proposed complaint which produced the settlement said the development corporation traded on the name of ITT, telling customers the big conglomerate was legally responsible for the development when in fact full responsibility lay with the subsidiary.

GM Sparks Stock Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors' forecast of record car and truck sales next year supplied the spark for a rally in stock prices Wednesday, halting the market's biggest sustained decline of the year

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 7 90 to 970 83, rebounding from a 36 71-point slide over the five previous sessions.

Advances outpaced declines by about a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues

Big Board volume increased slightly to 17 40 million shares from 16 74 million in the like period Tuesday

The market drifted sluggishly for most of the session as it struggled to shake off the selling pressures of the past week

Analysts noted that a drop of about 3 points in the Dow at the opening had pushed the average down near the bottom of the range in which it has fluctuated for the past six months.

At that point traders began to do a little cautious buying.

Then, with a little less than 90 minutes remaining in the session, the market jumped ahead when General Motors' forecast reached Wall Street.

The giant automaker said it was looking for car and truck deliveries in calendar 1977 to surpass the record of 14 6 million units set in 1973. It also projected its own spending for plant and equipment next year at close to $3 billion, which would also be a record.

GM shares rose nearly 2 points, Ford Motor more than 2, and Chrysler added 1. GM and Chrysler both are components of the Dow

Wall Streeters also reported receiving a favorable market forecast during the day from influential technical analyst Edson Gould of New York's Anametrics Inc.

American Telephone & Telegraph, the day's most active issue and another member of the Dow 30, picked up a point. That gain recouped an ex-dividend, or downward adjustment for dividend payment, of a point in the stock

Indiana Standard shares edged up a fraction.

E-Systems, which raised its quarterly dividend and declared a 10 per cent stock distribution, also was up more than 2 points

Quaker Oats, on the other hand, lost nearly 2. Brokers blamed disappointment with the size of the quarterly earnings gain reported by the company.

Many Lenders Pulling Out Of Student Loan Program

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — Students are finding it toughter than ever to get a guaranteed student loan this year Lenders in various parts of the country have gotten so fed up with the program that they're pulling out, or cutting back on the funds they'll give.

There's no hard count on the numbers that have quit. The Office of Education, in its infinite wisdom, continues to count the dropouts as participating lenders as long as they have old loans on the books

But Charles Zuver of the American Bankers Assn says that he's hearing from an increasing number that they've had it up to here Take, for example, the situation in California

The Security Pacific National Bank, second largest in the state, stopped making guaranteed loans to new borrowers last March, although, like many other dropouts, they'll continue lending to their present customers. Two other large banks — the Bank of California and the United California Bank — stopped some time ago, as have several savings and loans. The Bank of America — largest in the state — says that if things don't improve by June, they too may pull out.

The withdrawal of Security Pacific alone means a loss of some $1.5 million to California students. Bank of America is lending to many of those turned away by SPNB and others, but to do it they've dropped their maximum loan from $2,500 per student to $1,500. This works a hardship on kids with big tuition bills.

The Office of Education figure estimates that the Bak. of America does about 50% of the state's student-loan business — but B of A itself puts the figure at 70% or higher. If that bank pulls out, it will be a major loss.

Why do lenders hate the program, not only in California but across the country? Several reasons

(1) The delays are unbelievable Letters to program officials may take several weeks to reach the right desk, and then go unanswered, says Gregory Lancaster of Security Pacific. The interest subsidy that's supposed to be paid every three months is often late. When the lender puts in a claim on a defaulted loan it may take up to a year for the government to pay.

Since February of this year the Office of Education has had a new system for handling default claims, which they say will get everyone paid within 45 days. Wayne Baker of the Bank of America says that that millenium hasn't yet arrived, but they're at least getting paid within three or four months where it used to take up to a year. A bill in Congress would make the government pay interest on claims outstanding, which might help hurry payment.

(2) Students often blame the lenders, not the government, for snafus. Example: When a student's in default, the lender can ask the Office of Education to send a telegram demanding payment. But by the time it finally arrives the student may have caught up on his debt. When he gets the telegram he calls the bank in a fury.

Students also get sore when they've been signed up by a suede-shoe salesman for a home-study or vocational training course that turns out not to be worth beans.

They quit the course, but still have a loan to repay. Lenders take the rap for that, too. Students who've never had a loan before don't fully understand that it must be paid, even if the school was no good.

"We got into this program to build lasting relationships with young people," Lancaster says. "But when they have trouble with their loans, they take their frustration out on us."

(3) The interest isn't high enough to make the irritations worth it. "Some small banks with low overheads can make money on the program," says Baker. "But not big banks. We'd be happy just to break even, but as it is, we're losing." Congress will soon begin debating a higher subsidy to lenders on guaranteed loans. If it doesn't pass, the Bank of America might be the first of another wave of lenders to head for the exits.

GM Sparks Stock Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors' forecast of record car and truck sales next year supplied the spark for a rally in stock prices Wednesday, halting the market's biggest sustained decline of the year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 7.90 to 970.83, rebounding from a 36.71-point slide over the five previous sessions.

Advances outpaced declines by about a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume increased slightly to 17.40 million shares from 16.74 million in the like period Tuesday.

The market drifted sluggishly for most of the session as it struggled to shake off the selling pressures of the past week.

Analysts noted that a drop of about 3 points in the Dow at the opening had pushed the average down near the bottom of the range in which it has fluctuated for the past six months.

At that point traders began to do a little cautious buying.

Then, with a little less than 90 minutes remaining in the session, the market jumped ahead when General Motors' forecast reached Wall Street.

The giant automaker said it was looking for car and truck deliveries in calendar 1977 to surpass the record of 14.6 million units set in 1973. It also projected its own spending for plant and equipment next year at close to $3 billion, which would also be a record.

GM shares rose nearly 2 points, Ford Motor more than 2, and Chrysler added 1. GM and Chrysler both are components of the Dow.

Wall Streeters also reported receiving a favorable market forecast during the day from influential technical analyst Edson Gould of New York's Anametrics Inc.

American Telephone & Telegraph, the day's most active issue and another member of the Dow 30, picked up a point. That gain recouped an ex-dividend, or downward adjustment for dividend payment, of a point in the stock.

Indiana Standard shares edged up a fraction.

E-Systems, which raised its quarterly dividend and declared a 10 per cent stock distribution, also was up more than 2 points.

Quaker Oats, on the other hand, lost nearly 2. Brokers blamed disappointment with the size of the quarterly earnings gain reported by the company.

Many Lenders Pulling Out Of Student Loan Program

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — Students are finding it toughter than ever to get a guaranteed student loan this year. Lenders in various parts of the country have gotten so fed up with the program that they're pulling out, or cutting back on the funds they'll give.

There's no hard count on the numbers that have quit. The Office of Education, in its infinite wisdom, continues to count the dropouts as participating lenders as long as they have old loans on the books.

But Charles Zuver of the American Bankers Assn. says that he's hearing from an increasing number that they've had it up to here. Take, for example, the situation in California:

The Security Pacific National Bank, second largest in the state, stopped making guaranteed loans to new borrowers last March, although, like many other dropouts, they'll continue lending to their present customers. Two other large banks — the Bank of California and the United California Bank — stopped some time ago, as have several savings and loans. The Bank of America — largest in the state — says that if things don't improve by June, they too may pull out.

The withdrawal of Security Pacific alone means a loss of some $1.5 million to California students. Bank of America is lending to many of those turned away by SPNB and others, but to do it they've dropped their maximum loan from $2,500 per student to $1,500. This works a hardship on kids with big tuition bills.

The Office of Education figure estimates that the Bak of America does about 50% of the state's student-loan business — but B of A itself puts the figure at 70% or higher. If that bank pulls out, it will be a major loss.

Why do lenders hate the program, not only in California but across the country? Several reasons:

(1) The delays are unbelievable. Letters to program officials may take several weeks to reach the right desk, and then go unanswered, says Gregory Lancaster of Security Pacific. The interest subsidy that's supposed to be paid every three months is often late. When the lender puts in a claim on a defaulted loan it may take up to a year for the government to pay.

Since February of this year the Office of Education has had a new system for handling default claims, which they say will get everyone paid within 45 days. Wayne Baker of the Bank of America says that that millenium hasn't yet arrived, but they're at least getting paid within three or four months where it used to take up to a year. A bill in Congress would make the government pay interest on claims outstanding, which might help hurry payment.

(2) Students often blame the lenders, not the government, for snafus. Example: When a student's in default, the lender can ask the Office of Education to send a telegram demanding payment. But by the time it finally arrives the student may have caught up on his debt. When he gets the telegram he calls the bank in a fury.

Students also get sore when they've been signed up by a suede-shoe salesman for a home-study or vocational training course that turns out not to be worth beans.

They quit the course, but still have a loan to repay. Lenders take the rap for that, too. Students who've never had a loan before don't fully understand that it must be paid, even if the school was no good.

"We got into this program to build lasting relationships with young people," Lancaster says. "But when they have trouble with their loans, they take their frustration out on us."

(3) The interest isn't high enough to make the irritations worth it. "Some small banks with low overheads can make money on the program," says Baker. "But not big banks. We'd be happy just to break even, but as it is, we're losing." Congress will soon begin debating a higher subsidy to lenders on guaranteed loans. If it doesn't pass, the Bank of America might be the first of another wave of lenders to head for the exits.

Senior Gift Shop Popular, Profitable

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION: I read recently about a shop where the owners sell handmade items made by senior citizens. I think they deduct 20% for their aid.

May I ask if you have any information about such a firm?

ANSWER: There are beginning to be a great number of shops doing this. I have talked to one of the organizers of a senior shop in a western city of 80,000 persons, and she has given me pertinent information which I am glad to be able to share with you.

Their shop is called Senior Crafts Gift House, Inc. It is 13 years old. The original inspiration for it came from a visit made by some Soroptimists to a Senior Crafts Fair in a local hotel.

The Soroptimists decided that the seniors needed a store where they could sell their products regularly in a fixed location. So they set aside $2,500 for start-up money, and looked around for a shop.

The search ended in a downtown location not far from the hotel where they had seen the senior fair. Not surprisingly, a spot near a hotel or motel is a natural for this kind of shop. The seniors make many gift items; travelers are on the lookout for interesting items to take home to their loved ones.

Before the shop was opened, several of the Soroptimists visited other senior shops in Portland, Ore., and Monterey, Calif., to see how they were set up and to learn from their managements what problems and pitfalls to avoid.

Senior Crafts Gift House, Inc., has a jury which checks the quality of items offered for sale in the store. They allow the maker to set the price, but they will not accept anything for sale unless it has a reasonable cost/quality ratio and has sales potential.

When a senior offers a saleable item which the jury passes on, the maker is entitled to become a life member of the organization for a one-time fee of $10 (which also can include a spouse).

There is a contractual arrangement between producer and shop under the terms of which items in the shop will be reduced in price or removed if they are not sold within six months, although this rule is not often enforced.

Items which don't sell readily are usually one-of-a-kind gifts, which the shop likes to keep on hand. If no sale is made, the membership fee will be refunded for anyone who makes only one or two items.

Contributors receive 75% of the selling price. For eight years the shop showed no profit. Since then profits have grown slowly. This year the shop made a gift of $4,000 to the local Pearl Buck School for the Retarded.

Most of the staffing of the shop, which is open six days a week, is done by seniors who are members, and contributors themselves. Management and bookkeeping work are handled by Soroptimists. The division of labor is about 50-50 between seniors and Soroptimists.

Mrs. Dennis, the manager, told me that the original concept was that the seniors would eventually take the shop over completely. This may work in some areas, but Senior Crafts Gift House Inc. is still a cooperative venture.

Since this shop was opened 13 years ago, towns of all sizes have become aware of the feasibility of having a senior shop as an outlet for the creativity of the seniors and as another community resource for unusual gifts and crafts.

Due to the parallel growth in the federal government's concern about the elderly in the last few years, many of the new shops have received federal assistance with financing. Mrs. Dennis' shop has steadfastly maintained its autonomy. "We didn't want the hassles," she told me.

If you'd like further information about this shop, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will see that Mrs. Dennis gets your request.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

El Dorado — Blue sky days now in the golden Mother Lode. There's little gold being dug out of these sleepy gold-rush towns in the warm summer days. But there is a restless stirring that indicates that the golden real estate developer is on his way.

The dream is not new. When the miners moved out, the people who stayed had great hopes for the mining towns. They began renaming them as fast as they could pull names out of the poetry books.

Freezeout became Ione. Fiddletown was renamed Oleta. Bedbug is now Paradise. (Webberville simply sank into the summer grass. There is a brick foundation alongside Webber Creek and a gravestone, the name worn away, on the hill.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Webberville had three stores and some 10,000 golden souls. It was just up the road a piece from here — from El Dorado which was then called Mud Springs.

My great-grandfather arrived there in September, 1850. He had crossed the plains and figured he was 2,500 miles from "the States." That was about right. The shortest route from the jump-off at Independence, Mo., was reckoned at 2,104 miles.

He had a muzzle-loading rifle and two blankets. His first meal was crackers. He bought them with two-bits worth of gold he dug right then and there from the banks of Webber Creek.

☆ ☆ ☆

The trailer people have discovered the Mother Lode country. You find them around West Point above the Mokelumne River. Where the live oaks stop and the Sierra pines begin. The retired couples, gypsying through the country.

They pull up the big shiny trailers, run out the awnings and sit in the summer sun. Sometimes they pan the creeks a little. The gold rush men didn't get all the gold.

Each winter's rain unlocks a few nuggets to tumble down the creeks.

The cost of mining gold closed most of the mines in this country. But now gold is free on the market. A shovel and a pan cost only a few dollars. If you have nothing to do, labor is not a cost.

Pan it out. Strike it rich.

In later days, my great-grandfather said gold miners should get a pension. He wrote about it with firm sweeping strokes:

"We had hard trials and great tribulations and Uncle Sam ought to give us a service pension, for we made it possible for him to have plenty of gold.

"We bared our breasts to the Rocky and Sierra Nevada mountains," he wrote with an eye to the drama of it all, "and the great American desert. And they are much bigger than any fort or gun you ever heard of." (The Civil War veterans were a voting force then and were gunning for higher pensions.)

"We took much gold from the Sierra Nevada and made it possible for men to become millionaires, and who cares if they are taxed to help take care of us old gold hunters."

He added: "Also old soldiers." I suppose realizing he was outnumbered by the GAR veterans and hoping to tail onto the band wagon.

☆ ☆ ☆

The forty-niners never did get a pension. But grandpa remembered the olden, golden days in this land of blue lupine and warm summers.

"The climate in Amador county suits me fine," he wrote "And if I had a ranch there I would go and live until I was called up higher."

Wounded Knee Convictions Held

St. Louis (UPI) — A federal appeals court has upheld the convictions of five persons found guilty of trying to interfere with federal marshals and FBI agents during the 1973 disturbance at Wounded Knee, S.D.

In a split decision, a three-judge panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the convictions of Sioux Casper, Christopher G. Land, Martina Ellen White Bear, Geneva M. Red Feather and Joseph Bill.

The decision was not signed, and Judge Gerald W. Heaney said in a dissenting opinion he would reverse the convictions because of insufficient evidence.

All five had been arrested during the distrubance in possession of or near weapons or ammunition.

The seniors make many gift items; travelers are on the lookout for interesting items to take home to their loved ones.

Before the shop was opened, several of the Soroptimists visited other senior shops in Portland, Ore., and Monterey, Calif., to see how they were set up and to learn from their managements what problems and pitfalls to avoid.

Senior Crafts Gift House, Inc., has a jury which checks the quality of items offered for sale in the store. They allow the maker to set the price, but they will not accept anything for sale unless it has a reasonable cost/quality ratio and has sales potential.

When a senior offers a saleable item which the jury passes on, the maker is entitled to become a life member of the organization for a one-time fee of $10 (which also can include a spouse).

There is a contractual arrangement between producer and shop under the terms of which items in the shop will be reduced in price or removed if they are not sold within six months, although this rule is not often enforced.

Items which don't sell readily are usually one-of-a-kind gifts, which the shop likes to keep on hand. If no sale is made, the membership fee will be refunded for anyone who makes only one or two items.

Contributors receive 75% of the selling price. For eight years the shop showed no profit. Since then profits have grown slowly. This year the shop made a gift of $4,000 to the local Pearl Buck School for the Retarded.

Most of the staffing of the shop, which is open six days a week, is done by seniors who are members, and contributors themselves. Management and bookkeeping work are handled by Soroptimists. The division of labor is about 50-50 between seniors and Soroptimists.

Mrs. Dennis, the manager, told me that the original concept was that the seniors would eventually take the shop over completely. This may work in some areas, but Senior Crafts Gift House Inc. is still a cooperative venture.

Since this shop was opened 13 years ago, towns of all sizes have become aware of the feasibility of having a senior shop as an outlet for the creativity of the seniors and as another community resource for unusual gifts and crafts.

Due to the parallel growth in the federal government's concern about the elderly in the last few years, many of the new shops have received federal assistance with financing. Mrs. Dennis' shop has steadfastly maintained its autonomy. "We didn't want the hassles," she told me.

If you'd like further information about this shop, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will see that Mrs. Dennis gets your request.

El Dorado — Blue sky days now in the golden Mother Lode. There's little gold being dug out of these sleepy gold rush towns in the warm summer days. But there is a restless stirring that indicates that the golden real estate developer is on his way.

The dream is not new. When the miners moved out, the people who stayed had great hopes for the mining towns. They began renaming them as fast as they could pull names out of the poetry books.

Freezeout became Ione. Fiddletown was renamed Oleta. Bedbug is now Paradise. (Webberville simply sank into the summer grass. There is a brick foundation alongside Webber Creek and a gravestone, the name worn away, on the hill.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Webberville had three stores and some 10,000 golden souls. It was just up the road a piece from here — from El Dorado which was then called Mud Springs.

My great-grandfather arrived there in September, 1850. He had crossed the plains and figured he was 2,500 miles from "the States." That was about right. The shortest route from the jump-off at Independence, Mo., was reckoned at 2,104 miles.

He had a muzzle-loading rifle and two blankets. His first meal was crackers. He bought them with two-bits worth of gold he dug right then and there from the banks of Webber Creek.

☆ ☆ ☆

The trailer people have discovered the Mother Lode country. You find them around West Point above the Mokelumne River. Where the live oaks stop and the Sierra pines begin. The retired couples, gypsying through the country.

They pull up the big shiny trailers, run out the awnings and sit in the summer sun. Sometimes they pan the creeks a little. The gold rush men didn't get all the gold.

Each winter's rain unlocks a few nuggets to tumble down the creeks.

The cost of mining gold closed most of the mines in this country. But now gold is free on the market. A shovel and a pan cost only a few dollars. If you have nothing to do, labor is not a cost.

Pan it out. Strike it rich.

In later days, my great-grandfather said gold miners should get a pension. He wrote about it with firm sweeping strokes:

"We had hard trials and great tribulations and Uncle Sam ought to give us a service pension, for we made it possible for him to have plenty of gold.

"We bared our breasts to the Rocky and Sierra Nevada mountains," he wrote with an eye to the drama of it all, "and the great American desert. And they are much bigger than any fort or gun you ever heard of." (The Civil War veterans were a voting force then and were gunning for higher pensions.)

"We took much gold from the Sierra Nevada and made it possible for men to become millionaires, and who cares if they are taxed to help take care of us old gold hunters."

He added: "Also old soldiers." I suppose realizing he was outnumbered by the GAR veterans and hoping to tail onto the band wagon.

The forty-niners never did get a pension. But grandpa remembered the olden, golden days in this land of blue lupine and warm summers.

"The climate in Amador county suits me fine," he wrote "And if I had a ranch there, I would go and live until I was called up higher."

Wounded Knee Convictions Held

St. Louis (UPI) — A federal appeals court has upheld the convictions of five persons found guilty of trying to interfere with federal marshals and FBI agents during the 1973 disturbance at Wounded Knee, S.D.

In a split decision, a three-judge panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Courtof Appeals upheld the convictions of Sioux Casper, Christopher O. Land, Martina Ellen White Bear, Geneva M. Red Feather and Joseph Bill.

The decision was not signed, and Judge Gerald W. Heaney said in a dissenting opinion he would reverse the convictions because of insufficient evidence.

All five had been arrested during the distrubance in possession of or near weapons or ammunition.

Economic Crunch Closing Up Nation's Cultural Institutions

By The Associated Press

Symphonies, theaters and other cultural institutions in several areas of the country are in serious financial trouble, facing huge deficits caused by rising costs. The American Shakespeare Theatre — which almost closed earlier this year because of a lack of funds — said Wednesday it had cancelled a fall tour due to money problems.

An Associated Press spot check showed that inflation and recession, compounded in some cases by labor troubles, have added up to red ink for a wide variety of operations — from Radio City Music Hall in New York City to the symphony orchestras of Cleveland and St. Louis.

Some institutions, like New York's Metropolitan Opera and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, have traditionally operated at a deficit. Others say the culture crunch is relatively new and they are trying to balance the budget with higher ticket prices, intensified fund-raising efforts and help from local governments.

The American Shakespeare Theatre of Stratford, Conn., planned a six-city tour with stops in Birmingham, Ala.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Memphis, Tenn.; New Orleans, San Antonio, Tex., and Greensboro, N.C.

The group could not afford the trip without sufficient funding from each of the cities involved and Gerald Lennick, director of public relations and development, said Wednesday that Birmingham failed to come up with the money.

Alfred M. Rankin, president of the Musical Arts Association which runs the Cleveland Orchestra, said Tuesday that the group faced a $1 million deficit for the 1975-76 fiscal year. He said it cost $482,000 more to operate the orchestra in 1975-76 than it did a year earlier.

Rankin said he "has no intention of impairing the quality of the orchestra" and would seek support from the city and Cuyahoga County governments to help offset the cost increases.

The management of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra said it faces an accumulated deficit of over $889,000. The symphony currently is negotiating a new musicians' contract to replace one that expires Sept. 5 and officials say they simply can't afford to match the salaries paid by other big city musical groups.

The basic pay for a musician is $305 a week. The union has asked for increases that would boost pay to $485 a week at the end of three years; the symphony has offered $350.

"I guess our offer represents our concerns about our ability to raise money," said Peter Pastreich, executive director of the symphony.

The management of Radio City Music Hall — with its high-kicking Rockettes, elaborate stage shows and long holiday lines for big-budget movies — has said it will close the 6,000-seat theater on Sept. 8 unless it can cut costs in a new contract agreement with the chorus girls, stagehands, musicians and wardrobe attendants.

Officials said the 44-year-old theater lost $1.3 million last year. They set a deadline of next Wednesday for reaching a cost-cutting agreement or announcing the closing. Vincent D. McDonnell, chairman of the State Mediation Board, said meeting the deadline "would be a miracle."

The tour cancellation by the American Shakespeare Theatre was the latest in a series of problems plaguing the famous summer festival operation. In January, the theater announced it would have to close unless it could raise $300,000 by April 1.

Here is a look at the situation in some other areas:

—Boston: A spokesman for the Boston Symphony Orchestra said the group is a "deficit organization" and always operates at about the same annual deficit — $1 million. The gap in the $8.5 million budget is closed by contributions. The group also boosted prices for summer performances at Tanglewood, setting a new top of $12.50, up from $10.50 last year. The minimum price for tickets — $4.50 — stayed the same.

—Buffalo, N.Y.: Harold Lawrence, president and general manager of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra, said: "We're in a very precarious position." He said debts — most of them bank loans — will total nearly $1 million at the end of the fiscal year on Aug. 31. Lawrence has applied for a Ford Foundation grant which he will try to match with locally raised funds.

—Atlanta: A spokesman for the Atlanta Arts Alliance, which includes the city's symphony orchestra, the High Museum of Art, the Atlanta College of Arts and two theater groups, said the group was in pretty good shape, with some operations losing money.

Colson: Prison Inmates Are Bitter

Denver (UPI) — Convicted Watergate conspirator Charles Colson said Wednesday he learned first-hand of the despair and loneliness of prison life and discovered quickly the public did not care.

Colson, now an official in the Fellowship House in Washington, D.C., spent seven months in federal prison camps at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama and Ft. Holabird in Maryland.

Economic Crunch Closing Up Nation's Cultural Institutions

By The Associated Press

Symphonies, theaters and other cultural institutions in several areas of the country are in serious financial trouble, facing huge deficits caused by rising costs. The American Shakespeare Theatre — which almost closed earlier this year because of a lack of funds — said Wednesday it had cancelled a fall tour due to money problems.

An Associated Press spot check showed that inflation and recession, compounded in some cases by labor troubles, have added up to red ink for a wide variety of operations — from Radio City Music Hall in New York City to the symphony orchestras of Cleveland and St. Louis.

Some institutions, like New York's Metropolitan Opera and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, have traditionally operated at a deficit. The American Shakespeare Theatre of Stratford, Conn., planned a six-city tour with stops in Birmingham, Ala.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Memphis, Tenn.; New Orleans, San Antonio, Tex., and Greensboro, N.C.

The group could not afford the trip without sufficient funding from each of the cities involved and Gerald Lennick, director of public relations and development, said Wednesday that Birmingham failed to come up with the money.

Alfred M. Rankin, president of the Musical Arts Association which runs the Cleveland Orchestra, said Tuesday that the group faced a $1 million deficit for the 1975-76 fiscal year. He said it cost $482,000 more to operate the orchestra in 1975-76 than it did a year earlier.

Colson: Prison Inmates Are Bitter

Denver (UPI) — Convicted Watergate conspirator Charles Colson said Wednesday he learned first-hand of the despair and loneliness of prison life and discovered quickly the public did not care.

The former special counsel to President Nixon told members of the American Correctional Association there was an "overwhelming feeling of bitterness and dispair" among prison inmates.

Colson, now an official in the Fellowship House in Washington, D.C., spent seven months in federal prison camps at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama and Ft. Holabird in Maryland.

Citizens Against Mayor Rizzo Appeal Commissioners' Ruling

Philadelphia (UPI) — A citizens' committee seeking to remove Mayor Frank L. Rizzo from office took its case to court Wednesday, appealing a decision by cit commissioners who have rejected thousands of signatures on a recall petition.

Common Pleas Judge David N. Savitt said the appeal filed by the "Citizens' Committee to Recall Rizzo" would be the subject of a Sept. 2 hearing for oral arguments on preliminary motions. He said testimony on the appeal itself would then continue on a day-to-day basis until conclusion.

City commissioners voted 2-1 Tuesday to reject a recall petition submitted by the committee last June 15 which contained more than 211,000 signatures, some 66,000 more than required to force a referendum. The commissioners, in rejecting the petition, ruled only 88,000 signatures were valid.

Attorney Gregory M. Harvey said the committee claims 156,996 signatures are valid if commission standards are applied.

However, City Solicitor Sheldon Albert, representing the commissioners, said the petition was invalid "under the law and the facts presented and I believe the court will uphold the decision."

Savitt had said he hoped to rule within a week on the appeal, but a decision was not expected now for at least two weeks. The committee is hoping the petition will be accepted by Sept. 21 in time for the recall question to be placed on the November ballot.

If the appeal is accepted and the petition ruled valid, Rizzo would have 10 days to resign under provisions of the city charter. If he did not resign, a "yes-no" referendum would be listed on the ballot.

The committee began the petition drive last spring after Rizzo announced the city faced an $80 million budget deficit and raised taxes following a campaign promise to hold the line. The movement was also spurred by the announced closing of Philadelphia General Hospital which serves the city's poor.

Citizens Against Mayor Rizzo Appeal Commissioners' Ruling

Philadelphia (UPI) — A citizens' committee seeking to remove Mayor Frank L. Rizzo from office took its case to court Wednesday, appealing a decision by cit commissioners who have rejected thousands of signatures on a recall petition.

Common Pleas Judge David N. Savitt said the appeal filed by the "Citizens' Committee to Recall Rizzo" would be the subject of a Sept. 2 hearing for oral arguments on preliminary motions. He said testimony on the appeal itself would then continue on a day-to-day basis until conclusion.

City commissioners voted 2-1 Tuesday to reject a recall petition submitted by the committee last June 15 which contained more than 211,000 signatures, some 66,000 more than required to force a referendum. The commissioners, in rejecting the petition, ruled only 88,000 signatures were valid.

Attorney Gregory M. Harvey said the committee claims 156,966 signatures are valid if commission standards are applied.

However, City Solicitor Sheldon Albert, representing the commissioners, said the petition was invalid "under the law and the facts presented and I believe the court will uphold the decision."

Savitt had said he hoped to rule within a week on the appeal, but a decision was not expected now for at least two weeks. The committee is hoping the petition will be accepted by Sept. 21 in time for the recall question to be placed on the November ballot.

If the appeal is accepted and the petition ruled valid, Rizzo would have 10 days to resign under provisions of the city charter. If he did not resign, a "yes-no" referendum would be listed on the ballot.

The committee began the petition drive last spring after Rizzo announced the city faced an $80 million budget deficit and raised taxes following a campaign promise to hold the line. The movement was also spurred by the announced closing of Philadelphia General Hospital which serves the city's poor.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, August 26, 1976

"You're in the 'innersanctum' and you're seeing the horoscopes of the important people, the political folks that I meet and deal with — yes, Sydney, I do use astrology and I regard it as another source of valid, legitimate information. It has helped me, has changed my life and I am an advocate and a student of astrology."—Goodwin Knight (former Calif. governor) to Sydney Omarr.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Specifics, details, confrontations, work, health and special services are featured. You deal with idealists, practical people, poetic folks, skeptics. Yes, you run the gamut. Be ready — and maintain your own balance, humor. Someone is holding back, but you eventually will get story behind story.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You gain insights, find unique ways of expressing yourself, receive meaningful compliment from member of opposite sex. Gemini, Virgo individuals could figure prominently. You get "involved." What you've been holding back is released.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Home, domestic situation— these are emphasized. You get backing, but you also need counsel where rights, permissions are concerned. Taurus, Libra figure prominently. Accent on structure, legalities, reaching understanding with one in authority.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Check behind the scenes, backstage, find out what's going on at closed-door conference. Study Aries message. Short trip, special message or inquiry commands attention. Relative confides — be discreet. Don't cast first stone.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) Key is organization. Set sights on goal — check priorities. Be aware of personal as well as professional needs. Member of opposite sex does not expect to take back seat. Cancer, Capricorn individuals figure prominently. Money question will be resolved.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22) What had been nebulous, elusive comes into focus. You make significant progress connected with obtaining of leases, property, commitment from one who can "guarantee" security. Roadblock to agreement is negotiable.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22) You have chance to break down barriers. Key is to be flexible, versatile, alert to clues, opportunities. You'll get to heart of matters — Leo and Aquarius persons could be in picture. What was hidden can be revealed. You locate lost article. Accept accolade when it is presented.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21) Individual who is a "teacher" may need our help. If you give, you also will receive. Show good will towards one who did aid you in past. Aquarian could be very much in picture. Accent on desire, temptation, going to excess for momentary pleasure. Be mature!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21) Your psychic abilities are activated. Your sense of illusion is stimulated. Creative juices flow. Travel, writing, social events — these could be part of scenario. You'll laugh a lot — and your diet goes flying out of window.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19) Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Accent on long journey, educational project, reading, writing, advertising — your sense of communication is heightened. You'll do some revising, reviewing, rebuilding.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18) Emotional involvement is highlighted — don't expect something for nothing. No free lunch. If it appears something is being handed you on silver platter, take another look. Love is present — if only you recognize it!

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20) Be diplomatic, but let it be known that you have allies. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio could be in picture. You're going to receive exciting offer. One in position of authority has good things to say — about you.

IF AUGUST 26th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you can organize, invest, work, get results. You understand love — and responsibility. You have fun and games and travel this year. May, September and November represent outstanding months this year. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. You are intense, analytical, dynamic, magnetic and many members of opposite sex fall in love with you.

(Learn "The Truth About Astrology." Send 75 cents to Omarr Booklet, The Lincoln Star, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053. You'll open door to fascinating study and self-revelation!)

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, August 26, 1976

"You're in the 'innersanctum' and you're seeing the horoscopes of the important people, the political folks that I meet and deal with — yes, Sydney, I do use astrology and I regard it as another source of valid, legitimate information. It has helped me, has changed my life and I am an advocate and a student of astrology."—Goodwin Knight (former Calif. governor) to Sydney Omarr.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Specifics, details, confrontations, work, health and special services are featured. You deal with idealists, practical people, poetic folks, skeptics. Yes, you run the gamut. Be ready — and maintain your own balance, humor. Someone is holding back, but you eventually will get story behind story.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You gain insights, find unique ways of expressing yourself, receive meaningful compliment from member of opposite sex. Gemini, Virgo individuals could figure prominently. You get "involved." What you've been holding back . . . is released.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Home, domestic situation— these are emphasized. You get backing, but you also need counsel where rights, permissions are concerned. Taurus, Libra figure prominently. Accent on structure, legalities, reaching understanding with one in authority.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Check behind the scenes, backstage; find out what's going on at closed-door conference. Study Aries message. Short trip, special message or inquiry commands attention. Relative confides — be discreet. Don't cast first stone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Key is organization. Set sights on goal — check priorities. Be aware of personal as well as professional needs. Member of opposite sex does not expect to take back seat. Cancer, Capricorn individuals figure prominently. Money question will be resolved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What had been nebulous, elusive . . . comes into focus. You make significant progress connected with obtaining of leases, property, commitment from one who can "guarantee" security. Roadblock to agreement is negotiable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You have chance to break down barriers. Key is to be flexible, versatile, alert to clues, opportunities. You'll get to heart of matters — Leo and Aquarius persons could be in picture. What was hidden can be revealed. You locate lost article. Accept accolade when it is presented.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Individual who is a "teacher" may need our help. If you give, you also will receive. Show good will towards one who did aid you in past. Aquarian could be very much in picture. Accent on desire, temptation, going to excess for momentary pleasure. Be mature!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your psychic abilities are activated. Your sense of illusion is stimulated. Creative juices flow. Travel, writing, social events — these could be part of scenario. You'll laugh a lot — and your diet goes flying out of window.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Accent on long journey, educational project, reading, writing, advertising — your sense of communication is heightened. You'll do some revising, reviewing, rebuilding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emotional involvement is highlighted — don't expect something for nothing. No free lunch. If it appears something is being handed you on silver platter, take another look. Love is present — if only you recognize it!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be diplomatic, but let it be known that you have allies. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio could be in picture. You're going to receive exciting offer. One in position of authority has good things to say — about you.

IF AUGUST 26th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you can organize, invest, work, get results. You understand love — and responsibility. You have fun and games and travel this year. May, September and November represent outstanding months this year. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. You are intense, analytical, dynamic, magnetic, and many members of opposite sex fall in love with you.
